Japan Knows and Asks.
Why the Farmer Wept.
The Parasite Crab.
A Poet Is Here.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

JAPANESE STATESMEN know what they want and ask for it. Napoleon did the same.

Having bombed China's city of Shanhaikwan for several days, killing about one thousand from the air, Japan demands that the Chinese marshal apologize for resisting Japan and asks control of the railway station at Shanhaikwan, where a hole in the great wall lets the railway run through.

OUR SECRETARY of state, Mr. Stimson, who takes an interest in Asiatic matters, although they are none of our business, is told politely that "Chinese aggressiveness" made it necessary for Japan to act.

The man arrested for killing sheep exclaimed:

"I will kill any sheep that bites me."

AT LE MARS, IA., Lawyer Herbert S. Martin, about to foreclose a mortgage against Farmer John A. Johnson, was dragged down the court house steps by other farmers.

He was bidding in the farm for less than the mortgage, leaving Farmer Johnson still in debt.

M. H. AYLESWORTH, head of National Broadcasting and many other things, as a young lawyer, working for nothing, was protecting a western farmer with two mortgages on his farm and one on his sheep.

When bankers told the farmer he must get out he burst into tears. One kind-hearted banker patted him on the shoulder, saying:

"Don't cry, everything will come out all right."

The farmer said:

"I am not crying for myself. I am crying when I think of you bankers in the farming business."

Unless things improve suddenly, bankers are going to be in many kinds of business in which gentlemen are now "holding on by their eyelids."

MRS. FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT, soon to keep house in the White House, is writing a book on what women have done in the past and what more they can accomplish in the future.

To tell adequately about the past would be difficult. To tell about the future is of course impossible.

Fifty thousand or one million years hence, when manual labor becomes unnecessary, nothing harder to do than press a button, you may see women twice as big as they are now, and men so small that their wives will carry them about in vanity cases.

THAT HAS happened in nature.

The giant sea crab, of which Darwin tells you, is always a female. You find her husband under one of her front flippers, about as big as a ten-cent piece.

Men in a few thousand centuries may be living a life as easy as that of the female sea crab's husband, no work but handing on genes, no more forehead than a shrimp.

Mr. Masefield tells you not to expect "cheery music" from poets "in these blue days."

A poet can only "bring news of Paradise and give us a bit of magic and beauty." That's a good deal.

THIRTY-SEVEN years ago Mr. Masefield worked for a saloon keeper in New York and was a poet then, although the saloon keeper didn't know it.

He has been a seaman, and that hard life could not drive poetry out of him. You would like his poetry. His sea "^s is reflected in such lines as these:

I must go down to the seas again to the vagrant gypsy life,
To the gull's way and the whale's way, where the wind's like a whetted knife.
And all I ask is a merry yarn
from a laughing fellow rover,
And quiet sleep and a sweet dream when the long trick's

LINK KILLING, PAJAMA PARTY

Murder Quiz Bares Loves of Widow Of Bandman

By WEST PETERSON
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5. — Disclosure of illicit love affairs in the life of Mrs. Frances Schildhauer, including a pajama bedroom party with another man, may lead to a speedy solution of the "ride" murder of her husband, Edwin O. Schildhauer, handsome bandmaster, according to a police prediction today.

While detectives probed further into the beautiful widow's relations with other men, federal authorities began an investigation of a trip she took to Memphis, Tenn., with Carl Bradberry.

Bradberry, a former deputy sheriff who possessed a gun and a blackjack, meanwhile was expected to tell a "book full" about the Schildhauer family. In a long period of questioning last night he gave details of the Memphis trip, but denies he had any connection with the murder.

U. S. PROBE LOOMS

District Attorney Dwight H. Green said that evidence on the love expedition into Tennessee would be turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for possible prosecution under the Mann act.

Bradberry admitted he and Mrs. Schildhauer, an expectant mother, went to Memphis October 21 and did not return until October 26. Schildhauer, who was insured for $38,000, was slain in gangland fashion on December 10.

A few weeks after Bradberry and Mrs. Schildhauer made the trip, they staged a pajama party which was interrupted by her husband, according to another witness, Miss Charlotte Holland.

Miss Holland declared Bradberry took her to a dance, but before the evening was over disappeared with Mrs. Schildhauer. When the dance was ended, she said, the bandmaster took her to his home.

Miss Holland testified:

"As we opened the door there was a sound of hurried motion. Schildhauer turned on the lights and we saw Mrs. Schildhauer lying on the floor in pajamas.

"Schildhauer then opened the door of his bedroom, pulled a sheet off the bed, and there was Bradberry in the bandmaster's pajamas."

Search was believed near an end today for Paul Walton, disbarred attorney, described as Mrs. Schildhauer's first sweetheart after her marriage, with whom she once planned a European elopement. A lawyer representing Walton arranged a conference with police later in the day.

PINCHOT TO SEE ROOSEVELT

HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.—Gov. Pinchot will confer with President-elect Roosevelt at the latter's Hyde Parak home on Sunday. The invitation came from the New Yorker, who at his home said there would be no discussion of politics.

Gov. Pinchot was non-committal today on the subject of his visit, saying that anything about the conference should come from the President-elect.

One subject of conversation between the two Progressives, despite the statement that politics will not enter into the conference, may be the relations which will exist between Gov. Pinchot and the Democratic minority in the Pennsylvania Legislature.

Coolidge Death Shocks Hoover, U. S. Officials

President Notified During Luncheon In White House

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—President Hoover formally notified Congress of the death of former President Calvin Coolidge this afternoon, in a special message which praised the deceased as having spent a lifetime of "devotion to our country."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—President Hoover was said by friends today to have been "terribly shocked" when the news of the death of Calvin Coolidge was given to him at the luncheon table.

The word reached the President from one of his secretaries, who had been informed but a moment before by the Associated Press.

The President prepared to draft a message to Congress notifying it formally of the death of the former President.

The shock of the Coolidge death extended to both houses of Congress. The Senate adjourned at 2 p. m., as a token of respect.

Coolidge Trip Here Recalled

Calvin Coolidge, then President, last visited Pittsburgh October 13, 1927, to speak at the Founder's Day exercises of Carnegie Institute.

The President on his visit was the house guest of R. B. Mellon. He was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge.

In his speech he paid great tribute to the growth and importance of Pittsburgh's industries.

Mr. Coolidge reappointed two Pittsburghers to his cabinet after they had served under President Harding.

They were Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury then, now Ambassador to England, and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

Another Pittsburgher named to a government post by Mr. Coolidge was the late Alexander P. Moore, ambassador first to Spain, then minister to Peru.

Former Gov. John S. Fisher today made this expression:

"I deeply regret Mr. Coolidge's death. I think he was the outstanding influence on American opinion. I was a guest of his several times, in the White House and then in South Dakota when he was on his summer vacation."

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, who was the President's host here in 1927, said:

"Such news is distressing. Mr. Coolidge represented America at its best. He visited here twice to speak att he Founder's Day program, first as Vice President in 1921 and then again in 1927 as President."

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said:

"His death is a great personal loss to the people of the United States, because of the wise counsel he has been able to give."

JOHN COOLIDGE TO JOIN MOTHER

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—John Coolidge, son of former President Calvin Coolidge, was greatly shocked and surprised today when informed of his father's death at Northampton, Mass.

Young Coolidge was at lunch when he received a telephone call from Harry Ross, secretary to the former President.

John, who is employed by the New Haven Railroad, said he and his wife, the daughter of former Gov. John H. Trumbull, would leave immediately for Northampton.

DOCTOR'S RACE TO AID FUTILE; PASSING LAID TO HEART FAILURE

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Calvin Coolidge, thirtieth President of the United States, died suddenly today. He was 60 years old last July 4.

Returning from a shopping tour, Mrs. Coolidge found the body of her husband on the bed in a room at the Beeches, the estate to which he had retired.

His death was wholly unexpected although for the past three weeks Mr. Coolidge had complained of indigestion.

Doctors said death was due to heart failure.

The former President, who up to the time of his death, was the only surviving ex-President of the United States, had gone to his law office as usual this morning.

After a short time in the office Mr. Coolidge became distressed and decided to return home. Harry Ross, his secretary, returned to the Beeches with him. Mrs. Coolidge, meanwhile, had gone to the center of the city shopping.

BEYOND AID WHEN DOCTOR ARRIVES

Mr. Coolidge assured Ross that he would be all right after a short rest and after aiding the former President to the bedroom Ross returned to the first floor of the house to await the return of Mrs. Coolidge.

When Mrs. Coolidge, 20 minutes later, returned, and Ross told her of Mr. Coolidge's illness she went immediately to his bedroom. There she found her husband's body. A doctor was quickly summoned but the former President was beyond aid.

The doctor said Mr. Coolidge had been dead about 15 minutes, so he must have passed away within a few moments after Ross left the room.

The former President had been leading a quiet life since his return to Northampton after his successor in the presidency, Herbert Hoover, was inaugurated on March 4, 1929. His day-to-day program varied little, and it had not changed greatly despite the slight indisposition of the past three weeks.

Ordinarily he spent a part of the day at his law office with occasional writing on the magazine articles which he had contributed from time to time to various publications.

LATE TASKS CHIEFLY LITERARY

Although he emerged from the privacy of retirement to urge the re-election of President Hoover in the recent campaign, once at a mass meeting in New York, Coolidge's chief activities were literary. He wrote numerous magazine articles, largely on political or semi-political subjects, and, for a year, a daily column which he was prevailed upon to write for newspapers was widely syndicated. He had become a director of the New York Life Insurance Company and was a regular attendant at its meetings in New York City.

"The Beeches," the imposing home which he occupied here upon his return from Washington was in sharp contrast with the simplicity which characterized his quarters in the days before his election to the presidency. Then he occupied on half of a duplex house on an unpretentious street, the same place he had lived in practically since his marriage up to and including the time he was Governor of Massachusetts.

The former President took little or no part in state politics since his retirement. Only recently he curtly declined to be drawn into a discussion of the availability of several different men for the post of chairman of the Republican State Committee.

Aside from visits to his birthplace in Plymouth, Vt., and to insurance company meetings in New York, Mr. Coolidge did little traveling. He had given much attention recently to renovating the old homestead where he spent some of the happiest days of his boyhood.

Coolidge Started Life As Farm Boy

Calvin Coolidge came to the presidency of the United States as little known to the nation and the world, perhaps, as any man who ever entered that office.

Two dramatic events in the life of a people—the Boston police strike and the sudden death of President Harding—had lifted him in four brief years from comparative obscurity to the most powerful place in the world.

Except for the publicity attending the police strike, the country had had little opportunity to know him, first because he had not been in a position to reveal his abilities outside of his own state of Massachusetts, and second because of his native reticence.

VAST EXPERIENCE

And yet Mr. Coolidge probably was better equipped by experience and knowledge to take up his duties as chief executive than any of his predecessors who had been called to that office by the death of a President. Of all the Vice Presidents, he alone had sat in at cabinet meetings, thus obtaining at first hand information as to the varied affairs of the government and the reasons which had prompted President Harding in his decisions on major problems, domestic and foreign.

With the passing of Warren G. Harding, the office of President devolved upon Mr. Coolidge, then Vice President. He was a man silent in nature, but demonstrated as strong in emergencies. He was notified of the death of Mr. Harding at his home in Plymouth, Vt.

Calvin Coolidge was the thirtieth President of the United States and the sixth Vice President to succeed to the higher office through the death of a President.

The ancestors of President Coolidge settled in Massachusetts about 1630, or 10 years after the arrival of the Mayflower and the Pilgrims, the tercentenary of which event Mr. Coolidge helped to celebrate. A pioneer community on the Charles River, known as Watertown, saw the first John and Mary Coolidge. Some 50 years later the Coolidges, who lived there, removed to the hilly country on the other side of the Connecticut River, which afterwards became the state of Vermont, where some acres were wrested from the wilderness and placed under cultivation by those sturdy pioneers.

FAMILY FARMERS

Until Calvin grew up to study and practice law, the Coolidges for generations had been farmers. The father of Calvin Coolidge, in later years, ran a country store besides being a farmer.

President Coolidge was born on Independence Day, July 4, 1872, at Plymouth, Vt., a little town situated among the hills, 12 miles from a railroad.

Mr. Coolidge received his early education in the public school of his home town. Later he was sent to the Black River Academy at Ludlow, Vt., and to the St. Johnsbury Academy to prepare for college.

Mr. Coolidge entered Amherst in 1891, worked his way through the college and was graduated in 1895. While in the senior year at college he won a gold medal offered by the Sons of the American Revolution for the best essay on "The Principles of the American Revolution."

After being graduated he went back and worked on his father's farm for a summer, afterwards going to Northampton, where for 20 months he studied law in the office of Hammond & Field. He was admitted to the bar and began practicing law in 1897. He was aged 23 then.

In 1907 Mr. Coolidge put his foot on the lowest rung of the ladder that landed him in the governor's office and afforded him the opportunity that made him known throughout the nation. He was elected a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

As a first-year member of the lower house in the Legislature he did nothing to rivet public attention upon him. He was re-elected and served another year, during which as a member of the Committee on Banks and Banking, he took a conspicuous part in codifying the banking laws of Massachusetts.

During the summer of 1908 he took part in the work of a legislative committee investigating labor problems which finally reported a bill which would have done away with injunctions in labor disputes. It was regarded as a radical measure, but Mr. Coolidge, though known as a conservative, fought hard for its passage. It failed to come out of committee, however, but a less radical measure was passed with his support.

Mr. Coolidge retired from the Legislature, as he was anxious to devote some time to his law practice. He worked at that for one year, when the Republicans of Northampton picked him as their candidate for mayor. Coolidge was elected, and at the end of his first term was re-elected for a second term.

ELECTED TO SENATE

In his second term as mayor, the state leaders of the Republican party felt that they could spare him no longer in the Legislature. He was nominated and elected a member of the Senate and subsequently served four terms in the upper house from 1912 to 1916, the two last years as president of the Senate. During his first term in the Senate he was instrumental as chairman of a special legislative committee, in settling a disastrous strike in the textile industries in Lawrence.

With growing recognition of his ability, Senator Coolidge in the second year of his service in the Upper House, was made chairman of the important committee on railroads. In this capacity he fathered a bill which gave Massachusetts its Public Service Commission and the first real control by the Senate of public utilities' operations and financing. This bill was passed over tremendous opposition from the corporations affected.

The next year and the year following that he was re-elected to the Senate and both years functioned as president of that body.

In 1919 he was elected Governer and was re-elected in 1920.

He was the first Governor of Massachusetts to submit an executive budget to the Legislature. Aside from his handling of the Boston police strike, the outstanding achievement of his administration was the forcing through of legislation providing for a reduction in the number of administrative agencies in the state government, which were cut from more than 100 to 20.

In the early balloting in the Republican national convention in 1920 a few votes were cast for Calvin Coolidge, but he soon was lost sight of in the scramble among leading candidates, which ended with the nomination of Warren G. Harding.

Mr. Coolidge was not seriously thought of when the selection of a candidate for vice president began.

Leaders had put forth Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin, and his selection seemed certain until a delegate from Oregon presented the name of the Governor of Massachusetts.

The Pacific Coast had been having labor troubles of the I. W. W. type, and Mr. Coolidge's handling of the Boston police strike influenced the far-western delegates toward him.

California, near the top of the roll call, demanded an individual poll of the delegates from that state, and every one of them voted for Coolidge. Then a stampede started and Coolidge was nominated amid scenes of wild excitement.

As vice president, Mr. Coolidge worked in close harmony with President Harding. He was the first vice president in history to attend and participate in cabinet meetings. This experience particularly equipped him for the duties of executive when death removed his chief.

When President Harding died in August, 1923, Mr. Coolidge was inducted into office in his father's Vermont home by the dim light of an oil lamp.

Now in office, Mr. Coolidge was confronted with problems of rehabilitation after the World War, and devoted his energies to a program of economy at home and of mutual helpfulness abroad.

GREATEST PLURALITY

Such success attended his first efforts that in 1924 he was elected in his own right by the greatest popular plurality on revord—over 7,000,000. Accepting the mandate as an indorsement for his policies, in his inaugural address of 1925 he again pledged himself to a program of economy and peace, and addressed himself to carrying out the policies he had announced in his first message to Congress in December, 1923.

Mr. Coolidge had long felt that administration should be given a chance to catch up with legislation, in view of the great mass of state and federal statutes that had been placed on the books annually for many years, and the program he announced after an intensive survey of conditions upon entering the White House was not as extensive as some laid down by other Presidents. Yet he regarded it as covering all essential points, and as a result of his management or the soundness of the policies enunciated, he could say by the summer of 1926 that his program had been in a large part achieved. He accomplished tax reductions, decreased the public debt, and brought government expenditures down to the point where he said that little further reduction could be made, save through further decreases in the public debt.

As a part of his fiscal program he completed the funding of the foreign war-time debts, running into billions of dollars, and when Congress adjourned in the summer of 1926, all but one settlement had been ratified—that with France, which waited upon ratification by the French parliament.

Two tax reductions accompanied the decrease in government expenditures, relieving millions from the necessity of paying taxes to the federal government. The suggestions of Mr. Coolidge in this respect were accepted practically without change by Congress in 1925, although his proposals for tax reduction in 1924 were considerably revised through a coalition in Congress of Democrats and Insurgent Republicans.

AIDED BY DEMOCRATS

The Democrats, after the election of 1924, joined with the administration in putting through tax reduction, as they did in the Senate on another measure of outstanding importance, that of consenting to American adherence to the Permanent Court of International Justice. The latter policy was taken over by Mr. Coolidge from his predecessor and ceaselessly urged until his point was gained.

Other legislative policies Mr. Coolidge saw adopted along his own lines until by the summer of 1926 few of major importance remained unenacted. Plans for reorganizing the Shipping Board, for legislation bearing upon railroad consolidations and for other matters of secondary importance were among the proposals that failed.

Under his leadership Congress had set up intermediate banks for extending credits to farmers and had encouraged the co-operative marketing movement, but this was held entirely inadequate by many in state of the middle and northwest.

Another issue which arose in intensive form during the 1926 session was that of prohibition. It was almost continually under discussion in committees and on the floors of the House and Senate for months, but Mr. Coolidge took no part in it. His policy from the first was of enforcing the law, and so long as the prohibition amendment and act stood it was his intention to support them.

Signs of political unrest in the Middle West were seen early in 1926 when a number of administration senators went down to defeat in the primaries. These defeats were attributed variously to the administration's attitude on farm relief, the world court and other issues.

But the President took the position that what he and his supporters had done should speak for itself, and early in the primary campaign he adopted a hands-off policy with regard to fights within the party. Even some of his closest friends and most consistent supporters had to go before the electorate and wage their own battles for renomination, without a word of support from the White House.

CALM DEMEANOR

This policy was a piece with the silent, calm demeanor of the man himself. He was given to quietude in his work as well as in his hours of relaxation, in his pleasures as well as in his sorrows. Worry appeared foreign to his nature. In spite of two great personal sorrows within the space of a few months, added to the tremendous load of his responsibility, he carried the presidency confidently and without apparent mental or physical strain.

The first of the two bereavements whose mark he carried to his dying day beneath the surface of his outward calm fell upon him almost without warning in the summer of 1924. His youngest son, Calvin, Jr., a schoolboy still in his teens, was taken suddenly ill and passed away a few days later.

Then early in 1926 the President's father, Col. John C. Coolidge, breathed his last at his home in Vermont while his son was speeding, to his bedside. With stoic fortitude the chief executive turned back from the graveside to his desk, and smothered his sorrow beneath a load of work.

He was undemonstrative in his play, just as in his work and in his sorrows. A daily walk, accompanied only by Secret Service men, was his only outdoor exercise while he was in the White House, and for vacation diversion he turned to the patient quiet sport of angling. During his summer visit to the Adirondacks in 1926 he spent much of his time with rod and line, and the times were few when he came home empty handed. One of the largest of his catch he presented to Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, who in turn ordered that it be mounted for the state museum.

There is no interpreting of dreams, despite the fact that Joseph, who was smart enough to make a living at any kind of business, made a lucky guess at Pharaoh's dream.

Dreams have no more meaning than the haphazard rush of a runaway team of horses.

And dreams do not go "by contrary." They go as they please and mean nothing. Write that down.

One small railway that borrowed over a million from Uncle Sam through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation cannot pay interest due. You may expect many similar pieces of news, since our "helping out corporations with public money" has been done so lavishly.

Uncle Sam's deficit now amounts to one thousand one hundred and fifty-nine million dollars. In six months past he government has taken in one thousand and twenty-two millions and spent two thousand one hundred and eighty-two millions. That kind of "budget balancing" cannot last indefinitely.

IT MUST interest our government to see such countries as England, France and others abroad balancing their budgets, neatly, some with money that isn't "gold standard." Many Americans wonder whether our dear gold dollar is a little bit too "dear."

POLICE PRAISE Nicholas Paolizzi's courage. Paolizzi had told the truth about a murder and sent a "big shot" gangster to jail for forty years.

Crime doesn't forgive that.

Yesterday morning a passenger took Paolizzi to 281 Mott street, New York City, and as the taxi driver was making change the passenger said "O. K." A man hiding in a doorway opened fire. One bullet shattered Paolizzi's right arm, three others entered his body and probably will kill him. Paolizzi drove away, using his left arm.

Taxi men are careful about testifying in murder cases. It is so easy for any passenger to "put them on the spot."

AARON SCORED BY SCHOOL CRITICS

Realtors' Bureau of Research Defends Tax Criticism

The community research bureau of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board has written to the Board of Public Education expressing resentment at the references to the bureau made in statements by Marcus Aaron, president of the school board.

The school board was to meet late this afternoon, at which time it was believed the bureau's letter would be read. Mr. Aaron had also announced that at this meeting he will suggest to the board the appointment of a committee of citizens to advise the board on matters of business and finance.

AARON ATTACKED

The research bureau letter, signed by R. L. McKallip, chairman, declares Mr. Aaron has misrepresented the bureau's efforts. It states:

"We resent this acrimonious attack, and we cannot believe that the statements (Aaron's) express the opinions of the members of your board formed as the result of our activities before your board."

The attitude of the bureau was that of friendly and helpful cooperation, and the decision of the school board was accepted with regret, but with the respect due to an honest difference of opinion, the letter states.

PROPOSALS MADE

The principal factors in the budget providing for a one-mill tax reduction which the bureau submitted were for use of a large portion of the surplus school funds in the school board treasury at the beginning of the year, and an estimate of 77 per cent tax collections for next year, against the school board's estimate of 75 per cent.

The implication that J. R. Brady, secretary of the bureau, would imperil the lives of school children by the elimination of a $250 a month inspector recently hired, was described in the letter as "ridiculous and entirely contrary to fact."

It was pointed out that the school board previously had 10 employes with a total annual salary of $38,817, whose duties are the supervision of buildings.

The Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League has announced it will have representatives at the school board meeting today.

the floors of the chambers and in corridors discussing the death.

One of the first to comment was Speaker Garner, who told newspapermen:

"I was very fond of Mr. Coolidge personally and knew him very well. He had many characteristics of outstanding Americanism."

Vice President Curtis told reporters:

"I was greatly shocked at the news of the death of former President Coolidge. His passing will be mourned by the peoples of the world. He was a strong man and had the confidence of the people."

Senator McNary, of Oregon, said:

"It is a tragic and national loss and the whole people will regret it."

Senate adjournment came within just a minute after Senator Carter Glass (Dem.), Virginia, who had the floor, announced to the members that he had just been advised of the death of Mr. Coolidge and that he thought the Senate should cease its labors to honor him.

High tribute was paid to Mr. Coolidge in the Senate by its Republican and Democratic leaders—Watson, of Indiana, and Robinson, of Arkansas. Watson said:

"He was a very great man, a very great American and a very great President."

It was the plan of the House leaders to remain in session until a message from the President formally notifying them of the death had been received.

Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, and Speaker Garner conferred with the President by telephone on the procedure.

Speedy Repeal Plan Voted by Senate Group

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—A resolution, proposing immediate repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, was favorably reported today by the Senate Judiciary Sub-committee.

The resolution carried provisions, proposing federal protection of dry states and giving Congress express power to outlaw the saloon.

PLAN CHANGED

The sub-committee, of which Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, is chairman, voted first to submit the repeal question to legislatures of the states for ratification. This was in direct conflict with the platforms of both parties.

Liberal leaders who first proposed ratification by specially elected conventions in the states changed their stand when protests developed over the cost of this system.

SPEEDY ACTION ON BLUE LAW BILLS SEEN

Leaders in Assembly Also Hint Welcome For Repeal Bills

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.—The Senate Law and Order Committee, heretofore the last line of defense against efforts to liberalize the Sunday blue law and any proposals to modify the state dry enforcement act, is to be so constituted in the session of 1933 as to insure the report of any bill on these subjects passed by the House and sent to the Senate for approval.

This prediction is underwritten by Senator James Boyd, of Montgomery County, president pro tem of the Senate, in whose power lies authority to name the committees. His attitude is in harmony with that of Speaker Grover C. Talbot, of the House, who has assured liberal members that the House Law and Order Committee will be so made up that liberal legislation will not be throttled.

TALBOT PROMISE

Representative Frank Hoffman, of the Eleventh District of Allegheny County, was one of the liberals who obtained from Talbot a promise of favorable consideration. In exchange for this commitment Hoffman did not oppose the Talbot-Republican organization reaffirmation of the old rules to require 105 votes to bring a bill from any committee which is hesitant to report a measure.

Boyd today represented himself as a liberal on the blue law and dry enforcement, and said he thought the Senate committee should reflect what he believed an altered sentiment in Pennsylvania toward lessening of present drastic restrictions placed upon Sunday recreation. He said that as he canvassed the new Senate membership he could detect a mandate toward more liberal legislation. It was in that light he interpreted the results of the November election.

In view of Boyd's attitude, it is improbable that Senator Chauncey Parkinson, of Green County, will be renamed as chairman of the Senate Law and Order Committee. Parkinson, from a district regarded until last fall as dry and opposed to modification of the blue laws, was chairman in 1931 and safety buried a blue law modification bill passed by the House.

MAY CHANGE ATTITUDE

In this session it is assumed that Parkinson personally might alter his attitude, but there will be no desire to embarrass him in the event later developments might prove his district was only temporarily getting away from the old regime. Parkinson was not a candidate at the last election.

In the House in 1931 Representative Harry Himes, of Armstrong County, was chairman of the Law and Order Committee. This group was far from liberal on blue law modification, finally being pressed to a point of reporting a bill which only indirectly affected the subject.

If Himes is named again this session it will be with the explicit understanding that his committee shall report out either the Blue Law bill of Representative Joseph G. Steedle, of Allegheny, or that of Representative Louis Schwartz, of Philadelphia. Both bills seek the same end by somewhat different means. Sunday recreation under local option plans between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m.

On both House and Senate sides Talbot and Boyd, together with advisers from Republican organization ranks, were busy today with the selection of committees. In both Houses final decision will be reached by Monday night, and the numerous bills introduced this week will be referred to the appropriate bodies.

MANSFIELD PROBLEM

In the Senate there is considerable doubt whether Senator William D. Mansfield, of Allegheny County, will be continued as chairman of the Committee on Education. Mansfield, because of his independent course, has antagonized some regular Republicans.

In explanation of the desire to shelve him, it is set forth that his right to sit in the Senate while a member of the County Board of Allegheny County is under fire, and that it might be inadvisable to name him to an important position in the Senate. The Committee on Education promises to be one of the most powerful of Senate groups during the present session due to the agitation for a change in the Edmonds act, governing teachers' salaries and the contributions by the state to local school districts.

Book Assailing Hoover Repudiated By Author

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—A repudiation by John Hamill of his book entitled "Strange Career of Mr. Hoover—Under Two Flags," was in Supreme Court records today.

An affidavit, signed by Hamill June 4 but not made known generally until yesterday, said that while the material gathered for the book contained statements that were true in themselves, they were used in such a way as to lead to false conclusions concerning the President.

In addition, Hamill took the witness stand in a suit yesterday and said he was sorry he wrote the volume. His attorney asked:

"Do you repudiate the book?"

"Yes."

"Is it entirely false?"

"I wouldn't say that, but the 'slant' on it is false and my interpretations were in error in some instances, as I discovered in re-checking the facts. I am sorry I wrote it."

The suit was brought by James J. O'Brien, former policeman who financed the book, against Hamill and the publisher, William Faro, Inc. O'Brien seeks an accounting of the profits.

Hamill said he met O'Brien at Democratic national headquarters just before the close of the 1928 campaign. O'Brien promised the affidavit said, to get financial backing for a book that would "tear down" Mr. Hoover's political career.

High Tribute Paid Pittsburgh By Coolidge on Visit Here

"People have come here from our own country and from many distant lands, until the city with its environs, as the population in excess of 100,000,000. Your manufacturers of iron and steel stand first in all the world, and you hold the leading place in coal and coke, in glass and electrical machinery. Your mines and mills produce an enormous tonnage, which, it is claimed, exceed the total rail and water tonnage of the five greatest seaports in the world—New York, Boston, London, Antwerp and Hamburg. You are the fifth city in the nation in bank capital and surplus, and your clearing house exchanges of $9,198,000,000 for last year put you in sixth place.

"Such a development as has come to Pittsburgh is representative of the material prosperity of many of our industrial centers. Its rewards are widely distributed by reason of high wages among the great mass of the people. While the ranks of unskilled labor have not yet come into their full enjoyment, their condition is greatly improved over what they ever before received. The question for the determination of the American people is no longer whether they will be able to secure prosperity, but rather what use they will make of their prosperity. It is only in its use that we can justify its existence. The answer will undoubtedly be found in the religion, the education, and the art of the people."

'Torch' Slayer Calmly Meets Death in Chair

ROCKVIEW PENITENTIARY, BELLEFONTE, Pa., Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Joe Hudock, Luzerne County "pyre murderer," today was electrocuted in Rockview Penitentiary for the killing of Stanley E. Yurich last May 15.

Hudock was pronounced dead at 7:05 a. m., four minutes after the first charge was sent through his body. Only one charge was applied, at 7:01 a. m.

Entering the death chamber, Hudock walked directly to the electric chair and sat down in a nonchalant manner. While guards strapped him up, he watched intently without a word. As they stepped back, Hudock spat a huge wad of chewing gum out of his mouth at the feet of Warden Stanley P. Ashe who superintended the execution.

Just before the charge was applied, Hudock repeated the Lord's prayer in a loud intonation without any apparent emotion in his voice.

He breakfasted this morning on grapefruit, ham and eggs, toast and coffee—all he wanted for his last meal.

Hudock died in a building on which he had frequently gazed while previously an inmate of Rockview for three years, serving a sentence for second degree murder.

The murder of Yurish occurred early May 15. He was shot as he was transferring gasoline from his own car into the one driven by Hudock. His body was soaked in gasoline and burned.

PROSECUTOR'S HOME HELD UP

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Two robbers with drawn weapons invaded the home of District Attorney Buron Fitts and, after listening to Fitts describe the penalties which could be inflicted on them for robbery, escaped with his bodyguard's revolver and $122 taken from Fitts and two of four dinner guests.

The robbers last night forced their way into the dining room, where Mr. and Mrs. Fitts, their 6-year-old daughter, Mary Lou; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Davis, Lindon Foster and William Shunk, bodyguard of Fitts, were eating dinner. Fitts asked the robbers:

"What's the matter? Are you boys out of work? I'll give you something to eat. It's a dangerous thing you are doing. You can get seven years to life for this."

One of the robbers said:

"Aw, shut up. We mean business. All we want is your money."

The robbers forced Shunk to surrender his revolver and $80. Fitts' pockets yielded $2, and Davis, a brother-in-law of Fitts, gave the robbers $40.

They backed from the room and escaped in a motor car.

5 BOYS HELD IN ROBBERIES

Five boys were held for court today on a charge of larceny following their arrest early today by West Homestead police. They were given a hearing before Justice of the Peace J. C. Miller, of Homestead.

A 15-year-old boy was the first arrested and, according to police, confessed to robbing the clothing store of Albert Jaffe, 335 Eighth avenue, Homestead. He implicated the other four youths, who were: Albert Essney, 17, 345 Fourteenth avenue; Dan Gallegher, 17, 112 Fifteenth avenue, and George and Joseph Gamet, brothers, 18 and 21 respectively, of 367 Fourteenth avenue, all of Homestead.

Police said they found several hundred dollars' worth of new clothing when they searched the Gamets' home.

Coolidge Born In Leap Year; Omen Of Bad Luck

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Calvin Coolidge was the first of the Presidents to be born on the Nation's natal day. On the other hand three of the Presidents died on July 4, Adams, Jefferson and Monroe.

Believers in luck and omens found some ground for apprehension in the fact that President Coolidge was born in leap year. Leap years seems to have been unfortunate for the Presidents. The Presidential offspring of leap years have been Taylor, who died in office; Pierce, who gained neither fame nor a second term; Johnson, the only President impeached, and Wilson, who was stricken in office.

It is also to be noted that Mr. Coolidge succeeded to the presidential chair on a Friday, which has a record of having been a dark, drear, unlucky day for Presidents.

Tyler, Polk and Pierce, died on Friday; Lincoln was shot on Friday. President Harding was inaugurated on Friday. Of three other Presidents who came into office on Friday, one was assassinated, and two, John Quincy Adams and Pierce, failed of re-election.

T. R. DEAD JUST 14 YEARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—The sudden death of former President Calvin Coolidge today at his Northampton (Mass.) home lacked one day of being 14 years after the death of one of his predecessors in the presidency, Theodore Roosevelt.

The death of former President Roosevelt also was sudden. It occurred January 6, 1919, at the Roosevelt home at Oyster Bay, N. Y., and although Col. Roosevelt had been ill for two months of rheumatism, his passing in his sleep in the early morning took by surprise his physicians as well as others who had been with him.

In former President Roosevelt's case, death was attributed to a clot of blood which detached itself from a vein and entered the lungs.

Al Smith Shocked By Coolidge Death

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith declared himself deeply shocked and deeply grieved today when informed of the death of former President Coolidge. Said Smith:

"I had a strong admiration for him. Since he left Washington I have been pleasantly associated with him. I am deeply shocked and deeply grieved to hear of his death."

Coolidge Famous For Sage Remarks

Former President Known as Man Of Few Words

President Coolidge was known through his many years in public life as a man of few words but plenty of action.

Among sayings for which he was noted were these:

"We ned more of the office desks and less of the show windows in politics."

"I am not one of those who believe votes are to be won by misrepresentations, skillful presentations of half-truths and plausible deductions from false premises."

"When you substitute patronage for patriotism administration breaks down."

"Politics is not an end but a means, not a product but a process; it is the art of government and like other values, it has counterfeits, upon which so much emphasis has been placed as to obscure the original."

"Every native-born American is potentially a president."

"Our public men, as a class, are inspired by honorable and patriotic motives, desirous only of faithful execution of their trust."

"Public men must expect criticism and endure false charges."

"Public business is transacted on a higher plane than private."

"Our public schools have made education possible for all and ignorance a disgrace."

"The classic of all classics is the Bible."

"The discontent in modern industry is the result of a too narrow outlook."

"Democracy not only ennobled man, but it has ennobled industry. For we are working toward the day when equal honor shall fall to equal endeavor, whether it be exhibited in the office or in the shop."

"Liberty is not bestowed; it is an achievement; but it comes to no people who have not passed through the successive stages which always precede it."

"Wisdom and experience have increased our admiration for the Declaration of Independence."

"Laws do not make reforms, but reforms make laws."

"If knowledge be wrongly used, civilization commits suicide."

2 Rings Returned To Holdup Victim

LYNN, Mass.—(INS.)—"We can't use the rings. If we get a break we'll return the cash," said a note received by Frank E. Holland, chain store manager, in a letter containing two wedding rings stolen by bandits who took $20 from his pocket.

LAWYERS' BANK FUNDS SIFTED

The bank accounts of 14 members of the Allegheny County bar were under surveillance during December by the Bar Association's committee investigating their professional conduct, it was disclosed today in a letter received by the County Commissioners from Attorney Donald Anderson, counsel to the committee.

The letter presented the Commissioners with a bill for $792, of which $212 is due Main & Co., certified public accountants, who checked the 14 bank accounts, acocrding to Anderson.

RIVAL PRAISED BY ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt was "inexpressably shocked" at the news of Calvin Coolidge's death. He said:

"The nation suffers a great loss in his sudden and untimely passing. I shall never forget his generous and friendly telegram to me in 1920 when he defeated me for vice president.

"The deepest sympathy of Mrs. Roosevelt and myself goes out to his family."

FIVE-DAY WEEK STRIKE HINTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—The 30-hour week was urged today by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, as the only possible way to relieve unemployment and to avoid a federal dole for millions of jobless. He warned organized labor "would invoke the universal strike, if necessary, to bring about this objective."

Appearing before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee to urge approval of the Black bill for a six-hour day and a five-day week, Green offered startling figures regarding the extent of unemployment. He said:

"The 30-hour week, universally applied in business and industry, would put 6,500,000 persons back at once. Organized labor will invoke the universal strike, if necessary, to bring about this objective.

"It can only be brought about by economic force or by legislative force. That's the only language a lot of employers understand."

MILITIA CHECKS MINE WAR

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Not a picket was sighted as United Mine Workers traveled from their homes to Christian County's mines today under escort of National Guard guns. Members of the rival union of "Progressives" were not in evidence.

Automobiles and trucks loaded with workers and convoyed by troops rolled up to the Tovey, Kincaid and Hewittville mines without opposition. Other soldiers guarded the highways. Deputy sheriffs patrolled downtown streets.

It was a quiet night. There were no bombings, sniping or heckling such as kept mining communities in turmoil Tuesday night and necessitated the return of the militiamen, who guarded the mine fields for three and a half months last autumn.

Twenty persons, five of them women, remained in County Jail on charges of murder as a result of the killing of Vincent Rodems, a Springfield working miner, and Mrs. Emma Comerlotta, wife of a Progressive member, in Kincaid Tuesday.

STORY BRINGS IN BARROWS

The recent announcement in the Sun-Telegraph-Father Cox story, "Wheelbarrows Wanted," brought a lot of these working utilities from their hiding places, and the "father of the jobless" was given a supply sufficient for all of his current needs.

In Father Cox's activities just now, however, it is a matter of "what have you?" He needs everything—food, furniture, clothing and money—and needs it more than ever before because the calls for help are greater and greater every day.

It is seldom that Father Cox turns away anybody who really needs help, but the conditions are getting acute. Donations of money and supplies are not coming in as easy as a year ago. Many who formerly donated are themselves in a position today where they really need assistance. Yet, the donations have not entirely stopped. Father Cox is still able to carry on, but is working under a heavy strain.

These are some of the reasons why the Sun-Telegraph continues the subscription campaign for the benefit of his fund. Every subscription for the Sun-Telegraph that comes in on the blank on this page gives to Father Cox a liberal cash commission.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

U-BOAT SKIPPER TELLS DRAMA OF SEA FIGHT

Capt. Wilhelm Meyer, retired commander of the German submarine U-77 which sank the British transport Tuscania February 5, 1918, today continues his narrative of the torpedoing of the troop-ship with the loss of 204 American lives.

In the first of two dispatches written exclusively for International News Service, Capt. Meyer yesterday related how he discovered and attacked the Tuscania off the Irish coast. The second article follows:

By CAPT. WILHELM MEYER

Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—When we returned to the surface after torpedoing the Tuscania, we saw the steamer's stern begin to sink slowly.

It looked like the spectre of a horse rearing its hind legs.

The doomed ship was visible to us only because of the searchlights of the destroyers, which had been convoying it.

'LIKE FILM DRAMA'

It was like sitting in a motion picture theater, viewing a silent film drama, except that we could not see a single human soul.

This was probably due to the fact that we were too far away and because the Tuscania's lifeboats were lowered on the port side, while we were on the starboard.

Even stranger, we did not know the identity of our victim. The minutes seemed like days before we found out.

Suddenly our radio operator picked up a frantic SOS, giving the name of the Tuscania, and we suddenly realized we had hit a much bigger vessel than we had at first surmised.

ERROR IN POSITION

Incidentally, the position given by the radio signals from the Tuscania differed from our calculations by half a degree north and one-quarter of a degree west.

We put this down to the probability that the Tuscania's officers were greatly excited. With the number of destroyers standing by, the position scarcely mattered very much, anyhow.

The Tuscania's convoys apparently believed we had fled after the torpedoing, because not a single effort was made to sink us.

In view of the stupendous improvements to submarines since the World War, I believe two submarines working together could easily torpedo an entire transport, including the convoys, making a total of eight or ten ships. I say this in the light of my experience with the Tuscania.

SUB FIRES AGAIN

In order to hasten the sinking of the Tuscania, which, according to her radio messages, was not proceeding rapidly, we determined to loose a third torpedo.

I maneuvered my submarine closer around the Tuscania's port side and, without submerging, fired another missile at exactly 8:49 p. m. We missed, however, possibly because of the darkness.

Immediately one of the destroyers started full-steam in our direction, as if it had sighted us, and we dived like a duck.

When we came to the surface again, a considerable distance away, we were able to see with glasses that many ships were still around the spot where the Tuscania had been, but the stricken ship itself was no longer visible.

On Feburary 7 we picked up a British admiralty radio message confirming that the Tuscania had been sunk.

SHOCK TO U. S.

After we returned to our home port on February 21, we learned of the sensation the sinking of the ship had caused in the United States.

From my detailed report on the encounter, the German admiralty on February 24 closed the Tuscania incident with the following new communique:

"New submarine successes! Nineteen thousand gross tons.

"Among the sunken tonnage was the British transport Tuscania, 14,348 tons, loaded with American troops.

"The Tuscania, shortly before its entrance into the Irish Sea and despite a most effective convoy guard, was cleverly shot out from among a large troop transport, at the head of which it was steaming."

Name Baby Boy After Roosevelt

WEIRTON, W. Va., Jan. 5.—Franklin Delano Manios is the name of Weirton's dream baby. Childless 10 years, Louis Manios dreamed that he would become the father of a baby boy, and when the stork left the youngster, the happy father asked President-elect Roosevelt for permission to name the child for him. Roosevelt wrote:

"I am glad to give my name to your boy. I hope he will grow up to be a credit to his father and mother all the days of his life."

Press Agent Sues Telephone Company

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—(Universal.)—Because the Southern California Telephone Company listed his name under "cosmetic business," Harry Hammond Beall, Los Angeles press agent, today had filed suit in Superior Court for $520,000 damages.

Beall became annoyed when he received repeated calls asking for cosmetic service. Jocular remarks by friends humiliated him, Beall says, and damaged the reputation he had built up over a period of 20 years.

Girl Leaps to Death From Apartment

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Christiana Vance, 17, daughter of Louis Vance, of Detroit, killed herself last night, police said, by leaping through the window of her sister's third-floor apartment.

SUNDAY MOVIE TO AID NEEDY

Another Sunday movie show to obtain food for the needy is scheduled for Sunday at the Warner Sheridan Square Theater, East Liberty. This time the affair is being given under the auspices of the Ermerson Club of Sacred Heart Church, Shady avenue and Walnut street, and all of the food donated will be distributed to the destitute and near destitute on the lists of this club which specializes in welfare activities. The use of the theater, films and the services of the operators, stage hands and other attendants are all donated.

The feature will be the talking picture success "Amateur Daddy" with Warner Baxter, and the program will be amplified with newsreels, comedies and short subjects. The show will be continuous from 2 o'clock p. m until 10 p. m.

Donations of food will be the only tickets required—cans and standard package goods preferred. Every person attending must present a food donation at the door and the sponsors of the benefit hope that the public will be liberal—not being satisfied with bringing a single can or package of anything unless it is tea or coffee or some food commodity that commands a higher price than the average canned goods. All kinds of canned goods are wanted, but clothing is not requested. Children under 16 will not be admitted unless accompanied by parents.

URGES MARINE FLEET FOR U. S.

Building up an American merchant marine and rehabilitation of our present ships were urged in the fight to regain prosperity by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, in an address before the Sixth National Merchant Marine Conference in Washington yesterday. He said:

"It is my belief that this conference would do well to establish ways and means to rekindle a national consciousness on behalf of American shipping."

One "common sense" reason for doing this, in Robertson's opinion, is that the United States has goods to sell and deliver to the world and should "make our own deliveries in our own ships."

Wealthy Farmer Slain and Robbed

OELWEIN, Ia., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Ashley Downing, 80, wealthy farmer, was found shot to death last night in his home where he lived alone. His wallet, in which he was reported to have carried large sums of money, apparently was the only article taken from the house.

Twin Girls Born In Different Years

HAMPTON, Va., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Perhaps the stork does not realize what a perplexing problem he brought along with the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Nat Harrell.

The first child was born at 11:40 p. m., December 31, 1932, and her twin sister at 12:05 a. m., January 1, 1933.

So, just to keep the records straight, when the young ladies grow up to where it matters, probably they'll reach a compromise on when to celebrate. But just now, until their names are chosen, they are Misses '32 and '33.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

BOGUS MONEY RING BARED BY U. S.

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The story of a gigantic counterfeit ring whose swindles were perpetrated in virtually every country in the world, and which probably is dealing in many millions of dollars, was unfolded today by Chief W. H. Moran, of the United States Secret Service.

Following the arrest of "Count" Enrique Dezow von Buelow, whose real name is Heins Enrique de how, aviator, and Dr. Valentine gory Burtan, specialist on the of Polyclinic Hospital, rged with passing counterfeit 0 Federal Reserve notes, Moran closed that the real story has t yet been told, nor is it known the secret service. He said:

"The men are telling only what they know we can prove, that is that counterfeit bills were passed in Chicago. They are lying. We hope to get the real story."

'PERFECT BILLS'

Moran said the bills were made in a foreign country and probably are the most perfect specimens of counterfeit ever passed in the United States.

"Wise men" in chicago, through whom they were exchanged and the best banking experts of Europe, the Orient and the United States, were completely taken in and pronounced the bills genuine, he said.

Moran said that in December Von Beulow or De Chow, approached what were described as "wise boys" in Chicago with the story that he was able to produce a large sum of money in $100 bills from the estate of a deceased bootlegger. The family feared that the money would be traced to illegal sources and wanted to have it exchanged. Moran said:

"Von Beulow submitted them samples in the amount of $10,000. The bills were taken to a number of banking experts in Chicago and were pronounced genuine. The 'wise boys' then agreed to take all that Von Beulow could produce."

QUICK ARRESTS

Dr. Burtan's arrest by secret service agents followed within 24 hours the seizure of "Count" Enrique Dechow von Buelow, who was taken into custody at Newark Airport Wednesday night as the Montreal plane landed.

The physician, who told authorities he was born in Russia, was arrested by Agents R. A. Horton and Robert L. Godby at his office-residence. He was booked on a charge of counterfeiting.

Von Buelow had spent some time in Montreal before his flight to Newark, it was said, and is alleged to have aided in transporting some $30,000 in bogus bills to Canada. The "Count," once married to Mrs. Lottie Brenner, wealthy widow of a Chicago alderman, and once deported from America, was being held pending his arraignment later in the day.

EX-POLICEMAN'S DEATH MYSTERY

Thomas (Hooks) Conley, 38, a former policeman, died in South Side Hospital today, where he was removed after being found unconscious in the hallway at 3002 Carson street.

Although his face and head were bruised, homicide detectives said they did not believe his injuries were due to foul play.

Conley was dismissed from the police force seven months ago, accused of being absent from his beat in Mt. Washington. He had been living at 2269 Almont street.

An autopsy was ordered by the Coroner.

Conley's brother, Daniel Conley, also a policeman, was murdered 10 years ago on the Hill by a Negro holdupman known as "Pistol Pete," later executed.

WIDOW HANGS SELF IN SOUTH

Believed to have been despondent over her failure to recover her health, the reputedly wealthy Mrs. Edna Freed, 48, who left Pittsburgh two months ago to spend the winter in Miami Beach, Florida, ended her life by hanging in a hospital there late yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

A nurse found the body of Mrs. Freed, widow of Dr. Raymond Freed, hanging from an improvised noose made of her nightgown. Dr. Freed, a prominent physician, died in 1924. His widow's death was pronounced suicide by J. B. Rowland, investigator for the state's attorney.

According to Mrs. Freed's attorney, Howard Neely, she had been in ill health for some time.

Mrs. Freed leaves two sisters, Mrs. Charles Minetti and Miss Agnes Lonergan. The body is to be brought to Pittsburgh for burial.

Boy Killed Playing With Christmas Toy

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Like the little toy soldier and little toy dog that were laid away forever, the scooter which Santa brought to 7-year-old Charles Huidler for Christmas, was put aside today. Speeding along on his new toy not far from his home last evening, the child rode out into the street and was struck by a car. He was instantly killed.

Jap War Planes Bomb Chinese Entrenchments

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, Jan. 5.—Chinese forces were entrenched today along the west bank of the Shih-Ho River between Shanhaikwan and Chingwangtao, according to advices received here.

Both Shanhaikwan and Chingwangtao were reported quiet, although earlier in the day Japanese planes bombed the Chinese positions.

Japanese forces now controlling Shanhaikwan, which was taken from the Chinese in three terrific assaults, were estimated at 6,000.

Since the Japanese have commandeered animals and carts, it seemed evident they are preparing for a drive to the northwest. The Chinese were reported preparing to withdraw inland. The Japanese commander, it was stated, insists the Chinese troops remain west of Chansli.

Japanese officials revised upward their estimate of casualties, admitting 94 Japanese had been killed in the fighting, including four officers.

American Naval and Army officers proceeded to Shanhaikwan to investigate the Sino-Japanese operations. This area is now quiet and the lull in fighting produced a lull in the communications between the Chinese and Japanese officials.

FAY MURDER TRIAL PUSHED

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—With Larry Fay, one-time "boss racketeer" and Broadway playboy buried under the watchful eyes of underworld acquaintances, authorities today pressed for an early first degree murder trial of Edward D. Maloney, doorman at Fay's garish Casa Blanca night club.

Maloney was in the Tombs, indicted for Fay's slaying by rapid-fire grand jury action. The doorman is alleged to have shot the taxicab and milk racketeer in a drink-clouded quarrel over $67 due him in wages.

Funeral services had been fixed by Fay's wife and mother for today, but intimates had the body removed from a mortuary and taken to the Westchester Cemetery yesterday. It is customary for detectives to be on hand in force for the funeral of a "public enemy"—and Fay was listed No. 3 in that class—but the shift caught police unwares.

Kansas Loses Battle To Cut Gas Rates

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 5.—(INS.)—A three-judge Federal Court today permanently enjoined the Kansas Public Service Commission from putting into effect an order reducing natural gas pipe line rates from 40 to 30 cents a thousand cubic feet.

The decision virtually brings to an end a gas rate "war" between the state and the Henry L. Doherty gas interests.

SEA PYRE OF 18, LUXURY LINER RUIN, IN TOW

International News Service.

WEYMOUTH, England, Jan. 5.—Smouldering ruin of what once was a $20,000,000 luxury liner, the hulk of the French steamship L'Atlantique, drifted in close to shore this afternoon.

The ship, destroyed by a mysterious blaze which cost the lives of 18 members of the crew, was met by British tugs. Hawsers were thrown about stanchions on the liner's smoking decks and an attempt was made to tow the ship into the nearest port.

SABOTAGE HINTED

PARIS, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Although no cause for the burning of the liner L'Atlantique has been officially announced, rumors were current today that sabotage may have been responsible.

The newspaper La Liberte indicated sabotage may have been the cause while the newspaper Le Matin said the recurrence of French tragedies at sea made them too "startling to appear accidental."

Meanwhile, at Cherbourg, Capt. Schoof, master of the liner, undeterred by doubts expressed by naval authorities, was preparing to try to salvage what remained of the ship. He and the owners believed if the bulkheads hold there was a chance to save the hull and the machinery.

QUIZ SEEKS CAUSE

Leon Meyer, minister of merchant marine, opened an official inquiry into the cause of the outbreak, now a mystery. All 210 survivors, officers and crew who were taking the ship from Bordeaux to Le Havre without passengers for overhaul, will give evidence.

Many said they were most impressed by the rapidity with which the fire spread. Within two hours after it broke out in the first-class cabins early yesterday practically the whole ship was ablaze and Second Capt. Gustave Gaston said "visibility was at zero."

While some of the survivors were inclined to attribute the start to a short circuit, officers did not confirm this, saying they had no idea what was the cause. The Atlantique, launched only 15 months ago for the Bordeaux-Buenos Aires service, was the fourth large vessel of the French Merchane Marine to burn in four years.

Search for Cashier Gone Since Monday

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Relatives of Ralph Rentz, 32, Hollidaysburg, cashier of the Hollidaysburg Trust Company, today asked state and local police to aid them in searching for Rentz, who has been missing since Monday. Bank authorities said the accounts of Rentz were in good shape.

Microscopes Taken By College Thieves

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Thieves who broke into the biology department of Temple University may be expected to see things. They stole four microscopes valued at about $200 apiece.

SHERIFF FEARS VIOLENCE AT FARM SALES

International News Service.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Jan. 5.—Admitting he is "sitting on a powder barrel," Sheriff Horace Gwinner today planned an appeal to state police for aid in conducting future foreclosure sales.

Members of a newly formed Farmers' Protective Association yesterday forced the sale of a farm at $1.18 to satisfy an $1,800 judgment.

More than 200 stern-faced members of the association ranged around the sheriff as he knocked down the farm, livestock and six-room furnished home of John Hensel. The sheriff said he sold the property at the ridiculously low price in order to avert bloodshed.

Meanwhile, Hensel and his three motherless children are in possession of the farm. Hensel was given a 99-year lease on the property.

MORTGAGE MORATORIUM

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Embattled farmers, rebelling against foreclosure proceedings which would sweep away both their homes and their means of making a living, succeeded today in establishing a virtual mortgage moratorium in Plymouth County.

The violence which brought about the moratorium was representative of demonstrations in other parts of the "Tall Corn State," and observers predicted that foreclosure proceedings would be halted in many other Iowa counties.

After 800 infuriated farmers stopped a sheriff's sale at Le Mars, Plymouth County seat, Judge C. W. Pitts hastily called the County Bar Association into session. The members voted to withhold foreclosure proceedings for one month. At the end of that period, another meeting will be held to determine whether the "moratorium" shall be extended.

STATE LAW SOUGHT

Another significant move was Judge Pitts' recommendation to Gov.-elect C. L. Herring that a law be passed by the Legislature which, in effect, would establish a state-wide moratorium on farm debts.

In their attempt to prevent sale of the farm of John A. Johnson to the New York Life Insurance Company, which submitted a $30,000 bid, or $3,000 less than the amount of the mortgage, the farmers threatened to lynch Herbert S. Martin, representative of the insurance company.

The farm was sold, however, when his company gave Martin telegraphic permission to raise the bid to the amount of the mortgage.

Seek Knoxville Girl Missing for Week

Blue-eyed Annabell Brickner, 18, missing from her home at 126 Knox avenue, Knoxville, was the object of a state-wide search by police today.

The girl has been missing since December 28. Five feet, two inches tall, Miss Brickner had brown hair. She wore a black fur trimmed coat.

Police Intervene In Jobless Fight For Free Gas

The battle between the Peoples Natural Gas Company and a group calling itself the Unemployed Council of Hazelwood seemed settled today, temporarily at least, with intervention by the police.

The unemployed have been chasing off or stoning the work of company men who have been shutting off the service of those whose bills were unpaid. But today, while an unemployed group watched, police guarded the gas men operating in Dykes and Mansion streets.

An official of the gas company said the company's lines were being "tapped" for free gas and that the workmen were eliminating this condition.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR CAR FIRM

The Pressed Steel Car Company, largest producer of railroad cars in the Pittsburgh district, a corporation with assets valued at more than $47,000,000 and normally employing 11,500 men, is threatened with receivership.

Two bondholders today applied for the appointment of a receiver in the Court of Chancery at Trenton, N. J.

The complainants were Isadore Tachna, of New York City, and J. Lester Albertson, of New Rochelle, N. Y. They charged that bonds due on January 1 were not paid.

H. P. Hoffstot, vice president of the company, declared today that he had heard nothing of the filing of the suit and that the company would fight the attempt to impose a receivership.

Curb Parking Fine Contested in Court

HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—In the court's hands today lies the decision whether a motorist who parked his car more than six inches from a curb should pay a $10 fine and costs.

Counsel for J. J. Moore, of Harrisburg, yesterday argued that a municipal ordinance requiring such parking is not enforceable unless warning signs are posted.

Man Hangs Himself Near Greensburg

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 5.—The body of John Young, 49, of Hempfield Township, father of two, was discovered hanging in his parents' barn near here today.

Heifetz Triumphs In Berlin Concert

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Jascha Heifetz, appearing in a concert here for the first time since 1927, achieved an unprecedented triumph last night in that the audience interrupted with applause after each movement of the Mozart, Beethoven and Brahms violin concertos which he played with the philharmonic orchestras.

Berlin audiences ordinarily refrain from demonstrations until all movements of a concerto have been played.

GASOLINE TAX BOOST FOUGHT

Taking a stand against increase in the state gasoline or automobile license charges and all moves to divert motor revenues to purposes other than highway construction and maintenance, the Pittsburgh Motor Club's president, Fred A. Fichtel, has issued a statement including this assertion:

"The motor vehicle is the most heavily taxed piece of property in the United States and the fuel upon which it operates is the most heavily taxed commodity."

Pepsodent Antiseptic makes $1 equal $3 in fighting colds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

PLEASE stop a minute and ask yourself a question. The right answer saves you $2 out of every $3. What kind of antiseptic do you use when fighting colds—infection—unpleasant breath?

Two kinds of antiseptics

There are only two kinds. In one group you have the mouth antiseptic that kills germs only when used full strength. In the other group you have Pepsodent Antiseptic—utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough to kill germs in 10 seconds even when it is diluted with 2 parts of water. Pepsodent is at least three times as powerful as other leading antiseptics. Hence, it goes 3 times as far—gives you 3 times as much for your money—and gives you greater protection against sore throat colds. Here's a fine way both to save money and safeguard your health—something you can't afford to overlook.

Use Pepsodent for safety

When choosing your antiseptic, be sure you choose the one that kills germs even when it is mixed with water. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be sure! Be safe—and save your money.

IMPURE BREATH

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

Some of the 50 different uses for this modern antiseptic

Sore Throat Colds	Cuts and Abrasions
Head Colds	After Shaving
Smoker's Throat	Chapped Hands
Bad Breath	Dandruff

Now that the last ball for some time to come is over, everyone will rest a bit, and then become interested in a variety of things, ranging from trips to the South for some to welfare work, indoor tennis and bowling and skating, that comfort which is always with us, bridge, and informal affairs.

There'll be several simple wedding ceremonies to interest us, too. One will take place tomorrow in Germantown, Philadelphia, and another Saturday, here in Pittsburgh.

The George S. Batons and their daughter Louise left yesterday for Philadelphia to attend the wedding of Catherine Willson Baton, the Germantown Henry Edgar Batons' daughter, and Frank Scott Sayers, of Pittsburgh.

After the honeymoon, Mr. Sayers and his bride will be in Pittsburgh. They'll reside in Cambridge Court, Edgeworth.

To Make Home Here

Emma Binns, daughter of the Uniontown James G. Binnses, will come to Pittsburgh Saturday for her wedding. She will marry Henry Vinton Overholt, of Scottdale, son of the late A. C. Overholts, on Saturday.

After the ceremony at 5 o'clock in Calvary Church, Mr. Overholt and his bride will leave for Honolulu. There'll be entertainments for the bride-to-be, but they will be small, Mrs. Theodore W. Friend, Jr., tells me. Mrs. Friend, you know, will be the bride's only attendant, and Torrance Overholt, of New York, will be his brother's best man.

Woman's Alliance Told Of Charity Rackets

Various forms of unsuspected rackets were described to the Woman's Alliance of the Frst Unitarian Church yesterday by George H. Dennison, financial division manager of the Better Business Bureau of Pittsburgh. Since the world has become charity conscious many rackets are conducted in the name of charity, he said, and in many instances what that particular charity receives is only one hundredth of 1 per cent.

Sponsors of movements very often receive next to nothing and the promoters make thousands of dollars on a project, Mr. Dennison said, explaining the difference between racketeering and promoting. Anything over 15 per cent profit is racketeering, he stated.

RETURN OF ELEGANCE IS NOTED IN THE NEW EVENING COSTUMES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Jan. 5.—In spite of all current propaganda for clothes and prices "in keeping with the times," Paris is seeing a distinct tendency toward the return of elegance. This lavishness in the matter of clothes, furs and jewels is especially noticeable in certain aspects: In the increased length of formal daytime clothes, in the reappearance of dresses and coats of distinct formal "afternoon variety," and in the increased formality of evening clothes.

WITHIN THE last few weeks, at the night club openings and theater first-nights, Paris women have shown a new favoritism for clothes that could in no way be confused with dinner dresses, or what America calls the Sunday night dress. Paris evening dresses these days have backs as low as ever and skirts as long as ever; fabrics are as gorgeous as ever, and most evening wraps are heavy with furs. The only indication of tempered lines in formal clothes is in the preponderous of dresses with covered shoulders, or with little sleeves.

THE MAINBOCHER dress in today's sketch is one of the new Paris gowns that fits into the present scheme of formal clothes. Done in dark, dark violet velvet, the dress falls smoothly from the shoulders, folds in about the waistline, then over smooth hips to a full, trailing hem. The sleeves are little puffed affairs that do not appear until the shoulder is well covered, but the back is in classic, deep V-shape.

OPERA, STAGE STARS :-: 'Emperor Jones' Excerpts, 'Pinafore' Selections :-: ON THE AIR TONIGHT

Burns-Allen With Rudy On WCAE

Rudy Vallee's variety hour, featuring George Burns and Gracie Allen; Allen and Shaw, long favorites of vaudeville; Greta Keller, Viennese songster, in a return engagement, and the initial performance of a light opera company organized by the crooning maestro, heads tonight's ether offerings.

The program—on WCAE at 8—is further distinguished by an excerpt from "The Emperor Jones," marking the first time any of Eugene O'Neill's dramatic work has been broadcast and preceding by two days the Metropolitan premiere of the opera based on the play.

Miss Keller

The light opera company, presenting selections from the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "Pinafore," has Wilbur Evans, baritone; Nevada Vandervere, contralto, and Earle Spicer, baritone, as soloists.

Nelson Eddy, concert and operatic baritone, visits Capt. Henry's Show Boat as the first guest to be entertained aboard when the new series of guest artist programs recently announced is inaugurated on WCAE tonight at 9 o'clock. With Eddy are to be two musical groups also new to the program—the Show Boat Four, a male quartet, and a double quartet, the Show Boat Singers. Charlie Winninger, Lanny Ross, Ross, Muriel Wilson, Annette Hanshaw, Molasses 'n' January and Don Voorhees' Show Boat Band also are heard.

Program Pointers

Headed by Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, with an array of talent including Jeannie Lang, personality singer and one-time Pittsburgher; William O'Neal, tenor; a chorus of mixed voices and an orchestra under the direction of Andre Kostelanetz, the second of the new variety programs inaugurated last week during a broadcast from New York's Carnegie Hall, is listed on WJAS at 9:30 tonight. Musical highlights are an orchestral interpretation of "Mardi Gras," from "Mississippi Suite," and Miss Lang's version of "Me Minus You."

Miss Lang

Leo Robin, songwriter, formerly of Pittsburgh, and Ralph Rainger, co-composers of "Here Lies Love" and "Please," play and sing some of their compositions, including those they wrote for Marlene Dietrich's picture, "Blonde Venus," during Hollywood-on-the-Air over WCAE at 12:30 a. m. "Old Home Week" also is celebrated, with many leading film stars coming to the microphone to greet their home towns.

A 30-minute edition of a recent hour-and-a-half minstrel show is presented by the Traffic and Transportation Association of Pittsburgh from the studios of WWSW at 9 p. m.

Uncle Bob, Betty Read Comics

Uncle Bob and Betty take WCAE listeners on a mythical tour of the land of the Sun-Telegraph comic page characters when they read the "funnies" tonight at 6 o'clock.

Flashing the latest news direct from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, is heard over WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. today. His schedule tomorrow is the same with the exception of the 2:15 broadcast, carried by WCAE only.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello ladies and gentlemen:

In the office of a construction concern in the Grant Building hangs a mounted seven-foot sailfish. The night janitor gazed with openmouthed wonder at this denizen of the deep. He resumed his sweeping only to pause again and again with bewildered expression in front of this unbelievable sight. Finally, lighting up, as if the dawn had dispelled a foggy night, he turned to Chris Dethorn, night superintendent, and exclaimed:

The depression must be passing. The apple man at the corner of Fourth avenue and Grant street has opened a Christmas Savings Account.

* * *

Mrs. B. M. Marischak, of Canonsburg, is a fancy gardener. She sent in a turnip grown in the shape of a bird. It looks too good to eat.

* * *

And there is Deputy Sheriff H. B. Furlong's Spanish-speaking Panama parrot, which has traveled around the world. It never misses a broadcast and has a choice remark or so for each one. On personal inquiry the sheriff told me that I would not understand what it says. It's just as well, I suppose.

* * *

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Henry Halstead and his Californians, who've been playing at San Francisco's Hotel St. Regis, Yosemite Lodge and "Fatty" Arbuckle's Plantation Cafe in Hollywood, open an engagement at the William Penn Hotel tomorrow, succeeding Jimmy Joy, KDKA will broadcast their music twice daily, the first program going on the air tomorrow at 12:35 p. m. . . . Three or four sponsors are reported talking business with Jesse Crawford, the organist . . . Jack Denny, who the same bootmaker as President Hoover, got a pair of the President's shoes by mistake recently . . . but they didn't fit him . . .

Mr. Halstead

Dolph Martin's Orchestra and the Travellers Quartet replace the Three X Sisters and Paul Specht's Band on WJAS Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 7:30 p. m. Meanwhile, the harmony trio is being prepared for bigger and better programs.

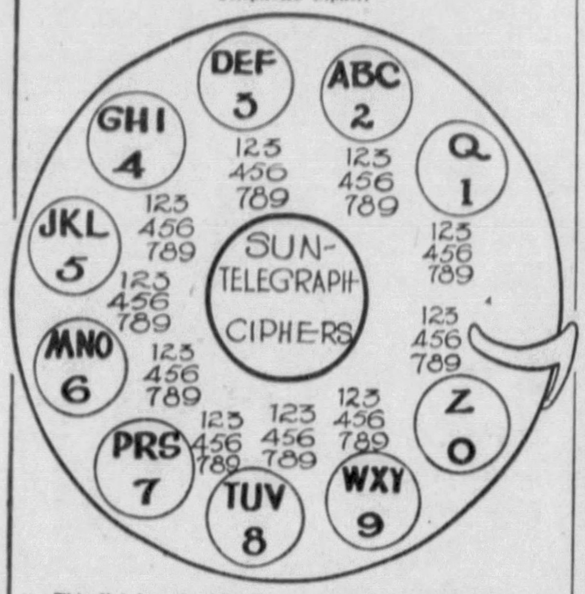
Youth's Cipher Likely To Puzzle Adults

SOLUTION TO CIPHER 35

By ALFRED D. REID
Telephone Cipher.



This dial key should make the decoding simple. Letter frequency helped in this case. The answer is:

"A cipher key should be quite handy and easily remembered yet hard enough to test the skill and zeal of those in quest of its solution. The dial phone is usually at hand, with its numbers from one to zero."

By KENNETH A. NAGEL,
Cipher Editor

This original Cipher No. 36 was submitted by Malcom Nevins, of New Kensington. He is a young lad of 14 years. His cipher is going to cause plenty of trouble among the grownups. It's a transposition-substitution cipher and a hard one. Don't let the boy stump you.

Now for the telephone Cipher No. 35. You found that rather hard, didn't you? It was hard. As there is no "Q" or "Z" on the dial we left the figure "1" take care of the missing "Q." Therefore, as "Z" has no place on the dial, the code puts it in the "operator's" position.

The first digit in each pair represents the letter-group, with "Q" as "1," A-B-C as "2," "Z" as "0." The second digit of the pair is obtained from any of the three in the column of figures above each letter, as you will see in the accompanying diagram. Letters "Q" and "Z" can be represented by any number of the second digit.

Thus:

J is 51, 54 or 57; K is 52, 55 or 58; L is 53, 56 or 59, and so on.

Adam G. Manz, of 3 Royal street, North Side; M. F. McGrew, of Crafton; L. M. Aspinwall, of 6411 Kentucky avenue; James A. R. Rich and Homer Chapel, both of Oil City; Robert Smeltz, of Allison Park; Luella Mae Scott, of Cecil, and William H. Duly, of McKees Rocks.

Efforts to liberate Gross before the expiration of his term are to be made.

Gross was at liberty 120 days owing to an illness of his wife. He returned to jail yesterday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Receivers for the Shubert Theater Corporation, one-time lusty giant of the amusement world, are seeking court permission to sell the Shubert properties to prevent further losses.

The receivers, Lee Shubert and the Irving Trust Company, set a $12,500,000 value on the properties in asking Federal Judge Caffey yesterday to permit the sale and the distribution of proceeds to creditors.

FILM COMEDIAN, WIFE SEPARATE

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The stuttering comedian of the films, Roscoe Ates, and his wife, the former Clara Adrian of vaudeville fame, have separated.

Mrs. Ates, mother of 18-year-old Dorothy Adrian, who recently was adopted by Ates, said:

"It is true—we are separated. I cannot say anything more than that right now."

Ates said his wife "moved me out." He declared:

"First it was money and next it was jealousy. I have all the respect in the world for her and her daughter."

The couple was married nine years ago. They had appeared together in vaudeville previous to their marriage.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengué (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengué by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic baumes, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

NIGHT BEFORE APPLYING NOXZEMA

MORNING AFTER USING, RED ROUGHNESS GONE

RED, CHAPPED HANDS improved—OVERNIGHT
—or your money back

THIS famous medicated formula—Noxzema, the cream that heals—has already worked wonders for the hands of over 6,000,000 women. In 8 hours—overnight—it has improved red, rough, chapped hands beyond recognition.

Let Noxzema beautify your hands the same easy way. Doctors prescribe it and even nurses use it themselves. Why? Because Noxzema's softening balm and soothing medication actually heal the tiny open wounds of chapped, broken skin. That's why it makes hands that are badly chapped, even cracking, so much whiter, smoother, softer—overnight.

See for yourself! Tonight apply Noxzema on your hands at bedtime. This feathery, white greaseless cream is stainless and quickly absorbed with very little rubbing . . . Tomorrow morning you'll feel the sore, rough redness healed away—your hands lovelier by far, white and girlish and appealing.

If not—return the jar and you'll get your money back. Fair enough? Then start the Noxzema beauty treatment for hands tonight. A blessing for housewives! They use Noxzema after washing dishes and exposure to cold, as well as at night. And remember, the hands that use Noxzema are the hands that men admire.

Admonition to Sonneteers

Of all the blamed confusion poets make
When mind steps blandly forth to speak for heart,
Write, as the error's essence, and a part
Of what can be a grandiose mistake,
This: when one harps upon a single string
For song's accompaniment, one should choose,
Certes, a simple song, or stand to lose
The subtle satisfactions of the thing.

So, being simple and subtle both at once,
Grope you more cautious; keep in sight the issue.
Who is verbose in love is but a dunce,
Snared, who himself has spun the spider-tissue!

Listen, and take to heart, great fools and dull:
Love is a word of but one syllable!

—Paul Lee Carr.

Other Words

A. D. O. can make up a sentence containing the word "wicked" like this: "Wicked be so happy together."

Anything for a Chuckle

You left yourself wide open for a snapper from Bernie by saying that his malt sponsor was smart in hiring a hop-head . . . If Bernie was a fast-thinker he might say: "Well, it takes a dope to know one!" . . . Thanks for everything, Winchell—and let me wish you a Happy New Ear!—J. M. Josefsberg.

Ouch!

Arnold Johnson says that he overheard this conversation in a Times Square restaurant the other 2 p. m. Someone had made a nasty crack about pants pressers and buttonhole makers.

On the Bowery, the Bowery!

Eddie Golden makes these interesting observations on Little Old New York . . . There are more panhandlers in Times Square than there are on the Bowery . . . You can eat cheaper around the 40s on 6th Ave. . . . Burlesque patrons down on the Bowery like the girls, but won't stand for smutty episodes on the stage. . . . Ladies of the Evening are rarely seen on the lower East Side pavements where it is supposed to be so tough, etc. . . . Mrs. McCarthy, a policewoman, is the most respected person in this section—where the People's Theatre is located on the Bowery . . . The manager at our theater, by the way, was amazed when told that his stage hands were the tallest in town . . . He said he never saw them standing up! . . . Corse Payton is still considered a matinee idol down on the Bowery . . . Centreville, Iowa, tourists, et al, always visit the Bowery first when in New York . . . And, after the sightseers get through, the majority of Chinese in Chinatown hang up their shutters and go home—to Jersey.!

The Morning Mail

"Dear Winchell," affectionately writes Wm. J. Bickel, of Cincinnati, "out here in the provinces there are so many, like me, who somewhat rely on your knowledge of what is going on in the world, outside of dull things like business, etc.

"You do 'wise up' the multitudes, but I have scanned your column for lo, these many years for information on one certain thing, and now, after many news reels, I commission you to find out for all your readers whether Mrs. King George of England bought ONE of those hats she wears—or whether she bought a gross of them!!!"

Who Didn't?

Ballard MacDonald thinks this gag should be revived every Christmas, and so he revived it for 1932.

Jack: "Hello, Charlie. What did you get for Christmas?"

Carroll Film For Opener

For the first time in 45 years Pittsburgh is without a burlesque theater. The last show of that type was given in the Academy last night. Throughout the remainder of the week the theater will be in the hands of decorators preparing for its reopening as the Variety, which will present feature motion pictures and vaudeville. It will continue under the management of George Jaffe, who has been in charge of the house for many years.

George Jaffe.

The first show under the new policy will begin at midnight Sunday. The screen feature will be "Hot Saturday," with Nancy Carroll and Cary Grant in the leading roles. The stage show will have Nat Nazzaro, Jr., as master of ceremonies, and will include Enthor and Cornell, dance team; Roy, Riata and Roule, adagio dancers; Margie Nelson, blues singer; Jayne Jarrol's gypsy troubadours, and a revue, "Illusions of 1932," featuring Cherie, a dancer; Sammy Weston, Mildred Coziere and others.

Sunday midnight openings will be a regular feature and daylight shows will begin at 11 a. m., daily except Sunday.

Besides features, the Variety screen will include short films, such as comedies and news reels.

PASSING SHOW

Mourning for Pitt Players Makes Drear Start For New Year

By GEORGE SEIBEL

The passing of the stock company that has kept the Pitt Theater open for four months brings a host of melancholy reflections. Both Edwin Vail and George Sharp put forth valiant efforts, but in vain. The public would not come—the bargain matinees were sometimes well attended, but the evening performances were often given in a vacuum, which Nature abhors, as we've been told—and which is particularly abhorrent in the box office.

Over $20,000 has been lost in the short season, despite rigorous economy and though there was no orchestra to pay. This will discourage any early attempt at a new venture until there's a new inflation of business. If there is a new venture, it should be on a radically different plan.

Mr. Seibel

Obviously low prices are not enough to draw crowds. It is possible that higher prices and a more distinguished group of players would have done better.

Another lesson seems to be that the modern play is too thin for stock company use. Take "The Good Fairy," given some weeks ago, and "The First Mrs. Fraser," on this week. Both of them fine comedies when presented by the original cast, they went flat—as if a fiddler were trying to play a mazurka with all strings loose. Such plays are too subtle, too delicate and depend on the taut tension of every string.

The best production of the season was "The Devil Passes." There's no use crying over spilt milk, but some sincere tears will be shed at the overturn of George Sharp's shiny new pail.

MABEL KROMAN'S ROLE

Meanwhile Mabel Kroman, who is Mrs. George Sharp, has appeared in a new play, "Saint Wench," in which Helen Menken is the star.

This drama, from the Croatian of Miliam Begovic, opened at the Lyceum Theater in New York on Monday, and its fate is yet uncertain. It is a miracle play with plenty of costumes and plenty of sex, but it seems to have mystified the critical fraternity. Perhaps, having recently blessed "Biography," they thought it was time to curse the next comer.

The rehearsals for this production were the explanation of Mabel Kroman's failure to reappear here during our stock season, soon a memory.

OTHER PASSING SHOWS

Katharine Cornell's production of "Lucrece," a Roman play based on Shakespeare's poem, is also preparing to close.

Walter Hampden's "Cyrano de Bergerac" revival lasted only about two weeks in New York. The Broadway critics always slash Hampden, just like Ethel Barrymore.

Two closings only are not accompanied by crepe and lilies. "Of Thee I Sing" ends a run of more than a year, and John Howard Lawson's "Success Story" ran for almost six months. Both are booked for Pittsburgh.

The year 1933 will have to be better, for it couldn't be worse than 1932.

Young Local Pianist In Recital Friday

Earl Harter, the 13-year-old Pittsburgh lad, who won acclaim as a pianist in Europe, will make his American debut here in his home town tomorrow in a recital at Carnegie Music Hall. His program will include the Bach Prelude and Fugue in B flat Major, Pastoral and Capriccio, by Scarlatti-Tausig, Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata, four Chopin numbers, Liebestraum No. 3, by Liszt, and Staccato Etude, by Rubinstein.

Lloyd to Do Older Part

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—In his next picture, Harold Lloyd may modify the adolescent character he has portrayed so long, and attempt more sophisticated comedy.

This news is brought back from Europe by the comedian's friends, who talked with him in St. Moritz, where he and Mildred Davis and their three children are now spending the holidays.

Though his European trip was a pleasure jaunt, Harold is said to have given a lot of thought to his future picture activities. Two things he has decided — never again to stay off the screen for two years, and to play a character of greater maturity in his next picture.

This film, the comedian already has generally outlined. He plans to begin production as soon as possible after his return to Hollywood next month. Harold, of course, doesn't rush through pictures. He'll prepare carefully, but he is determined to have a new comedy ready for release in the fall.

Incidentally, "movie crazy" was a tremendous hit in Europe. It was the first of the Hollywood locale stories to be released there, and excited great curiosity. Breaking all precedent, Harold also made personal appearances in eight countries, talked over the British national radio hookup (this within three hours of his arrival in London) and even made a half dozen after dinner speeches.

His shyness and his unassuming courtesy made such a hit that one British newspaper referred to him as "America's greatest ambassador of friendship in years."

Skating Lessons Free In Duquesne Rink

Duquesne Garden tomorrow will begin weekly instruction of novice skaters, the session to continue from 5 until 7 o'clock. This will be a feature each Friday at the same hour. There will be no charge for teaching beginners, who will have to pay only the regular rate of admission.

Romance

Bar Travels In Movie

Eighteenth Amendment or no Eighteenth Amendment, there is likely to be a demand for autobiles equipped like the one Victor McLaglen owns and which El Brendel drives in the Fox picture, "Hot Pepper." Ot contains a perfectly equipped miniature bar, well stocked with glassware and a variety of liquors.

The car appears as innocent as any ordinary automobile until a secret spring is touched and then, like magic, the bar is disclosed and McLaglen begins serving drinks to his guests.

George Raft to Star With Miss Hopkins

George Raft, who has completed the final engagements in New York of a series of cross-country personal appearances, is in Hollywood to appear with Miriam Hopkins at the head of the cast of Paramount's "The Story of Temple Drake," tentative title for a William Faulkner story.

New Features to Be Seen On Screen and Stage

An extra attraction in the Fulton today is pictures of the Pitt-Southern California football game and the beautiful floats of the rose festival. The regular feature photoplay, opening the Fulton's week today, is "Faithless," with the leading roles played by Tallulah Bankhead and Robert Montgomery.

"The Conquerors," photoplay starring Richard Dix and Ann Harding, in which Edna May Oliver and Guy Kibbee almost "steal the picture," opened yesterday in the Sheridan Square. It will conclude a three-day engagement tomorrow.

Guy Kibbee also is on the Enright screen, in "Central Park," which features Joan Blondell. It began a three-day showing yesterday.

"A Farewell to Arms," film version of Ernest Hemingway's novel of the same title, will begin a week's showing in the Penn tomorrow. Helen Hayes will be seen in the role of the nurse and Gary Cooper will portray the lieutenant. The Pitt-U. S. C. football game will be shown, too.

Leslie Howard, who played the leading role in "The Animal Kingdom" on the stage, has the same part in the photoplay version of the Philip Barry comedy. It will open tomorrow on the Stanley screen with Ann Harding and Byrna Loy as the double heart-interest. Another feature will be the Pitt-U. S. C. football game.

* * *

Boris Karloff is the star of "The Mummy," another of the series of weird Karloff films, that will be on the Warner screen tomorrow. There also will be the Pitt-U. S. C. football game.

* * *

Opening Saturday in the Davis and Regent, "Goona Goona" (Love Powder) and "The King Murder" will be the double feature. "Goona Goona" is a dramatic film, the actors of which are natives of Bali. An English narrative accompanies it.

* * *

Seats are now on sale in the Nixon box office for "Design For Living," which will open there Monday with Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne and Noel Coward as co-stars. Mr. Coward wrote it.

Escudero Is to Dance Here Saturday

Vincente Escudero, Spanish dancer, and his ensemble will be the fourth attraction in the May Beegle series in Syria Mosque this Saturday evening. Escudero is by birth a "gitano," one of the wandering gypsies of the countryside. He dances the Flamenco dance, which is deeply rooted in the soil of Spain, as well as other native numbers. His partners, Senoritas Carmita and Carmela, are from Madrid.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE MONTE CARLO EXPRESS, PARIS-BOUND.—Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock I'll be in Paris. It's four years since I've been in that city, and I'll confess that I'm a trifle anxious to see the old town again. I can't help wondering if—but why wonder about Paris in this column? I think I'll knock out a column about a few characters I met during the past two weeks. There are one or two choice ones I've been saving.

First, meet M. E. Naceur Djellouli. Don't be frightened. It's an Arab name, and Mr. Djellouli is a reporter for the big newspaper in Tunis. The gentleman left me his card before he departed. Which is the only reason I am able to use his name in this space.

Mr. Djellouli came down to the boat to interview me just as I was leaving Tunis on the Mustapha II. Why he came to do a story on me when I was leaving the city instead of getting me when I arrived is something I wouldn't know about right now. Nothing that they do in Tunis, however, would surprise me in the least. If Mr. Djellouli had suddenly produced a pair of wings and flown through the porthole I wouldn't have batted an eyelash.

I have seen some strange outfits on reporters, but this Arab member of our craft must go to the head of the class. The gentleman wore a yellow suit, a blue shirt, a red tie, brown shoes, gray spats—and he carried a cane. More than that—hold tight now—he wore a monocle. Do you hear me, Red Dolan? A reporter with a monocle!

Well, after all, why not? Mr. Djellouli probably considered himself quite a fashion plate. Undoubtedly he's a hot cat in his home town. And as long as he's happy, what difference?

At any rate, my interviewer wanted to know this, that and the other thing. His English was not very good, but he made it clear that he had been meaning to see me for some time—but that there had been an unusual number of parties lately and he hadn't been able to take care of the assignment. When he said that, I felt that I had misjudged the man. He was a regular reporter!

He asked me any number of questions and I answered them quite faithfully. About 10 minutes before the boat was scheduled to sail, he consulted his notes and asked me what shows I had enjoyed best on Broadway.

"The Ziegfeld Follies," I told him.

He stopped writing and looked up in perplexity.

"You say what?" he inquired.

I repeated it.

"The Follies. The Ziegfeld Follies. Even over here you've heard about those, haven't you? Mr. Ziegfeld's Follies. Follies. Follies."

Sudden comprehension sprang into his eyes.

"Ahhh," he cried. "I know what he is. I onderstan' now. Folaise. Folaise. The man who marry Connie Bennett!"

So that's the road that fame takes. Gee, Flo, if you were only here now, how I'd kid you about that! Oh, well . . .

George, the Cockney waiter on the Mustapha II. I think maybe I've written too much about him already. I hope you can stand just one more story.

As the only man on the boat outside of my party who spoke English, George was invaluable to me. On that strange craft I don't know what I would have done without him. And as I handed him his tip about an hour before the boat docked at Marseilles, I drew him to one side.

"George," I said, earnestly, "what the devil are you doing on this boat, anyhow. You're too valuable to waste your time in this service. You can't make anything much in tips, you have to work like a dog—and I don't think your value is appreciated."

"No, sir," he replied. "You're quite right. Hit's not truly appreciated, sir."

"Well, then," I went on, "why don't you get on some trans-Atlantic boat? I think you'd be far better off. How did you come to land on this line, anyhow?"

He sighed.

"Hit was like this, sir," was his unforgettable reply. "Hi came down from Hengland habout 10 years ago and fell in love with a French cutie in Marseilles. Before I knew hit, Hi was 'itched to 'er.

"Since then H'I've 'ad four babies, a 'ouse on the hout-skirts, plenty of good grog—and now there's hanother baby hon the way. H'I'm 'appy, sir. And, beggin' your pardon, Hi think Hi'll stay where Hi ham!"

Madame X. One of the great characters of Monte Carlo. She has another name, and it's quite a famous one. But, not wishing to flirt with the libel laws, I'll call her Madame X and let it go at that.

The Madame—and a very good name it is for her, too—must be at least 60 years of age. But she's still kittenish and she's still coy. Her eyelids flutter when a young man passes, and she flirts like a debutante. Take it from me, the old buzzard is a great character—if you don't get too close.

She has money. Oodles of it. And they say she's very generous—with her gigolos. She pays them 1,000 francs—about $40—every time they take her out. I suppose that's a lot of money to a gigolo. But when you consider that they have to push that mass of tonnage around a dance floor all night, they aren't paid half enough.

When Madame X first came to Monte Carlo, she had definite trouble with her gigolos. For the 1,000 francs she gave them she demanded to be escorted to her suite in the hotel. She wasn't content to be left at the elevator; she insisted that her escort take her directly to the door of her suite and bid her good night there.

The reason for that, I suppose, was that if she met anyone in the corridor, she wanted the party to know that her swain was gallant enough to conduct her directly to her home.

The gigolos didn't like that last part of the bargain. So, for some two or three months, they kept ducking as soon as they were paid off. They'd leave the old gal seated at a table as soon as she had handed over the 1,000 francs and tell her they'd be right back. And that was the end of that.

It took Mme. X a long while to get wise to the racket. Her escorts never failed to have an excuse to disappear as soon as her money was in their hands. So one night, after long and sincere deliberation, she didn't pay off at all.

When they reached the hotel elevator, the gigolo pleaded a severe toothache and asked if he could have his money so that he could go home and treat it. Mme. X took a 1,000-franc note from her bag and tore it in half. She handed the youth one half.

"Here," she muttered, "go home and treat your tooth. I'll wait here. And when you come back to escort me upstairs, you can have the other half."

WIFE'S MOTHER HELD IN KILLING

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Despite the efforts of a daughter to "take the rap" for the slaying of her estranged husband, the girl's mother, Mrs. Minnie Wroe, 60, is under arrest today, charged with killing John A. Brooks, 25. She is expected to be released under $5,000 bail.

Mrs. Wroe

A coroner's jury, investigating the death of Brooks, exonerated his wife, Mrs. Emma Elizabeth Brooks, 21.

Mrs. Brooks had maintained she fired the fatal shot in the Wroe home New Years eve, admitting an affair with another man and that her husband, angered by this, attacked her. She declared:

"I had a gun and I pressed the trigger."

Under the questioning of District Attorney Wade K. Newell, however, she finally admitted her mother told her that she had also fired two shots.

Misfortune Hits 2 'Anti - Jinx' Officials

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Two officers of the Anti-Superstition Society, organized to prove that evil omens don't mean anything, are suffering misfortune.

Sidney Strotz, president, broke his automobile, while Herman T. Powers, secretary, is in bed with the "flu." Strotz said:

"But it wasn't bad luck. I smashed my automobile because I was a bad driver and Mr. Powers probably didn't wear his rubbers."

FOREIGN GOODS FIGHT IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—A fight was launched in the House today by Representative Martin (Rep.), of Massachusettes, for enactment of a bill requiring all foreign goods offered for sale in this country to be stamped with the name of the country of manufacture.

The purpose, Martin said, is to give the American buyers notice of their foreign origin so they may buy American goods instead.

Martin said:

"If we are to have economic recovery we have got to get the American workman back on his job. This cannot be done if we are to permit foreign goods to be dumped into this country at ridiculously low prices; depriving Americans of jobs and making it impossible for American concerns to operate at a profit.

McCormack, Bremen Ride 'Worst Storm'

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Waves two feet higher than the captain's bridge and winds stronger than the highest instruments could record delayed the North German Lloyd liner Bremen two days, her skipper, Leopold Ziegenbein, commodore of the fleet, said today when the Bremen docked.

It was the worst storm he had encountered since 1929, he declared, but John McCormick, Irish tenor, who was on board, made it stronger than that. It was his worst crossing in 56, he averred.

While FLU is around Be Doubly Careful of COUGHS

At this time you MUST take all possible precautions! Even if you get only a slight cough, don't fiddle around with it! Don't wait until it has clamped itself into your bronchial tubes. But DRIVE the cough out of your system—CLEAN it out so that it won't come back.

JOAN BLONDELL WEDS FILM MAN

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 5.—(Universal.)—Joan Blondell, screen actress, and George Barnes, film cameraman, were honeymooning eastward today after a "secret" wedding here.

The couple obtained their marriage license yesterday a few hours before the nuptials, the bride giving her name as Rose Blondell, of New York, and the groom identifying himself as Scott Barnes, of Pasadena.

Miss Blondell wore dark glasses. Her blonde tresses were concealed under a red wig in an effort to complete the secrecy of her elopement from Hollywood.

Barnes and Miss Blondell had admitted their engagement for months, but they were unable to marry until Barnes received his final decree of divorce just before Christmas from a previous wife.

COLDS GO THROUGH 3 STAGES!

And They are Far Easier Stopped in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily passes through three stages—the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. Relief is twice as easy in the first stage.

For prompt relief take a couple of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine immediately upon catching cold. This will usually expel the cold overnight and thus prevent the spread of the infection within your system.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is effective because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels. Kills the cold germs and fever in the system. Relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful. May be safely taken by young and old and whether you stay indoors or go out. There is absolutely no penalty attached to its use. For more than 40 years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Get yourself a package today and be ready for any cold that may come along. Say "NO" to a substitute!

NOTE: During Epidemics a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine every morning and night will do much to keep your system immune.

Down WITH THE CHOKE!

It costs you money

You know what the choke is, of course . . . that little gadget on the dash which you pull out when the engine is cold, and keep out until the engine gets warm. Every time you use the choke it costs you money, because it sends raw gasoline flooding into the cylinders, instead of gasoline mixed with air.

You can't do away with the choke entirely. But you can do the next best thing: Use ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH . . . the super-fuel that allows a minimum use of the choke.

With ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH in the tank, you step on the starter, and Zip! . . . the spark takes hold like a flash from brain to muscle. No frantic churning to drain the battery and strain the starter. No costly flooding of the carburetor. The coldest engine whirrs into instant action.

And your car warms up more quickly! There's no sluggishness to hold you back, as with a lazy gasoline. No constant use of the expensive choke.

Brilliant performance in coldest weather is only one of the many reasons why Pennsylvania motorists buy more than twice as much ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH as any other gasoline. Use it for two weeks . . . and you'll quickly learn the other reasons for yourself.

Some Parents More Critical Than Understanding

Why do girls go wrong?

Is it because they're bad?

Is it because the "old folks" are not strict enough with them?

Or is it, maybe, because some "old folks" are too strict, too short on understanding, too long on criticism?

Freda has some ideas on that subject that may interest you. Want to look 'em over? Then come on! They may be good for what ails you—and for that kid you're worrying about.

Dear Elsie:

I've read your column for a long time, and I would like to write a few words on a subject that concerns a lot of people. This is it.

Why do girls go wrong?

Has it ever occurred to people, particularly parents, to wonder why they do? I think there are a good many reasons. Some girls may be bad by nature. Some may have a bad environment. Some may be weak-minded. Some may have parents who don't look after them.

But what about the good girl whose parents do guard her? The girl who has a good home, good friends, sisters and brothers and a nice personality; who has in every respect obeyed her parents; who has learned from infancy to respect them, and to not do the things that so many "modern" girls do today? The girl who has gone ahead, looked for jobs, tried to live right? The girl who has been trying to enjoy life in a clean way; who has tried to cultivate the right kind of friends; who tries to make the best of what little she has to do with? Why does she go wrong sometimes, too?

UNFAIR RESTRICTIONS

She has gone with a nice, respectable boy, who meant her future to be linked with his, only—all too often—to lose him through no fault of her own. Nine times out of ten the rupture comes through the interference of narrow-minded old people—and before life has really started it is spoiled.

Such a girl tries to pick up the threads of a mutilated existence, only to be confronted again with the same narrow-mindedness, the same unsympathetic restrictions, the same lack of understanding, the same fault-finding.

And there is where the limit comes. A girl like that can't go on being good. She gets desperate. She breaks loose. She becomes disgusted with criticism, with unfairness. She has a home, but a home of what kind? Certainly not one of understanding, where she can bring young friends, unfold her life in peace; where people help her to understand herself and life. Certainly not one where love and loyalty are.

That is where the good girl loses her faith and becomes tired of the struggles to live up to her ideals. She gives up; goes to the other extreme. Then what? Just another good girl gone wrong! And whose fault is it? What kind of ideas of guardianship have brought about this tragedy?

UNDERSTANDING NEEDED

You parents who have brought children into the world—do your real duty by them! Not only feed them, clothe them, educate them, but understand them. Guide them, instead of bossing them, and restricting them, and criticizing them. Let them live! Have faith in them. Try to understand their side of the story. Give them a chance to grow into themselves.

There are plenty of parents who give their children every foolish liberty in the world, and no training. But there are plenty, too, who interfere with them, hedge them around until they are nearly crazy, and who preach and restrict instead of teaching them. And they're just as bad as the first kind! For when those kids do break loose, they have nothing to anchor them or give them faith.

FREDA.

Yes, that's true, Freda.

Many a kid has gone haywire because parents who "guarded" her—or thought they did—had actually only surrounded her with ignorance and prejudice, and "don'ts," and had actually taught her nothing; given her no help in the first hard bouts with life.

Are you that kind of a parent?

Are you giving your youngster sour criticism, when she is desperately in need of understanding and sympathy?

Fay King Speaks a Word of Caution About Letter Writing

IF HE LETS YOU READ ANOTHER GIRL'S LETTER, HOW ABOUT YOURS?
ALWAYS WRITE FOR PUBLICATION!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

To whom does a letter belong—to the writer or to the one who receives it?

I believe it belongs to the writer, and should be respected as the writer's private property. Especially if it was meant for no one but the receiver to see.

When a friend requests that a letter be destroyed, it should be destroyed immediately, or returned at once whole or in pieces, to relieve all doubt and anxiety about it.

But it is better not to write such letters. It is safer for all concerned to write always for "publication." That is, in such a way that your letter will be a credit to your character as the writer and to the character of the one to whom it is sent.

Contract Bridge

-:- How to Play -:-
How to Win

By Josephine Culbertson

An 'Informatory' Double

Penalty doubles at the Bridge table are quite often of great advantage to the Declarer in making his contract, and for this reason they should never be made on a margin of less than 2 tricks, unless the set is absolutely certain, regardless of distribution. The obvious advantage which a Double gives to the Declarer in placing honor strength or perhaps length in trumps usually costs a trick, particularly if the players are at all expert.

The hand below is an example of a contract that was made by reason of the "Informatory" Double made by a player holding four trumps to the King-Knave-Ten over Declarer.

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding requires no particular comment. West, of course, did not wish to disturb his vulnerable opponents in what he thought might easily be a very dangerous contract, and thus his first pass was made with the hope of securing a swing.

When the final contract was reached, West felt that he could count the defeat of the contract as assured. Even if all other tricks failed to materialize, the club Ace and 3 trump-tricks seemed assured. So reasoning, West opened the spade Knave. This was won with the King in dummy, and a diamond led from Dummy and won with the Declarer's Ace. Now a small club was returned, West did not go up with the Ace, and the trick was won in Dummy with the King. A club was returned, which West won with the Queen and laid down the Ace, South ruffing. South then led the Knave of diamonds. West did not cover, and the Knave held the trick. Now a small diamond was led and trumped, a small spade led from Dummy, and the Ten finessed. The Queen of diamonds was then led, and West ruffed with the Ten and exited from his hand with his last club. South won with the 9 of trumps, and West was compelled to ruff the Ace of spades at the eleventh trick and then lead into South's major trump tenace, thus permitting South to fulfill his redoubled contract.

Today's Question

South—Dealer.

South	North
♠A4	♠KQ1872
♡AK95	♡63
◇KQ142	◇A76
♣A7	♣53

Answer: Yes. The bidding should be as follows:

South	North
2 ◇	2 ♠
3 ♡	3 ♠
4 ♠	6 ◇
7 ◇	Pass

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Faces Ordeal of Telling Secret to Husband

My father bowed gravely to Lillian, as she said it wouldn't be easy to sidetrack Sam Brixton from the knowledge of any plans for the rescue of Marion and Carolyn.

"I realize that, my dear," he said, "but I think with a little caution it will be easy to keep him from suspecting that we are planning a rescue."

He leaned forward, the finger tips of one hand gently tapping those of the other.

"Here is what is in my mind," he said in low tones, and we all bent forward, listening eagerly.

"As soon as Richard returns, we will have a conference here concerning the reply that is to be made to the kidnapers tomorrow morning. I will guarantee to get hold of Richard beforehand, so that he will say nothing before Brixton of any possible discoveries he may have made, and we will all keep silent about the code contained in the letter.

"We will defer to Brixton's opinion concerning the letter to be sent to the kidnapers and will act upon their suggestions. Then when the Brixtons are safely in bed, some of us—we must not all go—will go over to the school, lay the code before Richard and Hugh and decide upon our real campaign.

DICKY RETURNS

"My idea is that we should try to gain time, by telling them that we are doing everything we can to raise the sum demanded, but that it seems impossible to get so large a sum on short notice. We can ask them if they will not accept a smaller sum, and tell them we will await a message from them while trying to raise the maximum they demand. I think that will appeal to Brixton."

We had not long to wait to find out the truth or falsity of his prophecy. Sam Brixton returned within the hour, looking distinctly worried, although I heard him telling his wife that he would be able to raise "his share" of the ransom money.

A summons to the telephone for Harry Underwood followed close upon Brixton's arrival, and immediately afterward Harry and Phil Veritzen drove away, saying they would be back within the hour. When they came Dicky was with them, but when he came upstairs to our sitting-room, I was sure he had not yet learned of the code.

Dicky not only was ignorant as yet of Marion's code letter, but his day's flight had ended without securing any clue to the hiding place of the missing girls. Of that I felt certain.

EXPLAINS ABOUT OFFER

"I passed over a dozen houses so isolated, so deep in the mountain woodlands, that probably not 10 people a year come there," he said, "but it would need a regiment to go over the hills thoroughly. I did not see even the baby sister of a clue. I guess that ransom will have to be paid, but how in the devil it's going to be raised is beyond me."

His voice was dull, dispirited, and I longed to tell him of the code letter; but I knew that my father must wish to keep Dicky in ignorance of that until after the conference with Brixton, else he would have told him about it before he came upstairs.

"Come over here and let me tell you how the money is going to be raised," I said. "It can be done, even if the whole hundred thousand is demanded."

Dicky flung himself into the chair I had indicated, and stared at me as if he suddenly suspected symptoms of lunacy in my manner.

"What d'ye mean?" he demanded. "There ain't that much ready cash in our world. That belongs to the realm of high finance."

With my very knees quaking, I brought out the lesser explosive I had to set off.

"Someone from that realm has already offered his aid to Lil and Harry," I said, and at his explosive "Who? What?" I told him of Philip Veritzen's munificent offer.

Wedding Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married very soon and I feel that I cannot afford both invitations and announcements, so I am going to write personal notes to my friends as invitations, but I am puzzled as to just how to word the letters. Will you please help me? A.

Gladly. If you have a mother it is better form for her to write this invitation, since she is the hostess of your home. I will suggest the form for this kind of letter, and, then if it isn't possible for you to have your mother write it, or whoever presides over your home, you can adapt the wording of the letter for your writing of it. Something like this:

Dear Mary:

Jane and Theodore are to be married in United Church, on Tuesday, the first of February, at four o'clock, and we want very much to have you and Jack come to the ceremony. Will you? And then will you plan to come afterward to our home for an informal gathering of friends, to wish them "Godspeed?"

Devoted wishes to you both, and the anticipation of seeing you on "the" first.

Cordially,

Suitable Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What would you advise me to get for a couple who have been married for 23 years?

MARION.

A gift for such an anniversary should be something for the home, something that you know that the home would enjoy. A gift of silver, glass, china, linen, leather, pottery.

Today I want to tell you about low blood pressure. This affliction is more common than many suspect. In fact, I believe many vague but chronic ailments can be traced to neglect of low blood pressure.

Dr. Copeland

Sufferers from low blood pressure fatigue easily. They have no "pep." They complain of digestive disturbances and in general are below par. Low blood pressure rarely terminates in a fatal disease.

Doctors are often asked what really is the normal blood pressure. This is difficult to answer in any satisfactory manner, because there is a wide range within which the blood pressure may be called normal. In general, it can be said that between the ages of eighteen and forty, the blood pressure is assumed to be normal when it stands at about 120.

It varies in individuals, being higher in males than females. It is lower in warm countries as compared to that found in cold countries. As we grow older, certain changes occur in the walls of the blood vessels and the blood pressure rises.

A pressure below a hundred is considered low. I know many persons who have never had a blood pressure above ninety and yet have appeared to enjoy perfect health. Persistent low pressure accompanied by certain symptoms, requires careful investigation.

Low pressure is often traced to an infection, severe shock, or to an acute infectious disease, such as pneumonia, influenza, diptheria and typhus. It is present in tuberculosis and a rise in blood pressure means improvement and gives hope of recovery.

Like high blood pressure, low pressure may be traced to chronic inflammation of the tonsils, teeth, nasal sinuses and gall bladder. Recent investigations show constipation to be quite commonly associated with low pressure.

As I have suggested, low blood pressure does not necessarily mean disease, but it warrants investigation. The blood pressure is, in a sense, a barometer of the health of the body. It may mean very little to you but be of great significance to the physician, who uses it as an index to your health.

Low pressure may be the only sign of a glandular disturbance which otherwise may be overlooked. Trouble with the adrenal glands may cause low blood pressure. Low blood pressure is seen in "Addison's disease," a disease of the adrenal glands.

Answers to Health Queries

D. R. G. Q—How much should a girl of 25, 5 feet 3 inches tall, also a girl 23, 5 feet 2 inches tall and a boy 17, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weigh?

A.—They should weigh respectively about 125, 121 and 143 pounds. This is about the average weight for people of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

BOARD FIGHTS SQUIRES AS GUARDIANS OF BALLOTS

POLITICS

Piekarski Joins Race For Bench Place

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.—Attorney Frank Piekarski is the most recent addition to the list of Allegheny County lawyers who would be judge of county court in succession to the late Judge Thomas Jones, of McKeesport.

Mr. Shields

Piekarski was in Harrisburg yesterday and Tuesday. During that time he saw both Gov. Pinchot and Attorney General William A. Schnader, who is consulted by the Governor on judicial appointments, his word being important after the political qualifications of aspirants are approved.

To both the Governor and Schnader, Piekarski was introduced by Judge Ralph H. Smith, newly-appointed to Common Pleas Court by the Governor. Smith wished it explicitly understood that the introduction did not constitute an indorsement. His only motive, he said, was friendship for the Pittsburgh attorney, who was an unsuccessful candidate for a Republican nomination to the Common Pleas bench at the last election.

Backing Piekarski are Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, and Judge John I. Fine, of Luzerne County, an important cog in the Pinchot political organization. It was pointed out, however, by a Pittsburgh Pinchotite today, that neither of these gentlemen controlled any votes in Allegheny County, and that their indorsement was not necessarily negotiable.

McGovern to Make Final Decision

It was pointed out that the final word would be with County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, who is understood to be friendly to the aspirations of Assistant County Solicitor Ralph Frank. The coolness of the Governor's office toward Frank is understood to have been dissipated somewhat, and his chances have been enhanced within the past two or three weeks.

Attorney Benjamin Lencher, continues to be under consideration, but his past course of opposition to Pinchot campaign adventures is reported to be an insurmountable barrier. Schnader is said to have been impressed with Lencher, as well as by some of the indorsements on his behalf by eminent Pittsburgh attorneys following his recent visit to Harrisburg and conference with the attorney general.

County Court alone is not concerning Pittsburgh and Allegheny County politicians and lawyers who have been in Harrisburg for the ceremonies attendant upon the convening of the Legislature. There is much speculation as to the battle for places on the Common Pleas bench. It is assured that Judges Smith and Harry Rowand will be candidates, but there is little expectation that a slate will be perfected, such as has marked prior campaigns.

Macfarlane's Future Course In Doubt

The future course of President Judge James R. Macfarlane is a puzzle. There are sound reasons to believe that Judge Macfarlane will not be a candidate to succeed himself at the coming primaries. While he has declined to make any public statement, there have been private moves which indicate he is preparing to retire from the bench in January of next year.

Judge Macfarlane is a member of the State Employes' Retirement Fund. In addition to the sums the Judge has contributed, the state during his service has assisted in setting up of an equity approximating $38,000. Should he wish to retire next year he could do so with an annual compensation from this fund of $5,700 and in the event of his death before the full sum of $38,000 had been paid out, the remainder of the fund would go to his heirs.

Whether or not Judge Macfarlane has definitely decided on this course is not positively known. It is a matter buried in the records of the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and the records are not public.

If Judge Macfarlane does not run and herewith a prediction that he will not, there will be one, "open" place among the three to be filled in Common Pleas Court. That would invite into the campaign even more attorneys than already are considering candidacies, if that is possible.

Muldowney to Quit Place in Council

City Councilman M. J. Muldowney, despite reports to the contrary, will resign his place in Council to take the post as Congressman from the Thirty-second District in the event there is a special session next spring. He may resign by July even though there is no special session.

Republicans affiliated with the group of which Muldowney is a part wish his councilmanic successor to be a candidate for election at the September primary. It is their thought that the man finally fixed upon would be in better position to make a campaign if he had been in Council for a few months prior to the primary.

Senator James J. Coyne brushes aside reports that he might resign from the State Senate to take the Council place, though he probably could be elected by the other members without trouble. Some of Coyne's friends, citing the case of Senator-County Commissioner William D. Mansfield, declare Coyne could sit in both Senate and Council. They are awaiting with interest the decision on the court effort to compel Mansfield to relinquish one of the positions he now holds.

CLARK REGRETS DISMISSAL OF WORKERS

Returns From Trip, List of Employes Dropped Waited

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark is back from a vacation in Bermuda and "feeling fine," but he thinks it is "unfortunate" that so many men must be let out of his department. Meanwhile, payrollers under his command were awaiting Clark's official dismissal list, the last forthcoming in the make of the new 1933 city budget.

If the director had his way about the whole business of budget making, he said, he would have increased the personnel in the police and fire bureaus. His words were:

"It was not the will of the department but by direct action of Council. If I had it my way, I would have increased the police and fire bureaus. We are undermaned in both departments. It was unfortunate that so many men had to lose their jobs, especially at this time. But through the action of Council there is nothing for us to do but comply with the order."

LANG NAMES LIST

Yesterday afternoon Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, made public the names of 458 employes of his department who have been dropped.

Mayor Charles H. Kline also gave out the names of 36 dismissed from the Department of Public Health. The jobs of 136 salaried employes in the several bureaus of Lang's department are eliminated, saving an estimated total of $170,000.

With the salaried employes went 322 laborers employed by the day. It is estimated the combined wage savings will amount to $425,000 in the Public Works Department.

NURSES LOSE JOBS

Elimination of the 36 positions in the health department will save the city approximately $73,000, according to St. Clair Cooper, chief clerk. The cuts in this department affect two nurses in the Tuberculosis Hospital, two in the Municipal Hospital, five in the bureau of child welfare and four field nurses in the bureau of infectious diseases.

Three inspectors were fired from the bureau of plumbing inspection, one from the bureau of smoke regulation, 12 from the bureau of housing and sanitary inspection, two from the bureau of food inspection, two from the bureau of meat inspection and two from the bureau of milk inspection, where a laboratory assistant also was dropped.

POLITICIANS OUSTED

Little or no political significance was attached to those ousted in the health department. In the Department of Public Works, however, Justus Schroedel and Charles A. Hillegas, both active in city politics, were dropped.

Schroedel, chairman of the Twenty-fourth Ward, was superintendent of grounds and buildings in the recreation division at a yearly salary of $3,000. Hillegas, former chairman of the Thirteenth Ward and considered a political foe of Council President John S. Herron, acted as chief supervisor in the Bureau of Highways and Sewers. Hillegas was succeeded as ward chairman by J. Scott Morgan, present Traffic Court magistrate. Hillegas also received $3,000 yearly.

SCREEN WRITER DIES IN FIRE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Barry Connors, screen writer, was burned to death early today in a fire which partially destroyed the apartment house in which he lived.

Mr. Connors

Firemen said the blaze apparently started in Connors' apartment after he dropped off to sleep with a lighted cigaret in his hand. They smashed their way into the other apartment and carried to safety the choking occupants.

Connors, 50, had been in Hollywood several years. He was a native of Oil City, Pa., and attended St. Thomas College at Scranton, Pa., later studying law at Oswego, N. Y.

Admitted to the bar in New York state, he elected to follow a career as an actor. He was successful in comedy roles in legitimate plays, and for a while appeared in vaudeville. He also wrote short stories.

Among screen successes with which his name was associated were "The Mad Honeymoon," "Hell's Bells," "Applesauce," "Charlie Chan Carries On" and "Women of All Nations."

Gunmen Hold Up Brushton Store

Three young men walked into the chain store at 522 Rosedale street early today, pointed revolvers at the manager, his helpers and customers and walked out again with the contents of the cash register. Manager G. W. Hirt, 1922 Lincoln avenue, said the three were polite but kept everybody "well covered."

LEVEES BREAK, SCORES ROUTED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Scores of families fled today before flood waters that poured through four levee breaks along the St. Francis River in Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas.

Two gaps in the levee on the Missouri side of the river sent water over approximately 40,000 acres of lowlands. The second of the breaks, three and a half miles north of Kennett, Mo., came without warning, but Missouri National Guardsmen assisted marooned families to safety. No lives were lost, but some livestock perished.

Another crevasse developed at the state line, boundary between Arkansas and Missouri. It threatened to overflow a 35 square mile area in Arkansas. Water poured through a fourth opening at Bertig, Ark., covering a wide area of farm land.

Marlene 'Makes Up' With Paramount

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Marlene Dietrich and Paramount have made up.

A temperamental clash ended in peace when the studio announced Miss Dietrich would start work at once on a picture and that a $182,000 breach of contract suit against her would be withdrawn. Miss Dietrich will be directed by Rouben Mamoulian. All her previous pictures had been directed by Josef von Sternberg, former Paramount director now in Berlin.

AUTO SET AFIRE DOWNTOWN

An apparent attempt to destroy an automobile parked in Seventh avenue in front of the Elks' Club was frustrated early today when Frank Falone, a former cab driver, of 1606 Tustin street, knocked an empty five-gallon can said to have contained gasoline, from the top of the machine.

Falone said the top had been saturated with gasoline and set afire. Firemen, summoned by a still alarm, extinguished the blaze with a loss estimated at $75.

The automobile was owned by Mrs. Flora Householder, of 1606 Tustin street. She had loaned it to Falone, he told police.

Jobless Man's Body Found Under Bridge

The body of Stephen Lazorchak, 48, a laborer, of Leetsdale, was found beneath the McKees Rocks-North Side Bridge, from which he probably jumped, today. In his clothes was a letter from Yelko Lazorchak, mailed from Chisholm, Mass. Morgue attaches learned Lazorchak had lost his job three weeks ago.

Grouse, Not Santa, Stuck in Chimney

SUPERIOR, Wis., Jan. 5—(AP.)—Mrs. W. J. Bemrick's children thought Santa Claus got stuck in the chimney and couldn't get back to the North Pole. Strange noises were heard for three days up the chimney. Mrs. Bemrick exploded the theory, however, by reaching in and pulling out a grouse.

SEEK CENTRAL STORAGE FOR VOTES

Commissioners Fin Support for Move In Old Law

County Commissioners today took steps to strip justices of the peace of their power to take charge of ballot boxes after elections.

They requested the County Solicitor to give an opinion on the Commissioners' right to direct election boards to bring their returns and ballot boxes to a central storage place immediately after the count has been finished.

The Commissioners were informed by a member of the law department that under an old act of the Legislature, the Commissioners have the right to appeal to the courts to have all boxes brought in and stored in a central place.

REWARD SPURS HUNT

Possible indictment of some registrar assessors on charges of making fraudulent entries on matters of public record also loomed today as a result of the investigation of county officials into alleged irregularities at the presidential election November 8.

The County Commissioners, encouraged by receipt of information concerning violations, inserted in daily and weekly papers throughout the county their official announcement of a $500 reward for information concerning frauds.

The advertisement announces $500 will be paid for information leading to election fraud convictions. The Commissioners hope private citizens will come forward with useful information.

EVIDENCE AMASSED

For two weeks, county investigators under Leo A. Riordan, the Elections Bureau workers under Director William T. Rees and the Allegheny County Bar Association committee on election frauds have been gathering evidence.

Director Rees has indicated scores of ballot boxes soon will be petitioned by the committee to be opened and examined by a recount board with the committee's investigators present.

'NIGHT RIDERS' TRACED

It also is reported that definite information has been received which will help to identify "night riders" accused of opening ballot boxes and re-marking ballots after the boards had stored them away. Investigators also have found evidence that "phantom" names were entered on the registrars' original registration books and that the phantoms had been voted on election day.

Commenting on the reward, Chairman C. C. McGovern said:

"There are no strings tied to our $500 reward offer. We are out to do everything we can to clean up these election crooks."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 5.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Been stirring around the studio so fast since New Years, that I never did get a chance to talk to you about our New Years football game at the Rose Bowl. Andy Mellon's boys from Pittsburgh played U. S. C. The score was 35 to nothing. But I don't want you to think those Pennsylvania Republicans didn't do better than the score shows. The highlight was when a Pitt man had his pants tore off, the same as a Notre Dame man did a few weeks ago. These old grape fruit squirters from out here in California beat you and then tear the breeches off you. We got a man out here coaching, named Jones, that could take the Senate page boys and beat Harvard, Princeton and Yale with 'em.

Yours, WILL.

Recently Perfected New Cement for Industry

In a quiet little office, flanked by a small laboratory for which he is apologetic, because it is not pretentious, Dr. Karl Friedrich Stahl, dean of Pittsburgh chemists, goes about his work daily at 77.

Not for worlds would he admit there is anything glamorous about his position as one who links the present with the heroic days of nineteenth century chemistry. But his fellows know his work, his character and his rare good humor, with the result that he is chairman emeritus of the Pittsburgh section of the American Chemical Society.

His work is not just pastime even at 77, and as recently as last spring he perfected a cement to withstand acid and heat at the request of a firm in Wheeling. He is consulting engineer for the General Chemical Company, but as such he may engage in outside pursuits.

Dr. Stahl came to Pittsburgh in 1890. He was one of the first members of the Pittsburgh section of the Chemical Society. He is regarded as probably the chief specialist of the country in the making and using of hydrofluoric acid. He has written many special papers on matters relating to chemistry and has obtained many patents. But most of all, he is proud of his success in handling men while holding executive positions.

Writing of Dr. Stahl in the publication of the American Chemical Society, Dr. Charles Skeele Palmer said:

"There are many American chemists who have done much more spectacular work than he, many who have wrought and published good 'Arbeit;' but there are few, if any, whose life work can be counted as more startlingly phenomenal in marking great changes that have, quietly and almost unnoticed by a younger generation, come over these later times."

Moyer's story that the shooting was accidental has been substantiated by Homicide Detectives Robert Carroll and James O'Kane.

MOVIE 'MUMMY' CAUSES SCARE

A report had it the body of a man was found yesterday at Murray and Hazelwood avenues, and thither sped two police patrol wagons, a police radio scout car, three homicide detectives, a corneman and a patrolman.

A crowd was gathered about a form on the ground as the minions of the law drew up alone, and by twos and threes. Was this murder, or was this suicide?

Just about that time the publicity man of a motion picture house arrived and explained it was neither. Merely ballyhoo for the "Mummy," coming attraction at the theater.

SUE OVER FILMS OF CHAIN GANG

ATLANTA, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Two damage suits for $1,000,000 each were filed in City Court here today against Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., and Vitagraph, Inc., as producers and distributors of the film "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang" based on the book of Robert Elliott Burns, fugitive from Georgia.

The suits were filed by J. Harold Hardy, warden of the [illegible] County chain gang, from which Burns last escaped, and Paul Phillips, warden of the Campbell County chain gang, from which Burns made his first escape after serving only a short time following a conviction for robbery.

Warden Hardy recently went to New Jersey to appeal with former Assistant Attorney General John I. Kelley for Burns' return to Georgia. Gov. A. Harry Moore refused extradition.

The suits set forth that all incidents in both Burns' book and the film produced from it "are untrue, vicious and defamatory and constitute a libelous attack on the wardens and their respective chain gang camps."

TWO CHILDREN SAVED FROM FUMES

Two children were carried by their parents through gas-filled hallways to safety early today when an explosion in a refrigerator, followed by fire, threatened destruction of their home at 3733 Beechwood boulevard.

A short time before the lives of five persons, including three children, were imperiled when a bomb tossed at their home at 207 Edmond street, rear, fell short of its mark and exploded outside a cellar window.

AROUSES FAMILY

Awakened by the explosion in the kitchen of her Beechwood boulevard home, Mrs. Betty Brookes, wife of Stanley T. Brookes, of the Carnegie Museum, aroused her husband. Calling to two domestics, also asleep in the house, Mr. and Mrs. Brookes carried the two children, Hunter, 3, and Inda, 7 months, to the street as gaseous vapors filled the house.

Firemen, summoned first by a still alarm, then later by a box alarm, were forced to don gas masks to reach the fire, which was confined to the refrigerator, with a loss estimated at $200.

HELD IN BOMBING

Three men have been arrested by detectives of the bomb and arson squad for questioning in connection with the bombing of the home of Tony Santella, in Edmond street. Santella, his wife, Elizabeth, and three children, Herman, 12; Anna, 11, and Gloria, 5, were awakened by the blast, but were uninjured. The damage was slight.

Santella told detectives that the bombing had been threatened in three letters sent to him in September. The letters, almost identical, demanded $1,000, but gave no reason and specified no place for deposit of the money. Santella said he burned the first letter, but turned the others over to detectives.

OUTCOME OF FIGHT

It was believed that he was threatened in reprisal for threats made after his father-in-law had been beaten during a street fair in Bloomfield. The three suspects who said they were Felix Domenicus, 48, and his son, Elio D. Domenicus 21, both of 4612 Carroll street, and Pasquale Sciullo, 48, of 4900 Yew street, were involved, detectives said, in the street fair fight.

Residents of the neighborhood said the bomb apparently had been tossed from an automobile. It struck the cellar window, cracked the cement foundation and broke a window in the living room of the Santella house. The report of the explosion was heard over a radius of a mile.

Marriage 'Losing' Hold, Speaker Says

Marriage is losing its hold on men and women of today because both are seeking their economic independence, according to Dr. Nathan Miller, speaking before the Squirrel Hill branch of the Socialist party at 2223 Murray avenue, last night.

He said marriage has nothing to do with sex or romance, but that it was brought about by economic circumstances.

Livingston testified his wife informed him:

"You are out this time and you are going to stay out."

SHARING POLICE JOBS ARGUED

Heated debate at McKeesport Council's budget hearing yesterday, to determine whether the police force should work on stagger system to prevent dismissals, was met with cheers and boos from 300 spectators.

Shouts of "Fire him!" were hurled at Police Chief John J. Whalen by the spectators, when Patrolman John Rosepiler, head of the police pension fund, asserted the chief was the only person blocking the stagger system that would save the jobs of nine policemen. Whalen replied:

"I did not say that I would not take any time off. I will let Council decide what to do in the manner of staggering me and the rest of the force."

If Council's present budget is followed, 13 policemen will be dismissed. Rosepiler, however, would retire four men on pensions and retain the other nine on a basis of requiring each patrolman to take eight days off each month, the lieutenants and chief one day a week.

Further debate was scheduled today.

FIREMEN FIGHT PENSIONS

Three policemen and 12 firemen were engaged in a battle of wits today to save their jobs from the pensions ordered for them by Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and Public Safety Director James M. Clark.

Their first move was to refuse to sign the pension applications when called onto the retirement carpet by Clark.

Clark and Walsh are marking time. Meanwhile, the anti-pensioners have been given to understand that unless they change their minds they will be reduced to the sub list—which means virtual retirement without pension.

But they're scurrying around, seeing this ward leader and that, trying to amass enough political influence to keep their jobs.

Ralston, field director of the National Reform Association, will be the principal speaker Sunday night at a rally of 14 churches at the First Christian Church, Arch street and Montgomery avenue. His subject will be "America Looks Forward." It will be the closing meeting of the institute.

ARMED BANDIT SLUGGED BY VICTIM

Three robber suspects captured less than half an hour after a bandit pair had shot a man in the men's furnishing store of Herman Spiegel, 5282 Second avenue, last night, were being held in Oakland Police Station today.

Spiegel and his son, Bernard, 18, identified Leo Litfin, 21, of 608 Robert street, and Arthur Lorise, 22, of 214 Lombard street, as participants in the holdup, police said.

Lorise was pointed out as the man who wounded Edward Strong, 54, of 5224 Lytle street, in the store with his sons, John, 13, and David, 11, according to police.

Litfin and Lorise and Richard Connolly, 27, of 9 Jacksonia street, were captured by Radio Patrolmen James McCormick and Robert Conley at Wilkins avenue and Wightman street when they recognized the automobile in which the trio was riding, as the alleged bandit car. In the machine the officers reported finding two revolvers.

TWO DISMISSED FROM BALDWIN HEALTH BOARD

Two Baldwin Township health directors were dismissed at a meeting of the township commissioners last night. The action was the outcome of lack of harmony in the board, William E. Armstrong, chairman of the commissioners, said.

Alonzo Snee and Peter A. Kuenzig were ousted, and in their places were elected Thomas Osbourne and Mrs. William Hartmann. To make the change the commissioners dismissed the five members of the board and re-elected three.

Proposed salary reductions for the township's 70 employes will be acted upon at the next meeting, it was decided last night. Armstrong said the cuts would range from 10 to 40 per cent. The payroll amounts to about $40,000 annually.

The treasurer's report indicated the township had slightly over $1,000 in bank. Against this sum there will be a payroll of $2,000, the commissioners were told.

HUSBAND TRAILS 'OTHER MAN'

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Trailed across half the nation's states by a husband seeking retaliation for the alleged theft of his wife, Pattie Farren, 23, was arrested here early today.

The persistent husband, Earl Young, 28, of Philadelphia, brought about Farren's arrest, alleging he ran off with Mrs. Alberta Young, 24, more than a year ago.

Young told police that Farren is wanted in Texas for a bank holdup, in Tacoma, Wash., for the slaying of a priest, and for robberies in several other states.

Farren had Young arrested by telling police he was a fugitive from Marietta, O., where he was accused by Farren of jumping bail while awaiting trial after a holdup.

SHAW DERIDES EXILE THREAT

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Retorting to charges that his new book, "Black Girl in Search of God," is blasphemous, George Bernard Shaw today resurrected the Dayton, Tenn., "monkey trial."

The dramatist's outburst was prompted by a threat of the Wexford, Ireland, Beekeeper's Association, which stated Shaw would be expelled for blasphemy the next time he visited the town.

In a radio message to the London Daily Mail from the liner Empress of Britain, now at Aden on a round-the-world tour, Shaw said:

"Dayton, Tenn., may have tempted them to expel me. I can hardly believe the story, as my grandmother was a Wexford woman. They cannot have degenerated so within a single century. I would rather have expected them to erect a statue at Wexford to their most illustrious grandson."

QUIZ OF WATER COAL RATE HIT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators' Association spokesmen today were opposing an attempt to reopen the controversial question of rail-river rates in the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on Ohio intrastate coal freight rate reductions.

A motion was made to broaden the scope of the hearing to include the rail-river rates from points on the Ohio River division of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad to Canton, Massillon, Cleveland and Lorain, O.

A. G. Gutheim, representing the coal operators of Western Pennsylvania, demanded that the ex-river rates be left alone and all-rail rates reduced.

The commission had denied a previous motion to reopen the rail-river rates before the present hearing, which grew out of a 29-cent intrastate freight rate reduction by the Wheeling and Lake Erie on coal from Ohio No. 8 field to northern points.

JONES TO HAVE ANOTHER FINE TEAM

PROSPECTIVE OPPONENTS MAY resume worrying right away about how to stop Southern California in football next fall, for from all appearances the Trojans will be almost as formidable as they were this last season. Admittedly, such stars as Capt. Tay Brown, Ernie Smith and Ray Sparling are weighty losses, but Coach Howard Jones is so well fortified with material with which to reconstruct his team that the Coast machine will not easily be prevented from making a healthy addition to its winning streak of 20 games.

Homer Griffith

Homer Griffith, Bob Erskine, Kenneth Bright and Gordon Clark, the first-string backfield will return. So will all of the second-string backs, and Jones has so many reserves that he can move Erskine to Ernie Smith's place in the line and make Cal Clemons or Bob McNeish a regular halfback. George Lady is available for Brown's position, and he is 25 pounds heavier. If Lady fails, Stevens can be called on. Julis Bescos or Seixas can handle Sparling's post. Aaron Rosenberg returns for running guard, Youel comes back for center, Johnny Dye will be on hand for the other guard berth, and Ford Palmer stays at right end. Fortunately for Troy's hopes, the best two line prospects from the Frosh team are tackles, King Hall, 215, and Art Dittburner, 205, while there are at least three Frosh backs with varsity possibilities in Cliff Probst, 183, Jim Saunders, 183, and Gerard Burchard, 192.

TRACING BACK THE Giants' trading system, New York critics find it an involved one, with the home club getting less and less in a sequence of deals until now it has nothing to show for such valuable players as Frankie Frisch and Rogers Hornsby.

For Frisch and Jimmy Ring, the Giants received Hornsby. For Hornsby they received Frank Hogan and Jimmy Welsh. For Welsh they received Eddie Farrell. And for Farrell and Hogan they received a couple of dollars. It is figured that if the system is continued the club will wind up with Stoneham and Tierney in the lineup.

PLAYING MANAGERS, THOUGH on the increase, will not be quite as numerous in the major leagues this year as was at first believed. There will be only four of that type—Charley Grimm, of the Cubs; Bill Terry, of the Giants; Joe Cronin, of the Senators, and Lew Fonseca, of the White Sox.

The latest withdrawal is Marty McManus, of the Red Sox. It had been understood that McManus would hold down a regular position, but President Bob Quinn makes it known he wants McManus to spend most of his time on the bench.

QUINN SAYS THE hardest job in baseball, except that of building up a club, is to be a playing manager. "Managing a big league team is a very big job nowaways without complicating the situation by asking the manager to play at the same time," the Red Sox president remarks. "I realize that now and then supermen in baseball come along who can do what the average run of men cannot do. Fred Clarke was such a manager when he played the outfield and managed the old Pirates for years. Clarke was a very smart manager-player, a great batter and slick fielder, and won four pennants for Barney Dreyfuss in Pittsburgh. Bill Carrigan was another, though he did not play every day. Stanley Harris was successful, and Charley Grimm has done well so far. Perhaps Joe Cronin and Bill Terry also will be exceptions. But the most effective position for a big league manager is on the bench."

Marty McManus

SO QUINN HAS decided to make McManus a bench manager for the coming season, though admitting the possibility that Marty may get in there once in a while as a pinch hitter, or perhaps take an infield berth for a few days if a regular needs a rest.

The Red Sox boss is sold on the bench manager idea to such an extent that he says he would even prefer to have a pilot not take a position on the coaching lines. He reasons that even there the manager might miss something that he would see and capitalize if back in the dugout.

MANY OBSERVERS, WATCHING the Trojans in action this last football season, got the idea that their attack was based entirely on power, with very little deception. But you may take it from the scarred Panthers that this was by no means the case.

The Southern California machine had plenty of power in its plays rightly enough, but there was also a great deal of deception to the attack. Any formation that permits a sound play for each hole in the defensive line, without rearrangement of the backfield, can be used to create deception.

A TEAM THAT attacks all points along the defensive line with a set formation, and with plays that look alike at the start, has an offense that keeps the enemy guessing. This brings from one smart coach the observation that fancy-looking plays are not essential to a deceptive attack. Some of the most deceptive offenses have looked rather simple, while some that appeared complicated were easy to diagnose. Probably one of the simplest looking attacks, and yet one that carries lots of deception, is one in which the ball always is passed to the same back. With each play starting the same way, the defense has no idea as to where the ball carrier is headed until he makes his final cut.

FROM THIS SYSTEM, end runs, tackle plays, bucks and passes all look alike during the initial stages of the play, and it is not until the last thrust is made that the defensive players are able to tell the spot to be attacked. U. S. C. has an offense along those lines.

The thing that makes the double wing-back so effective is that, theoretically, every point along the line may be hit equally well. There is no strong side or weak side to this formation. It is just as easy to run a play off one tackle as off the other.

Among the bad guesses of 1932 may be listed that of Charley Berry, who resigned his fall job as football coach at Grove City when the Red Sox traded him to the White Sox. Berry was figuring that the Chicago city series would take up his time in the fall.

But the Cubs fell down on him. Which leads one meanie to remark that at that the Cubs probably would have had more fun in a city series with the White Sox than they had in the world series. And certainly less embarrassment.

Bill Carr

SOME TRACK COACHES doubt the success of the course mapped out for Bill Carr, Penn's great runner. Carr beat Ben Eastman four times on the coast last summer and in winning the Olympic 400 meters set a world record of 46.2 seconds. But while called "the greatest quarter miler of all time," Bill will not run that distance this year. He is going to be a sprinter. The doubts expressed by other experts do not alarm Lawson Robertson, Penn track coach, who made the switch. He will use Carr in the 100 and 200 meters dashes and believes Bill will find the sprints no more difficult than the 400, proving more valuable to Penn as a sprinter than as a quarter-miler. Robertson thinks Carr can run the 200 as fast as Eddie Tolan.

CITY LEAGUE, W. P. I. A. L. FIVES SET

By JULIUS LEVIN

Their pre-season schedules completed, basketball teams representing the high schools in Western Pennsylvania are awaiting the inaugural league contests tomorrow afternoon and evening.

The members of the City League, both seniors and juniors, will be the first to toe the mark, inasmuch as the local quintets play their games in the afternoon, while the W. P. I. A. L. contestants, both seniors and juniors, in the majority of the cases perform in the evening.

Both the City League and the W. P. I. A. L. have discarded the 10-second rule in favor of the three-second rule.

Tomorrow's contests in the City League will be barred to all visiting students as a result of a ruling adopted by the schools. Owing to the limited seating capacities at the majority of the floors, the officials have decided to permit only students of the home team to witness the games.

The opening contests in the City League senior race finds Allderdice at Connelley, Fifth Avenue at Peabody and Westinghouse at South, while in Section II, Perry will invade Carrick, Allegheny plays at Allegheny Vocational and Langley at South Hills.

A full schedule of games will be played by the seniors and juniors of the W. P. I. A. L.

Admission prices have been slashed at all schools to meet the times.

School Notes

T. J. Cutteback, coach at South Hills High, has a veteran squad available for the Section II race in the City League. He will have his team intact throughout the season as South Hills does not permit any boy, who graduates in February, to play basketball.

Perry High School is going to bear watching in the Section II race of the City League as Coach Chester A. Smith has a fine squad at his disposal. Jimmy Manning, Joe DiMatteo and Bob Kornick, three of the boys who helped win the city football championship for Perry, are members of the team.

It took an aggressive alumni quintet to check the winning streak of the New Castle High passers. The Brridenbaugh charges scored four successive triumphs before bowing to the graduates. South, of Pittsburgh, and Westinghouse were included among the pre-season victims. New Castle invaded Rochester for its Section III opener tomorrow.

Glassport High, co-champion with Springdale High in the class B football race in 1932, is eager to complete its grid card for 1933. November 3 and November 17 or 18 are available for teams having these dates open. Arrangements for games may be completed by calling Coach Roy Hickes at Glassport 2-7479.

Boasting a string of nine successive pre-season victories, Scott High is set for its opening league battle with Edgewood at Edgewood tomorrow night. This is a Section VIII fray. Wally Pickett's team also has enjoyed a successful pre-season campaign and will be eager to check the Reedmen.

Ambridge and Aliquippa, two of the favorites in the Section IV race, are slated for action in league openers tomorrow. Ambridge entertains Freedom at Ambridge, while Midland is host to Aliquippa. The Lippemen, of Aliquippa, scored seven straight triumps after bowing to the Aluminites.

Rip' Based on Scientific Tests-National Business Show, Chicago

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—For nine years (1853-1861) the three Washburn brothers, Cadwallader C., Elihu B. and Israel, sat in Congress at the same time, representing different districts of different states. C. C. represented the Sixth District of Wisconsin, 1855-1871; E. B. was the representative from Galena, Ill., 1853-1869; while Israel sat from Orono, Me., 1851-1861. A fourth brother, William D., was congressman from Minnesota from 1879 to 1885. Israel and C. C. eventually rose to be governors of their states, while E. B. was President Grant's Secretary of State and minister to France. They were the distinguished sons of a distinguished father, Israel Washburn, of Livermore, Me., the family holding a unique record in public service.

COACH DAVIES BENCHES PAIR OF REGULARS

By JESS CARVER

Having heard from the Lawrence County, Washington, D. C., Adrian, Mich., and Bloomington, Ind., precincts, Pittsburgh may now prepare to sit back and await developments along the college basketball front this week-end as Mercer County and Philadelphia shoot varsity projectiles this way.

The week-end program gets under way tomorrow night in the Dukes' gymnasium as Robert Methuselah Thorn fetches his crack Grove City quintet to town to offer the Dukes their second tough test of the week. The Dukes fell flat in their first, bowing to Westminster here Tuesday night, in a game that did the local record and Coach Chick Davies' disposition little good.

PITT FACES TEMPLE

Saturday night, Pitt's Golden Panthers, who appear to be getting tougher and tougher, take on their second Eastern Intercollegiate Conference foe of the campaign in Jimmy Usilton's Temple University Owls. The same evening, Max Hannum matches his Carnegie Techers against West Virginia in another Conference clash at Morgantown.

The Dukes may as well make up their minds here and now that whatever improvement in play was needed against Westminster will be just as necessary against Grove City. It looks like Thorn has about as formidable a squad this year as he's ever coached. He has a trio of excellent performers in George Stavnitsky, Fegley and Laycock if he hasn't another thing. This Stavnitsky, when only 50 per cent "right," is a tough customer. He's the type of player who gets hot without warning, and is just as likely to take eight pops at the hoop and ring up seven field goals. Fo'give me.

He did just that against Geneva two years ago and it cost the Covenanters a ball game they apparently had sewed safely in the old bag.

Coach Davies gave his Dukes Hail Columbia as he called 'em together for yesterday's workout, and wound up benching two regulars and threatening like punishment to any others of the starting array who felt they could afford to loaf. Capt. Bunk McGeever and Jim MacDougall were relegated to the second team and Irving Brenner and Paul Birch promoted to starting jobs.

Brenner will jump center and Birch will play MacDougall's forward.

GROVERS SEEK REVENGE

Last year, the Grovers dropped two close decisions to the Dukes, losing here by a 25-to-22 count and on their own floor by 25 to 23. Nothing would bring the flush of youth and joy to the cheeks of Coach Thorn quicker than to have his Crimsons emulate Westminster by stopping the highly touted, but somewhat abashed, Dukes.

It will be a ball game, pards, a real ball game.

Maxie Hannum, at Tech, still is working with a crippled squad as he preps the lads for their inaugural with the Mountaineers. He hardly counts on being able to use either Red Fergus or Lou Jagnow Sat'day, and without Red and Lou, Carnegie will be like the Yankees without Ruth and Gehrig.

Doc Carlson, at Pitt, is having some difficulty in keeping his Panthers from becoming careless, following their splendid triumph over Purdue, but anticipates no trouble in having the boys ready for a business-like evening against Temple.

PREXIES SLICE SPORT CARD

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 5.—Abolishment of freshman basketball and curtailment of the varsity boxing and wrestling schedules has been decided upon by the athletic authorities at Wash-Jeff in keeping with the school's athletic retrenchment policy.

The basketball schedule, which opens tonight as the varsity passers open a three-game trip by meeting West Virginia Wesleyan at Buckhannon, W. Va., will not be affected.

One wrestling match has been cancelled, the meeting with Western Reserve in Cleveland. This was done at the request of Reserve.

Detroit has been substituted on the football schedule for next year in the place of Marquette, according to Athletic Director Wilbur (Pete) Henry.

Local Lads Miss Rose Bowl Fray, But Make Jail

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Two Pittsburgh boys and their two companions came to California to see the Rose Bowl football game in Pasadena, but arrived too late and wound up in jail.

They were Edward Melvin, 19, and William Johnson, 17. They told police they had stolen the motor car they were driving in Pittsburgh. Their companions, Guy Davis, 17, and George Stacy, 22, both of Richland, Va., were held on charges of petty theft.

Police said the boys had stolen a tire and gasoline from a parked car.

PANTHERS VISIT AT CANYON

WILLIAMS, Ariz., Jan. 5.—After taking one licking at the hands of giant University of Southern California linemen and backs, the Pitt Panthers take another one today from the passenger burros of the Bright Angel trail in the Grand Canyon.

In today's battle the edge lies with the burros, who will have all the breaks, except in the case of the one scheduled to cart John (Blimp) Valenti up and down the sides of the Canyon.

The Panthers, homeward bound, but still a long way off, as they reminded each other while crossing the desert yesterday afternoon, arrived at the Grand Canyon this morning. They will leave for Albuquerque, N. M., this afternoon.

Tomorrow will be spent at the Indian village a few miles from the New Mexican capital.

The big laugh since the game (and about the only one) came when Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante saw Mike Nicksick and Dick Matesic together on a Hollywood movie lot. The popular movie star took one look and then asked them to please leave the grounds as he didn't want such tough competition standing around in front of casting directors in these times of depression.

Pitt 'Dents' to Honor Coach Sutherland

Coach Jock Sutherland, of the Pitt football team, which arrives back in Pittsburgh next Sunday from its jaunt to Pasadena, Cal., for the Tournament of Roses game on New Years Day, will be the guest of honor at a testimonial banquet to be held in the Schenley Hotel Saturday night of next week under the auspices of the Alumni Association of the School of Dentistry of the University of Pittsburgh.

Attendance will be limited to 250 and will be confined to members of the association.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Billy Stevens is in town . . . Of course, you don't know Billy Stevens, for this is his first visit to Pittsburgh . . . He hails originally from Philadelphia, and has spent many of his years in Chicago, where he published Bang, one of the best of the boxing magazines, and was closely identified with Nate Lewis, the late Paddy Harmon, Jack Kearns and other big men of the sport . . . Now he is located in Cleveland, where he is managing fighters, doing publicity work and planning to promote fights . . . He left Chicago because the boxing game was falling upon evil days there, with the receipts at the shows dwindling and dwindling and dwindling.

Stevens is a young man of ideas, some of them his own, many of them acquired by contact with men of greater experience in boxing. . . . He owns a knowledge of boxing and the men in it that is amazing. . . . While publishing his magazine one of his feature departments was a compilation of results of bouts and an accurate table of gate receipts. . . . He can tell you offhand the $50,000 cities, the $25,000 towns, the $10,000 villages, the $5,000 hamlets and the sticks where they're lucky to draw expenses. . . . Right now most of them are in the last-mentioned category.

Billy is here to handle Louis DiSantis in his 10-round battle with Battling Gizzy at the Arena over on the North Side tomorrow night. . . . The first thing he did upon his arrival was to compile data on conditions here and go into a huddle with himself to figure out ways and means of putting some life into the sport locally. . . . He suggested that the promoters cut prices, build up local talent and plan matches that might stir interest and in other ways steam up things generally. . . . When informed that the city was suffering from the depression, plus a series of ordinary matches, he threw up his hands in horror.

"Don't talk depression to me," he exclaimed . . . "That's a naughty word . . . And I think it's largely a state of mind . . . Everwhere you go you hear people talking about hard times . . . That's all they do—talk about them . . . Why don't they all get together and hustle and keep plugging? . . . Then things will right themselves soon enough . . . Take my case, for instance . . . I'm doing fine . . . Why? . . . Because I'm hustling . . . One of the fighters I am handling couldn't get a fight in his home town or anywhere else . . . He's just an ordinary fighter, tough enough, but lacking in color . . . By working along with the promoters and helping them in every way to promote the matches, I have have had him in a dozen spots and right now I have several more offers for him . . . This depression will lick only those who will let themselves be licked."

Pittsburgh always has held a high place in the esteem of Stevens . . . He says it commands respect from boxing managers all over the country . . . "They're always willing to listen to an offer from Pittsburgh," he says, "because they believe that this is fundamentally one of the best fight towns in the country . . . You have a lot of fans here, who will patronize the shows if the promoters will give them something for their money . . . The sport will not die out here if properly handled . . . In fact, I'd like to have a part in shaking it out of the doldrums."—HARRY KECK.

MATTHEWS RE-SIGNED

SEATTLE, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Football Coach Matt Matthews, former Idaho and Gonzaga mentor, has signed a contract to coach the West Side Athletic Club eleven again next year. His team lost only two games last fall to West Coast Navy and the University of Washington.

ARENA BATTLES COMPLETE

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Johnny Baylog has been matched with Curly Klaas, of the North Side, in the second bout to round out the weekly boxing card at the Arena, on the North Side, tomorrow night.

Battling Gizzy, local lightweight, and Louis DiSantis, of Cleveland, box the 10-round windup, and Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight stablemate of Gizzy, meets Frankie Jarr, of Fort Wayne, Ind., in another 10-rounder. Shorty Washko and Petey Jahn are in the six-round opener.

Matchmaker Jules Back, of Motor Square Garden announces the Garden will not operate for boxing next Monday night, but he is planning a good show for the following Monday.

Between Rounds

Louis DiSantis has boxed here twice before, beating Patsy Hennigan and Don Asto in bouts at Hickey Park, Millvale. Others he has met include Joe Ghnouley in St. Louis, U. S. Carpentier, Wesley Ramey, Patsy Severo, Jackie Johnston, Pete Mazzeo and Maxie Koshover.

Gypsy Kid, of Youngstown, is in training here for bouts against any of the bantamweights. He boxed Jimmy Thomas at the Moose Temple two years ago and has done most of his campaigning in Ohio.

Billy Holt, fresh from his surprise victory over Manuel Quintero at the Garden, New Years night, is on the trail of a match with Teft Yarosz, whom he boxed twice in the early days of their careers, and the club is trying to arrange the match.

CHISOX DROP OPTIONS

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The Chicago White Sox roster has been trimmed by the release on options of three youngsters, two pitchers and an outfielder, Willis Norman, who has had two trials in the Sox outfield, has been sent to the Louisville club of the American Association. Joe Bartulis, hurler, has been sent back to Buffalo, of the International League, and Phil Gallivan will accompany him.

ALUMNUS RAPS POP WARNER

PALO ALTO, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Glen S. (Pop) Warner, veteran Stanford football coach, who recently resigned to go to Temple University, has been accused by Frank Guerena, alumnus, of laxity in making the acquaintance of members of his freshman and reserve football squads.

Guerena, chairman of the staff committee of Stanford's board of athletic control, made the accusation at a meeting of the committee last night when the subject of a successor to Warner came up for discussion. Guerena said:

"Mr. Warner never went to a freshman game and the only time he saw the reserves was when they scrimmaged the varsity."

No definite recommendation was made for a successor to Warner. Tonight the board of athletic control will meet as a whole for the announced purpose of selecting a head coach.

Candidates under consideration are C. E. (Tiny) Thornhill, former assistant coach under Warner, and Clipper Smith, coach of Santa Clara University.

RICKARD SIGNS GENE TO BOX FOR TITLE

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

On July 3, 1925, I boxed in Kansas City, Kan., Italian Jack Herman, whom I knocked out in two rounds. Wondering why the first metacarpal of my left hand, injured in the Gibbons match, was still sore, I went to see a doctor.

He examined my throat and said the soreness was probably due to diseased tonsils. He suggested I have them removed.

I came East, and, after having this diagnosis corroborated by Dr. Bob Shea, had the tonsils removed.

While recuperating from the operation, Bill McCabe, my old friend from the A. E. F., and I took a motor trip through upper New York State. Bill being confidential agent to the superintendent of state prisons, we visited a few prisons. While in Dannemora, McCabe received a telegram from Tex Rickard, whom he had never met, requesting him to come down to New York for a conference. We immediately suspected it had something to do with me, as the New York papers carried a news item that McCabe and I were visiting the state prisons. Rickard, we thought, evidently had read the report and decided the quickest way to get in touch with me was through McCabe. This was about the end of July, 1925.

Gene Tunney

BACKED BY MULDOON

Rickard told McCabe he was unable to get in touch with Billy Gibson, my manager, to talk over the possibilities of matching me with Jack Dempsey.

Rickard later told me that Commissioner Muldoon and he decided on that match and Muldoon advised Rickard to make it immediately. Muldoon has corroborated Rickard's story. I had told McCabe that if the Rickard conference were for the purpose of getting in touch with me it would be fine if he would make an appointment for me. McCabe did and advised me by telegraph.

Rickard and I met at the home of Jimmy Eagleton, at Fourteenth street and Eighth avenue a few days later. McCabe and I were in Eagleton's apartment when a limousine drove up to the door—an unusual sight for this part of the city. We saw Tex step out with his walking stick on his arm and a cigar in his mouth. He looked around to make sure he had the right number.

SOUGHT BY RICKARD

Jimmy Eagleton, opening the street door, said:

"This is the place, Mr. Rickard."

Jimmy ushered him up to the apartment. As he came in, I walked toward him with extended hand, and, on shaking it, Tex said:

"Gene, I want to match you to fight Dempsey."

"There is nothing I want more," I replied.

We sat and talked for about half an hour. In answer to my query why he had not got in touch with me immediately after the Gibbons match, he said:

"Gene, the next day I telephoned Gibson's office and have telephoned an average of three times a week since, but each time he is out. Billy owes me some money and he probably thinks I have been calling him to ask for it. To hell with the $17,000—what I want is his consent to have you box Jack Dempsey."

I hastened to assure Rickard that, though his great concern was to make the Dempsey match, he need have no fear about the money Gibson owed him. Billy sooner or later paid his debts.

As Tex got up to leave, he said:

(I subsequently learned Rickard was kidding me about this particular thing.)

RICKARD POOR PROVIDER

"All I want is a chance to try," I replied.

"How much do you think it will cost you to live a year after you became champion?"

I thought this a rather curious thing for him to ask.

"Oh, $10,000 or $12,000 a year would certainly be all I could find use for," I said.

Tex laughed and added:

"Seventy thousand or $80,000 will not pay your bills."

He underestimated, as I later found out.

Tex's interest in my annual money needs became understandable as I got to know him better. We had numerous contacts after I won the championship and eventually I was taken into his confidence somewhat. The first consideration of all Tex's efforts was to get a good stake, something that would assure him of a decent income. He thought in terms of annuities, but, as far as I know, never established one. This anxiety about secured income undoubtedly developed from his long experience as a gambler. Gamblers have their ups and downs. Tex knew the lean years as well as the fat ones. He tasted of the bitterness of adversity in his youth and, as he matured, wanted to secure himself against it in old age. But Tex was a born gambler, and, though his reason dictated the setting up of an insurance annuity, his instincts were to take a chance.

He did and, unfortunately, his wife and child lost.

GOAL AT HAND

As the Rickard limousine pulled away from the curb, I saw the gap between plan and achievement bridged with the assistance of the great builder, Tex Rickard. My plan to fight my way to the point of recognition as a challenger for the heavyweight championship had been achieved. The inspiration that came to me while talking to McReynolds on the Rhine River boat in the spring of 1919 was about to blossom forth. The years of planning, designing, training, fighting and climbing had brought me to the mountain top from which I could see the promised land.

Though it is a fine achievement for a man to fight his way into a position of recognition as a serious contender for the highest honors that pugilism has to offer, it is quite another thing to get the match. I had double reason to be happy. I was a logical contender and Tex Rickard promised me the match. Several days later I received, at Saratoga Springs, a telephone call from Tex Rickard. He said he was coming up to see me to talk over a Wills match to force Dempsey's hand. During this conference between Rickard, Billy Gibson and myself, Rickard advised he had found out that unless I eliminated Wills, the New York State Boxing Commission would not recognize me as a challenger for the world heavyweight championship. I agreed to fight Wills.

GETS $200,000 GUARANTEE

Rickard said:

"I will give you a guarantee of $150,000."

"Make it $200,000 and the fight is on," put in Gibson.

"All right," said Tex, "the fight's on."

It was arranged that we should come to New York and sign the contract in the presence of the usual group of writers and photographers. We did this, but my prospective opponent, Harry Wills, and his manager, for reasons best known to themselves, failed to appear. Tex offered Wills the same terms that I was to get. Wills was confident that the Boxing Commission would uphold his prior rights to contendership; so he refused to accept the match and the $200,000. He continued to pursue his peaceful attitude toward all mankind—excepting carefully selected setups.

Wills, poor fellow, was frightfully misguided from a financial point of view. Harry fought but one match after that in which he received a fair-sized purse. It was against Jack Sharkey, six days after my first fight with Jack Dempsey. He received something in the neighborhood of $25,000 and suffered a technical knockout in 13 rounds, thereby establishing the unsoundness of the commission's action in making him the leading contender and settling, definitely and finally, his pretensions.

A DUAL TRAGEDY

There was a double tragedy occasioned by the Wills-Sharkey fight; the financial tragedy to Wills and the spiritual tragedy to Dempsey. Six days earlier, Dempsey had lost his title to an upstart. Had he fought Wills instead of Tunney he would have probably won in a round or two, got more money, and retired with the championship. His name would have become immortal among athletes. Dempsey, like Spartacus, undoubtedly would have become a tradition. Instead he selected the one he considered the weaker of the two and became the designer of his own tragedy.

I have often wondered what his thoughts were as he sat, battered and disfigured, confined to a room in the Belmont Hotel, when the report arrived that Sharkey had easily whipped Wills.

Tomorrow, Tunney will describe his knockout of Bartley Madden and the howl that went up from the wolves, hungry for "pieces" of a rich Dempsey-Wills gate.

Tunney Story in Review

In previous chapters, the author has described his career from active-fisted days as a Greenwich Village office boy, through New York fight clubs prior to the war, his winning of the A. E. F. light-heavyweight championship as a U. S. Marine, his capturing that American professional ring title via victory over Battling Levinsky and his loss of it, badly whipped in one of the bloodiest contests ever fought in old Madison Square Guarden, to Harry Greb, early in 1922. After a rest and several good tune-up bouts, Gene changed managers (paying Doc Bagley $5,000 for his contract and signing with Billy Gibson) and finally cornered Greb for a return bout in the spring of 1923. Gene regained the crown, winning a close decision from Greb in 1923, repeats decisively in a third encounter; and, during the summer of 1924 he stopped Erminio Spalla, European heavyweight champ, and Georges Carpentier in thrilling open air bouts at New York City. Financing of the latter match led to friction with Jimmy Johnston and also with the New York State Athletic Commission. Tunney outpoints Greb in their final (fifth) encounter and definitely paves the way for a bout with Jack Dempsey by knocking out Tom Gibbons in the twelfth round on June 5, 1925. "Cowardly and contemptible whisperings" assail Gene's victories, "set-ups" and "dives" being alleged while Harry Wills, Negro challenger and "pet challenger of the boxing commission," clamors for the first crack at Dempsey.

Benswanger's Son Asks To Sit With Kids

The man who made children of all creeds and color welcome at Forbes Field is apt to feel a real thrill soon when he sees a light-haired kid of five years slide through the free gate of the Oakland orchard.

The lad in question celebrated his fifth birthday anniversary yesterday and the only present he asked was permission to sit with the other kids in the right field seats this summer. His dad also crashes the gate at Forbes Field.

The youngster is Billy Benswanger, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Benswanger, and a grandchild of the late Barney Dreyfuss.

BABE ISSUES DEFI TO BABE

By PAT ROBINSON

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Back from a shopping tour that included the purchase of her first evening gown, Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, world champion girl athlete, today issued a challenge to meet Babe Ruth, preferably, or any other male athlete who thinks he's good, in a round robin of sport events. The stakes will be for fun or a side bet.

The feminine Babe suggests that the round robin include tennis, billiards, swimming, diving, golf, bowling, sprinting, jumping, handball, and says:

"Just to give that big fellow a chance, to win at least one event, I'll include throwing the baseball for distance."

This is no idle threat from the brown-haired, gray-eyed girl from the Texas ranges. She's a wonder at tennis and billiards. She has 272 for a bowling mark, she holds the world record for girls in throwing a baseball and after only 10 or 12 golf games, she had reduced her score to 82 over a stiff 18-hole course.

The young lady asks no handicap from Babe Ruth in any event.

'NOW IT CAN BE TOLD'

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Damon and Pythias, of Syracuse, had more at stake when pinch-hittin' for each other within the shadow of the executioner and there is no doubt that these historic heroes were big leaguers in every respect. But Syracuse had no team in those under-publicized days; fast friends did not fight each other on the field of glittering spikes and dust-off pitches, so the friendship of the old-time buddies was not called upon to face the test passed by Harold Traynor and Freddie Lindstrom, whose admiration for each other is one of the fine things developed on the diamond. A new and perhaps interesting chapter might be written around Pie and Fred, now that Lindstrom has come under the same banner that holds Traynor's allegiance.

Pie Traynor

Fred Lindstrom

Somerville Pie was established as baseball's greatest third baseman when Lindstrom, about 20, became an overnight sensation as he performed at the same post under the direction of John J. McGraw. In more recent years, Fred informed me, he strove to emulate the moves of the Pirate star, and the boy, owing a somewhat similar physique, was able to get very close to the pattern that fascinated him; indeed, there are some who will insist that Fred, in the course of several years, became as proficient and as dazzling around the hot corner as Traynor, but the fair-haired athlete with the Viking moniker would not subscribe to the contention. Said Fred, in effect:

"Pie is a better player—he makes plays that I cannot make."

A FIGHTER'S LEXICON

It might be mentioned here that Manager McGraw removed Lindstrom from third base owing to a back injury which bothered him on certain plays, especially in the fielding of bunts.

Back in the days of the Orioles a player might have a deep admiration for a rival performer, but a public utterance to this effect would bring a storm of abuse from his teammates. You might think that way, but not out loud. Lindstrom, as he has strikingly proved by his actions and statements of the past six months, has a mind of his own.

WHEN GENTLEMEN SCRAP

The Pirates and Giants were battling in an important game at Forbes Field. The day was hot as the scrap, and his team defeated in a close fight, McGraw retired to his hotel half sick. The players also felt the strain for a long period after the game.

It so happened that a friend of Traynor and Lindstrom, Harry Mooney, of Tennyson avenue, had invited the two third-sackers to his home for dinner. The athletes had just about recovered their poise as they sat down with other guests at their host's table. Only a few hours before Pie and Fred had been robbing each other of hits and that sort of thing in their desire to win. As the meal was served, the beaming Lindstrom remarked:

"Pie, one of these days I'm going to get one of those legitimate doubles past you. That diving stop and throw you pulled on me today certainly did cool me off even if it was about 100 out there."

"JUST LUCK"—PIE

A hint of apology was in the smile of the self-effacing Traynor as he answered:

"I was very lucky on that play, Fred—when I dove I was fortunate in pushing the ball in front of my throwing hand, where I could recover for a play. The rest was easy—but that assist you made on your left side on Grantham's smash was a much harder play. You were all out of position after you snagged the sphere in one hand, but you got the ball away perfectly to catch a fast man. I don't think I could make the same play.

Lindy continued, as he kicked the feet of some of the guests:

"No, I guess not. You never made it more than 50 times!"

Fred resumed:

HOW COULD YOU, HAROLD?—

"But, Pie— do you know, I thought I had you tricked when you came whirling into third from second on that single. Instead of throwing to the plate, Ott flipped the ball to me on a perfect hop. I fifured you did not know it was coming and I feigned it was not on the way. I thought you would make the turn and I would have you flat-footed. And was my face red when you stepped right onto the bag and remarked to me that it was a pretty hot day. You know, I can pull that on some of the boys, but I guess I forgot for the moment that you were a third baseman, too."

What a boon it is for any club to own two players whose team play faculties are of such a pronounced nature. If Pie and Fred could carry on against each other while having such mutual feelings, how far should they go when their interests are on a common ground?

"I'm a conservative driver—but I want an oil that can hit 100!"

CONSERVATIVE speeds may suit you to a T. You may never want to drive faster than 40-miles-an-hour...

But whether you speed or not, the oil you use should be the 100-mile-an-hour oil—GULF SUPREME! And here's why...

The oil that can win out under the terrific punishment of 100-miles-an-hour is a better, safer oil! It's good at high speeds—and doubly good at lesser speeds!

It gives you more protection against wear. It gives you extra richness. Extra stamina. Extra lubrication!

And it amazed race-drivers at the Indianapolis Speedway by out-performing special "racing oils"! It lubricated a thundering Duesenberg racer—under Official AAA supervision—at speeds almost as high as two miles a minute. An average speed for the one-hour, non-stop run of better than 100-miles-an-hour!

WARNING!
... OIL that isn't good at high speeds, isn't good enough at ANY speed!

Drive into any Gulf station now. Drain worn oil. Refill with Gulf Supreme. There's a grade for every climate. Its ability to take punishment means money in your pocket—and longer life for your motor!

PROS STEAL GRIDIRON SHOW

PAID ELEVENS HELD NATURAL LEADERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—College football is not on the decline, merely because it is one of the victims of the business depression, the president's research committee on social trends believes, but it faces the possibility that public interest may eventually shift from college to professional football because of the superior skill of the latter.

Dr. J. F. Steiner, professor of sociology at the University of Washington, who contributed the chapter on sports and recreation to the national report, said:

"If this should happen, college football may follow college baseball and decline as a public spectacle, becoming a game of no more than local interest.

"That grave ills have resulted from the stress and struggle to win football championships there can be no doubt. A few of the leading colleges and universities already have attempted to reorganize their athletics more in accord with general student welfare and educational ideals."

The section on sports in the survey conducted by the president's committee, in its football features, follows somewhat the lines of the famous "Bulletin 23" of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, published in October, 1929.

It points out that college football, because of its tremendous investments in stadia, which must be paid for in future years, establishes the sport as something more than a "passing whim."

GOLFERS TIED FOR MEDAL

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Jimmy Thomson, of Colorado Springs, and Emory Zimmerman, of Portland, Ore., led the qualifiers for the Los Angeles open golf tournament, which gets under way tomorrow.

They shot 139's, three under par, for the 36 holes yesterday, to lead the field of 78, who, by virtue of scores of 157 or better, earned the right to play for the $5,000 prize money.

Holes-in-one were turned in by two of the contestants, both amateurs. The aces were scored by Johnny Mescal, of Culver City, Cal., on No. 14 hole of the Sunset Fields course, and by E. R. Maule, of Los Angeles, on No. 11.

Thirty-two entrants were exempt, including Gene Sarazen, British and United States open champion, who is en route here for the tournament.

Third among the qualifiers was Eddie Loos, of Chicago, with 140. Charles Guest, of Deal, N. J., shot 141 to take fourth.

Coach Burke Given Release by Yankees

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The New York Yankees have announced the unconditional release of Coach Jimmy (Sunset) Burke and a roster of 33 players who will make the trek to the World Champions' spring training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., in two detachments March 1 and 8.

The roster revealed that Red Rolfe, former Dartmouth shortstop star who played sensational ball with Newark on the International League Yankee farm, would not go South with the team. The names of Ed Wells, veteran southpaw, and George Selkirk, young outfielder, also were excluded from the list.

East Washington Out of Section XV

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 5.—East Washington High School will not be represented in Section XV of the W. P. I. A. L., officials have announced, and will be replaced by Cumberland Township, of Greene County, originally listed for Section XVI competition.

East Washington authorities announced a curtailment in sports, football being abandoned and basketball not coming under the heading of a varsity sport this winter. The school, however, will play a non-league schedule with district rivals.

Grimes Contends He's 'New Man'

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Burleigh Grimes, veteran pitcher for the Chicago Cubs, says he's a "new man" now that he has separated from his trouble-making appendix.

He expects his recent trip to the operating table of a St. Louis hospital—together with the big pitchers of milk he's drinking down on the farm—to make trouble for the sluggers who walk up to the plate when he is on the mound next season.

Vanities Oppose Canonsburg Girls

Gob and Max Puzzled

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey, avowed enemy of Jack Dempsey, today was puzzled over a huge basket of flowers sent aboard his ship just before he sailed to Bermuda with his wife for a vacation. They bore the card of Dempsey. He glared and demanded:

"Is somebody trying to kid me?"

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Is Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, now matched by Joe Jacobs, his manager, to box Max Baer for Jack Dempsey next summer, at the point of breaking with Jacobs for maneuvering him out of a return bout for the title with Jack Sharkey?

Maybe yes, maybe no. At any rate, he has sent a German newspaper correspondent to Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of Madison Square Garden, to find out what the shooting's all about. It seems Max is somewhat bewildered by what has transpired, and is beginning to question the sagacity of Jacobs.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—There'll be no more roughhouse or burlesque wrestling bouts in Chicago. Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission, is fed up on them, and says that hereafter the grapplers will have to cut out their pyrotechnics and actually wrestle or get out. He doesn't care whether or not the customers go to sleep, just so the wrestlers really wrestle.

HOCKEY MOGULS MAKE CHANGES IN RULES

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The governors of the National Hockey League have made two minor changes in the rules, changed the style of officiating to put the game under the control of only one referee and named two new governors to represent Chicago and the New York Rangers.

Col. John S. Hammond, who recently resigned as president of the Rangers, and Maj. Frederick McLaughlin, president of the Chicago Black Hawks, resigned as governors and were replaced by William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, and W. J. Tobin, business manager of the Black Hawks.

The change in the method of officiating places the game entirely in the hands of one referee, who will call all fouls, impose penalties and have general charge of the game.

One of the rules changes eliminates a conflict as to the penalty to be imposed for a substitute player being on the ice during play before the man he relieved had left the rink. Two rules covered almost identical cases heretofore, with a major penalty provided in one case and a minor in the other. Rule 31, which imposed a major penalty, was removed from the books.

The other rule change was to No. 17, which prohibited any player except the goalie from batting the puck. The rule was amended to allow any player to bat the puck with his open hand provided he then handled the puck himself before any other member of his team touched it.

BOOTERS AWAIT CUP DUELS

By TOM BIRKS

Three National Cup games will attract district soccer fans Sunday afternoon, all of which appear to be interesting affairs. The closest struggle should be the Cecil-Curry game, booked for South Park.

At Gallatin, Moon Run, with a sensational victory over the Zoneys, clashes with Gallatin. Moon Run, playing typical cup tie soccer, pulled the big surprise of the season when it eliminated the Shannonites. Valley Camp, with its hard plugging eleven, should prove tougher than the Zoneys.

The Strip aggregation needs one victory to win the title, which gives it a decided advantage over the Clansmen. The battle stacks up as anybody's game. Lawrenceville appears to have the best defense, but the Douglas attack has an edge.

SOCCER DATES SET

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Dates for sectional qualifying play among American Soccer League teams in the United States Football Association cup competition were announced yesterday with the league divided into two sections.

The five New York teams,—Hakoak, Bohemians, Wanderers, Americans and Field Club—will meet each other once in a round-robin series beginning Sunday and continuing through February 5. The winner of the competition, decided on a goal average if there is a tie in won and lost percentage, will meet the winner of a round-robin series among the four New England teams—Fall River, Pawtucket and Boston, of the league, and Victoria Mills F. C., of the Southern New England Association. The New England teams will play each other twice.

The winner of the eastern semi-final will play the western semi-final winner for the cup won last year by New Bedford, Stix-Baer-Fuller, of St. Louis, was the western finalist last year.

Newland Defeated In Miami Play

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 5.—E. B. Newland, of Pittsburgh, failed to survive the first round of match play in the annual mid-winter amateur championship golf tournament over the Miami Country Club. He succumbed to L. Jarrett, of Chicago, in the third flight, 1 up, yesterday.

Tommy Goodwin, 19-year-old Monroe, N. Y., star, winner of the qualifying medal, overwhelmed W. R. B. McClean, of Williamstown, Mass., by 8 up and 6 to play. He yielded only one hole in the 12 played.

International Loop Franchise on Block

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—The Albany-Reading International League baseball franchise may be "bought at a bargain," William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs, said today.

Veeck's announcement was prompted by the declaration of Clarence H. Rowland in Albany, that he is turning back an option to purchase the club.

The Cubs' management, it was indicated, plans to dispose of the franchise and devote its minor league work to the Los Angeles farm in the Pacific Coast League.

CHAMBERS TRACK COACH

KANSAS COURT BANS GAS CUT

TOPEKA, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—A three-judge Federal Court ruled invalid today a Kansas Public Service Commission order finding 30 cents a thousand cubic feet was a reasonable price to be paid by 10 cities service distributing companies to Cities Service Gas Company, pipe line concern, for "main line" natural gas, instead of the prevailing 40-cent "city gate rate" charge.

The commission's order, issued last August, directed the distributing companies, serving approximately 80 cities and towns in Kansas, to show cause why the difference should not be passed on to the consumers in rate reductions.

In its order the regulatory body also directed the distributing companies to cease to set up on their books as expense items any payments made to Henry L. Doherty & Co., another Cities Service unit, under a management charge of 1¾ per cent of their gross revenue. The court held the commission's order was valid as to the 1¾ per cent charge.

At the time the order was issued, Public Service Commission officials estimated the indicated rate reduction, if carried out, would amount to a $928,000 annual saving to the consumers.

STOCKS PUSH INTO HIGHER GROUND

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The stock market extended its gains a little today, but seemed somewhat wearied by yesterday's advance.

Commodities were watched closely, and a steady to firm tone in wheat at Liverpool and Chicago was regarded as encouraging. Chinese buying sent silver up half a cent an ounce. In foreign exchanges, yesterday's pressure against the dollar abated.

Stocks moved up a little in the first hour, turned hesitant in the second, but firmed again after midday.

Oils held up well, in the face of the recent reductions in gasoline prices, and predictions of a further cut in mid-continent crude. January buying of copper, which had been rumored a short time ago, failed to develop, and the foreign price sagged.

Business news was rather meager. The reports on freight car loadings and electric power production were confusing, because of the falling of the Christmas holiday in different weeks this year and last. Dividend announcements included ordering of the regular quarterly of 25 cents on Columbia Gas common, payable in preferred stock. Bon Ami ordered the usual extra of 50 cents, and the regular quarterly of the same amount.

Wall street did not appear perturbed over Washington talk of inflation, and high-grade bonds continued to advance. A little foreign buying of stocks over the past day or two was reported in some brokerage quarters.

Brokerage sentiment improved as result of yesterday's upturn in the market. There was some talk of formation of bull pools. Expectation of better prices appeared to be based largely on the belief that a seasonal upturn in general business would materialize toward spring. More conservative quarters, however, pointed out that important dividend reductions may be in store over the next month or two, and that fourth-quarter earnings statements would undoubtedly be disappointing.

COPPER OUTPUT REDUCED 50%

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Smelter output of copper from ores of domestic origin in 1932 was about one-half that of 1931, states the Bureau of Mines. Refinery production from domestic and foreign sources was 54 per cent lower than in 1931.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Foreign copper was lower today, quoted at 5 cents a pound compared with 5.10 cents on Wednesday. Domestic quotations were unchanged at 5 cents delivered to the end of March and 5⅛ to 5¼ for second-quarter shipments.

Business Set for 1933 Upturn

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The essential meaning of the new deal is a recognition that the way out of the depression does not entail a return to the abnormal boom conditions of 1929.

Until recently, readjustment was impeded by a mistaken belief that prosperity was just around the corner, and that no fundamental changes in objectives and technique were necessary.

Mr. Rukeyser

Franklin D. Roosevelt's chief contribution has been the focusing of attention on restoring economic balance, rather than on salvaging the illusions and mistaken commitments of the boom period.

No peering into the economic prospects for 1933 can be complete without an appraisal of prospective co-operation between government and business to restore an equilibrium.

FINANCES OUT OF LINE

The great need is to bring the fixed charges of industry and agriculture and transportation into line with the current price level and the existing gross volume of business.

A financial setup, adapted to a gross national income of more than $84,000,000,000 in 1928, cannot be supported by a national income of less than $45,000,000,000 in 1932.

An equilibrium can be achieved in a variety of ways, and at present there is a disposition to treat the subject by the slow and tedious case method system. This means that weaker debtors will have to go through the wringer—either through receivership or voluntary readjustment.

Any policies, fiscal or otherwise, which would contribute to a recovery of the price level, of course would greatly facilitate the process of readjustment.

'NEW DEAL' FACTOR

Likewise, any steps contributing to an expansion of buying power and hence of the gross volume of trade would prove enormously constructive. The Roosevelt administration, thinking in terms of expanding buying power, will doubtless support an emergency plan for farm relief, such as the voluntary domestic allotment plan, which, if successful, will enhance the shrunken ability of farmers to buy manufactured products. Likewise, it will support sound—and, if available, self liquidating—public and semi-public projects, which will offer a mode of livelihood to some of the multitudes who have in the last three years become pauperized through unemployment. To the extent that idle are recalled to work, buying power—and hence gross volume of business—will be expanded.

There is a growing disposition to keep the benefits of such stimulated purchasing power within the home market through a protective tariff policy adapted to prevailing abnormal world-wide conditions. There is a marked increase in quasi-isolationist sentiment in the United States. The default of France and four other war debtor nations on December 15 quickened this movement.

Accordingly, if the promise of the new deal is in part at least fulfilled in 1933, there should at least be no shrinkage below the 1932 business level, which for budgetary purposes can be regarded as rock bottom. As a matter of fact, if the farm and public works plans are energetically pursued, they should result in some increase in gross volume. This should entail a rise above the meager 1932 results in business profits—at least for the strongly entrenched, highly efficient corporations, which have gone about as far as they can in pruning expenses. Many of them will be able to take on a considerably larger volume without a corresponding increase in costs. Accordingly, even a moderate rise in gross ought to be reflected in a substantial improvement in net earnings.

This is likely to be especially true of those corporations which in their statements for 1932 will have the courage to write down all assets to present values, instead of perpetuating the illusions and unrealities of the boom period. The effect of such a policy will be to enhance reported net income in the period ahead, especially when, as and if there is some pickup in demand.

FEARS CHECKED

Financially, the spirit of panic and unreasoning fears has been checked, and the country is more ready than a year ago to take the new and decisive steps which the occasion calls for. Large banking institutions are now abnormally liquid, and the general situation, still greatly subnormal and badly deadlocked after half a year of sidewise movement, could improve rapidly when and if executives gain sufficient confidence to employ excess funds in productive industry. Likewise, lack of enthusiasm by bank depositors has resulted in a dangerously sluggish velocity of turnover of bank deposits. When men have the imagination and daring to use available funds, there will be a revival of economic activity.

The new mental attitude, which would result in facing issues instead of continuing to beg questions, is potentially extremely constructive. Any trade improvement is likely to be relative, rather than absolute. There is little likelihood of a quick return of business to the level of computed normal. Accordingly, the realistic will anticipate a perpetuation of highly competitive conditions, with rapid elimination from business of the ill-financed and the insufficient.

FOUNDATION SOUND

Numerous fundamentals go over as unfinished business for the new administration, including tariff and taxation policies, industrial planning, modernization of the anti-trust laws, reductions in the operating expenses of government and cuts in armament, and settlement of war debts.

As the disparities in the situation are ironed out, the thoroughly liquidated condition of business constitutes a sound foundation for thoroughgoing economic rehabilitation. With government and business in a mood to co-operate steadfastly in meeting the new problems of improved preductivity in the power age, there is increasing reason to believe that the worst is over, and that the conditions for a slow climb up the slope are in the making.

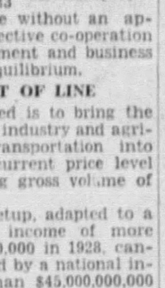
America Will Forge Ahead During 1933

By B. C. FORBES

A YEAR ago in attempting to forecast what 1932 would bring, this column said:

"No great progress need be expected immediately . . . change of the calendar has not changed fear into confidence . . . Apprehension is still widespread. . . It may take several months for constructive forces now being set in motion to change appreciably the economic picture. After further ups and downs, with perhaps more downs than ups, the tide will, however, inevitably turn."



Mr. Forbes

What is 1933 likely to bring?

I BELIEVE that the tide has turned, that it turned six months ago.

WHEREAS THE first half of 1932 brought despair, I believe that 1933, despite many tribulations, will bring confidence in our ability to triumph.

POLITICS PROBABLY will disturb. The financial world dislikes the proposal to pay enormous bounties to raisers of wheat, cotton, rice, tobacco, hogs.

The financial world dislikes President-elect Roosevelt's opposition to a sales tax to provide urgently-needed federal revenue. The financial world dislikes some of the proposed changes in our fundamental banking law. The financial world, in short, harbors at least mild misgivings over the general political outlook.

YET THE depression can be said to have been conquered mentally That could not be said one year or two years ago.

FAITH IN our currency system, faith in our ability to maintain the gold standard, faith in our banks has been restored. Hysteria, dread that the securities of American corporations were destined to become utterly worthless, has been overcome.

American labor, employed and unemployed, has, on the whole, given a magnificent demonstration of level-headedness, patience, fortitude, with only here and there unreasoning objection to wage reductions demanded by our deflated economic conditions.

Insurance and other vital fiduciary institutions have come through the fires with noble credit.

THE OPENING of 1933 finds security values reasonably stabilized; commodity prices exhibiting rallying as well as receding fluctuations, employment holding up better than at any time in the last two years, and, not least important, inventories of merchandise at unprecedentedly low levels.

Consumption and wear and tear have unquestionably exceeded output for many months, thus creating a backlog of orders which will be released by and by, probably in volume not now foreseen by even the most optimistic.

NERVE THIS year promises to replace last year's "nerves." Instead of vainly looking for miracles we are now squarely facing stern realities. But we no longer are cowed. We have ceased to act like maniacs and are again acting like men.

IN THIS lies warrant for revived confidence that we will prove able to achieve rational progress during 1933.

Independent Brewing Will Complete Plan Soon

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

PLANS FOR THE reorganization of the Independent Brewing Company have been completed except for a few minor details.

Officials of the company expect to be able to announce details of the new financing arrangements within a few weeks. No details of the arrangements have been made public up to the present time. The plan will involve the refunding of securities now outstanding and the raising of additional funds to provide for plant rehabilitation and for working capital.

Efforts will be made to complete the arrangements in time to clear the way for resumption of operations as soon as the production and sale of beer are legalized.

Bonds Will Be Major Problem

DUE TO LOSSES under prohibition conditions, the company finds itself at present with insufficient working capital. A year ago bondholders voted a moratorium on interest payments under which coupons due January 1, 1932; July 1, 1932, and January 1, 1933, become due and payable July 1, 1933. In October, 1930, the bondholders voted a suspension of sinking fund payments for five years.

The balance sheet of September 30, 1932, showed that the issue of the company's 6 per cent bonds due in 1955 amounted to $1,863,000. The company held $229,000 of these bonds in the treasury.

An arrangement for permanently refunding the bonds will be an essential part of the plan.

Preferred Dividends Are Far in Arrears

THE REORGANIZATION has been further complicated by the large amount of accumulated and unpaid dividends on the 7 per cent cumulative participating preferred stock. These amounted to 68¼ per cent on December 31, 1932.

Although the equity for the common stock appears to be slight the issue of 90,000 shares has been currently selling at about $2 a share.

The balance sheet showed current assets of $86,788 against current liabilities of $22,666. The current liabilities, as shown on the statement, did not take into account $125,001 of bond interest which had accrued under the moratorium arrangement.

The company reported a net loss of $202,312 in the year ended September 30, 1932.

POWER OUTPUT DECREASES

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Electric power output for the final week of December totaled 1,414,710,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,554,473,000 in the previous week and 1,523,652,000 in the like 1931 period, the National Electric Light Association reported today.

The usual percentage change from last year is omitted because the 1932 week included New Years while this year the holiday came a week later. Also Christmas is included in last week's statistics, whereas that holiday was included in the figures a week earlier in 1931.

MARY FAITH

By BEATRICE BURTON

Mary Faith Seeks Temporary Position and Asks for Help of Friend

CHAPTER XXIII.

Mrs. Farrell stood up, shaking herself like a hen. "He ought to be told! He ought to be brought back here!" she said bitterly. "Why should he go scot-free, and you and I be left with all the trouble to face, I'd like to know!—I know what it is to be left, Mary Faith . . ."

She walked away from the table and straightened a steel engraving of "The Stag at Eve" that hung above the sideboard. When she turned back to Mary Faith once more there were tears running down her face.

"Think of my son doing a thing like this to me when I've given up my whole life to him for 28 years and more!" she said, her voice thick with tears. "Walking in and telling me to break up my home at a moment's notice! Ordering me off down to Garrettsville to live on my sister's charity! What's the matter with him, Mary Faith? What do you think ails him?"

"I'll tell you what ails him. He's discouraged," Mary Faith answered steadily. "He's been having a hard time lately and he's just plain sick and tired of everything all at once. And you and I are just part of what he's sick and tired of—grocery bills and the rent coming due and the quiet life we lead here in this flat. Kim likes a good time and I should have seen to it that he had it. All this that's happened is partly my fault, Mrs. Farrell. You mustn't put the whole blame on Kim's shoulders."

And so she defended him to his mother as she would have stood up for him against the whole world.

UNABLE TO SLEEP

Mrs. Farrell got up and went into the kitchen to make herself a cup of the weak hot tea that she always drank before she went to bed. It "sustained" her until morning, she always said.

"What about that girl? The girl that you and he were talking about?" she called out above the sound of water running into the tea pot.

"I'm not even going to think about that girl," said Mary Faith. "Dr. Thatcher says I ought to be quiet and happy for the next few months—and I'm going to be quiet and happy if it kills me."

That night Mary Faith couldn't sleep. She lay staring into the shadows of the room where Kim's face seemed to take form before her eyes. The pillow still held the smell of his hair—a faint dry smell like birch bark—the room was full of him.

She heard the clock in the flat next door strike 1 and 2 and then 3. A little after 3 she gave up all hope of sleep and got out of bed. She softly closed the door of Mrs. Farrell's room so as not to disturb her and dressed herself. Then she went into the kitchen, took Kim's clothes from the laundry basket under the table and ironed them.

By 5 o'clock, when the dawn was gray and cool in the windows of the flat, she had his trunks packed and locked, ready to go. There were two of them—a big black one and a little steamer trunk. Kim had a great many clothes, fully twice as many as she had.

RETURNS MONEY

On the dresser, under a clothes brush, lay the $50 bill he had left for her. She picked it up, creasing it between her fingers for a long time.

Her handbag hung on one of the hooks in the clothes closet. She took it down and drew from it two $5 bills that she had had in it a long time.

With the money in her hand she went into the dining room, where the little serving table that she and Mrs. Farrell used for a writing desk, stood between the windows. Sitting down at it, she addressed an envelope to Mr. J. W. McIntrae, of the firm of McIntrae and Westover, in the City Bank Building. She wrote Kim's name on the back of the envelope and put the bills into it—the $50 bill and the two 5's.

Wilton street was empty and very still in the dawn. The sidewalks were covered with dew that would have looked like silver on green fields in the country, but was only a greasy film here on the pavements. The dawn wind, whispering down between the apartment buildings that lined the street on both sides, was sweet and fresh against Mary Faith's face as she walked along on her way to the mail box that stood at the corner.

She dropped the letter into it, telling herself that she was doing the last thing for Kim that she would be able to do for him in a long time.

BECOMES OPTIMISTIC

The flush of the rising sun was in the sky above Wilton street when she turned to go back. The clippity-clop of a horse's iron shoes and the rattle of milk cans in the next street seemed very loud in the early morning stillness . . . Then, somewhere in the neighborhood, a robin began to sing.

Mary Faith stopped in the middle of the sidewalk, listening. Could things ever be absolutely hopeless, she asked herself, in a world where robins always came to sing after the dead frozen winter was over, and where dawn came after the blackness of every night?

For her it was one of those moments when the glory of life stood out above all the great worries and the little fretting things, even above the supreme hurt of losing Kim.

"Everything is going to be all right," she found herself thinking, exactly as if someone had put that thought into her heart to comfort her. "And there's going to be the baby . . ."

"Oh, it's you, is it?—after all this time," Jean said to her when she heard her voice at the other end of the wire. "I'm surprised to hear from you, Mrs. Farrell. I thought you'd cut me off your calling list. What's on your mind?"

"Jean, please don't be icy to me," Mary Faith begged her.

"I don't know why you should expect me to fall over you!" Jean came back at her. "You and I were friends for years, and mighty good friends, too. Then you married Kim Farrell and dropped me like a hot cake, as if I weren't good enough for you any more. Believe me, it didn't make any ten-strike with me when you did it, either!"

VISITS MARY FAITH

She was crisp and honest and slangy as always.

"Well, I can tell you all about that when I see you," said Mary Faith, "and I must see you, Jean. As soon as possible, please. . . . Can I meet you anywhere tonight when you leave the office?"

"Where are you now?" asked Jean.

"At home. You know where Kim lives, on Wilton street."

"Yes, I know. I'll be there at six o'clock." And Jean hung up.

At six o'clock the doorbell rang; and Mary Faith, who was washing a head of lettuce in the kitchen, went to the door.

Jean stood there, looking very smart and well-groomed against the dingy wall paper and oak woodwork of the hall. She wore a tan suit and a brown straw hat, and the hand she held out to Mary Faith was smooth and beautifully manicured, just as Mary Faith's own hands had been when she, instead of Jean, was Mark Nesbit's secretary.

"Well!" she said. "You sent for me at last."

"I didn't send for you. I told you I'd meet you anywhere," Mary Faith answered, drawing her into the sitting room. "I'd have called you up months ago, Jean, but Kim didn't want me to have anything to do with anybody at Nesbit's. He saw me with Mr. Nesbit one night, just before we were married, and he's been terribly jealous of him ever since. . . . But don't say anything about it to anyone ever, will you? The only reason I'm telling you is because I want you to understand why you haven't heard from me."

Jean shrugged her well-tailored shoulders.

"Go ahead with whatever you were doing," she said, taking in Mary Faith's damp red hands and her apron. "Jiminy, you certainly have gone domestic, haven't you?"

"I didn't have to 'go domestic,' Jean. I always was domestic." Mary Faith led the way to the clean little kitchen. "This sort of thing always appealed to me more than office work ever did. You have no idea what a good time I have running the floor mop around the house and peeling potatoes. But I'm going to start doing office work again. That's what I wanted to talk to you about."

"Don't you start working, Mary Faith Farrell!" Jean shook her head vigorously. "As soon as a married woman starts working her husband loses all his ambition. Just look at what happened to my sister, Florrie—as soon as she started that public-stenographer business of hers. Burr stopped selling cars. He'd been a perfectly grand husband until that time. Now he spends most of his time at home. As a good provider, he's through."

Mary Faith knew all about Jean's sister, Florence Bond, and Burr, her husband. For years Jean had regaled her with stories of their violent quarrels and with stories of the great success of Florrie's company—known as the Write-O Stenographic Service.

"I have to go to work, Jean," she said slowly. "Kim and I have—separated, and I'm going to support myself from now on. And I've been wondering if Florrie would let me work for her for a few months—until October, say? I wanted to get into a quiet place like her office if I could. You see, I'm going to have a baby pretty soon . . ."

And then she was in Jean's arms, with her head on her shoulder, and the two of them were crying together in the silly but comforting way that women do cry sometimes. The five months of silence and misunderstanding were swept away in an instant, and the two of them were good friends once more.

Synopsis

Mary Faith, secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy businessman, gives up her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, shiftless young lawyer. She realizes he has an eye for every girl, but hopes that married life will sober him and make him successful in his profession. Instead, Kim is annoyed at Mary Faith's "Puritanism," and his friends, Claire and Jack Maldon, find her a dull companion. Learning that she is to become a mother, Mary Faith, for the first time, visits Kim's office. Kim is furious when Mary Faith finds him flirting with his blonde secretary. That night he informs his mother and Mary Faith that he is leaving. Heartbroken, Mary Faith decides not to tell him of her approaching motherhood.

Now Go On

"Kim and I have—separated," said Mary Faith.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Grand Jester Alden Miller has a peculiar knack of putting on classic programs for the Belmar Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theater Junior Komic Club, and he never seems to have any difficulty in finding talent to make up his regular Saturday entertainments.

Two little girls, Irene Porter and Gertrude Walsh, were the first to be introduced in last Saturday's meeting. They proceeded to show the club just how good a tap dance team can be. Good rhythm and timing was exhibited by both girls, and was appreciated by the club as a whole. Helen Mae Connor and Dorothy Long were next and entertained with an acrobatic dance to the tune of "Kiss Me Good Night." A good round of applause was given them at the conclusion of the dance.

SONG AND DANCE

Little Alice Polombo then sang a cute song entitled "Curly Hair." Together with her personality and her earnest efforts, Alice certainly put over the song, as was noticed by the applause she received. The club was again entertained with a tap dance, this time by Jacqueline Clark, a very good performer. She put forth her best foot, so to speak, and gave the members a fine little dance.

Jennie Lamia then sang "It Happened in Monterey." Jennie is one of the favorites of the club, always giving her best when she is on the stage. A big round of applause was given her at the conclusion of her number. Another tap dance was executed by a little girl named Anna Lamia. This tap dance, being performed to the strains of "My Fate Is In Your Hands," gave off an impression that had your fate been in Anna's feet, all future life would have clicked to your perfection. Anna received a big round of applause at the conclusion of the dance. This concluded the regular meeting, same being adjourned by Grand Jester Alden Miller.

SATURDAY'S PROGRAM

The following entertainment units will appear at the Komic Club Chapter meetings as noted next Saturday:

Sheridan Square, Rowland and Manor — Billinger and Miller, character change and dancing duo; Frankee Porter, Pittsburgh's famous boy soprano; Dolly Colbert, cute little acrobat.

Awarding the Wreath of Poison Ivy

It has always been our intention to reform and become as genial as a bee shellacked with honey.

This eternal rapping and knocking of human institutions is as unnatural as cold coffee. We have been accused of being sour-bellied, persimmon-minded and acid-fingered.

We dislike being the ghost at the feast. The only advantage of such an honorary position is that you don't have to tip the waiter. What better way of launching the new year than to think of the finer things of life? The only trouble with a bird who thinks of improving himself is that he wants to reform his friends first.

The first lad we tried it on was Westbrook Pegler. We said to him, "Peg, why are you so bitter against fighters, wrestlers and wagon-lunches? Why don't you be like The Bug? Laugh—live and forgive? Your bitter articles are busting the casters right from under the bureau of civilizations. It's just as easy to smile as to frown and it looks better in the daily police line-up. We sincerely believe you are the most sarcastic man in the world."

"Nope, you are," said Peg without removing his voice from his mouth, "and I'll prove it. You have done more to pulverize love, destroy romance and demolish hope than any man in the world. You did it with one song."

That was the first we ever remembered being a song-writer. But Peg proved it. He played it on his phonograph. It was a sarcastic love-song. That's a record, too. It sold one copy. And Peg was the boy who bought that.

The title of this impassioned lyric of devotion was, "When I'm With You I'm Lonesome."

Then we remembered collaborating with Harry Archer either before the war, after the war or between it.

We were working on a follow-up lyric when the police broke into the studio and whacked a bundle of riot sticks over the head of a very fine alabaster statue of Orpheus. If we remember disgustingly enough the title of that song was to be, "Every One Has Some One; All I Have Is You."

Which looks like a conviction. But we still claim Peg is the more warped and sarcastic because he bought the only record sold.

Will Someone Please Hand Mr. Howard One Of Them White Ribbons

(Hardinsburg, Ky., Independent)

To My Friends and the Public:

Beginning January the first, 1933, I want to ask that my friends do not offer me any more whisky. I have suffered greatly from what could have been prevented and it is hard to curb ones self at the best.

Any one seeing or proving that I have taken a drink within the next six months will be rewarded in cash, and I now ask that all peace officers give me their assistance to the fullest extent.

I have lots of friends that do drink and they are still my friends—whisky is no detriment if one can handle it. I just have determined to quit.

Dear Auntie Belle—

I do so need help as to how to plan the entertainment for a group of middle-aged men—business associates of my husband's father—who will gather informally at our home Saturday night. Can you, will you, help?

Daughter-in-Law.

Ans.—There was a time when I woulda. But my lumbago makes it almost impossible for me to do justice to the symbolical dances of old Hawaii—land of romance and color, of moonlight and jungle madness, where even the air is heavy laden with the scent of tropical flowers that blooma in nighta.

HARD LINES ON THE BITTERN

—Book of Ornithology.

Though a bold-hearted bird is the bittern
Who would scoff at the notion of quittern—
When he hides, it is hard
To spot him a yard
Or to tell if he's standing or sittern.

Yet the bittern is sad—I affirm it—
For though he is svelte, as we term it,
He sits on a stump
And longs to be plump,
But he can't be—that's why he's a hermit.

Since plumpness again is de rigueur,
He mourns his attenuate figger;
He gollups down fish
And continues to wish
That bitterns were better and bigger.

Mrs. Bittern, too, eats to excess
Yet still wears a thirty-six dress;
So they both sit and sulk
O'er their absence of bulk
In a mood of profound bitterness. Jerome G. Witham.

U. S. Needs Higher Tariff, Not Lower—Alien Competition Must Stop!

POPPYCOCK is a cheap and noxious commodity on which our tariff places no restriction—poppycock as to prosperity's return from the restoration of our export trade and the recovery of our foreign markets.

The principal place for its manufacture is Geneva, with subsidiary plants in London and Paris.

Its sales talk consists of what are called "agenda"—programs for WORLD economic conferences, for WORLD disarmament conferences, WORLD currency conferences, WORLD tariff armistices, WORLD non-aggression pacts, WORLD naval quotas, and goodness knows what else.

IT IS exposed for sale widely and has a very considerable market in this country. We have even supplied it with one of its leading salesmen—the so-called "HOOVER ENVOY," NORMAN H. DAVIS—who flits from London to Geneva, Geneva to Paris, Paris to Berlin, back and forth, out and in, occasionally moving his hosts to not unnatural outbursts of irritation and spreading apprehension among our own people as to what is so mysteriously being said and done on their behalf.

American public opinion looks SUSPICIOUSLY upon such activities, regarding them as entirely too HOOVERESQUE. They smack too much of the fatal wrong-headedness of the dismal administration now drawing to a close.

They will NEVER SQUARE with the present TEMPER OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE. There is no reconcilement of them with the "New Deal" proclaimed by the President-elect.

OUR international bankers with their foreign partners and their foreign capital—their allegiance as divided as their interests—are primarily responsible for the poppycock about our dependence upon world recovery.

The fact is that our depression is essentially a domestic one. Only five per cent of our production is exported. Ninety-five per cent is consumed here. It is our domestic market where the battle for prosperity will really be won or lost.

After three years of depression it is estimated that our FOREIGN TRADE has declined THIRTY PER CENT. This, however, is only a decline of THREE PER CENT in our total business.

OUR DOMESTIC TRADE has declined THIRTY-NINE per cent, but the domestic decline is practically thirty-nine per cent of our total trade.

Is it not manifest that we are suffering primarily from our failure to guard our home market?

ALL this prevalent talk about lowering our tariff so that Europe may find a market in the United States for its surplus goods, and about the benefits that will accrue to us from the general world recovery, to which we thus contribute, is the language of unreason. From every rational view of American interest it is poppycock.

The truth is that Europe's industries parallel to a very close degree American industries. Her greatest export trade is in textiles, but our own textile industry is prostrate today as the result of the unchecked importation of textiles from low wage and cheap currency countries.

Shall we accept English woolens, steel, coal, oil? All these things we have in abundance.

Of course, Europe has some products that are not competitive with our production. For instance, we need potash from Germany and manganese from Russia.

It is these non-competitive products that present a field for intelligently negotiated agreements of reciprocity.

It is only by an exchange which is of reciprocal advantage that we can help Europe, or Europe can help us.

THE first step toward our business recovery is to rid ourselves of the delusion that our troubles can be cured by some international policy or by any grandiose schemes born of international conferences, such as a horizontal reduction in world tariffs.

Of course, we shall continue to trade with the rest of the world, but that trading must be intelligent. Its quantity and character must be determined and directed so that it cannot disorganize and destroy our home market.

It has been well said that we CANNOT control WORLD ECONOMY, but we CAN control NATIONAL ECONOMY.

Fortunate are the American people that their national economy, intelligently understood and patriotically served as well as guarded, can not only supply their needs, but satisfy their ambitions.

Let us discard, once and for all, the lukewarm conception of our HOME MARKET as one in which the American workman shall have a FIFTY-FIFTY CHANCE.

EQUALITY of opportunity is rather too modest a goal for American tariff legislation.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY AND LABOR are entitled to something BETTER THAN AN EVEN BREAK in the MARKET OF THEIR OWN CREATION.

OUR duty is clear. Nothing should be permitted to deflect us from it.

The absolute protection of the American home market for the benefit of Americans must be, now and always, our first and chief concern.

We must maintain the American standard of living and provide work for our own citizens.

Imported goods made by pauperized labor, and still further cheapened by the depreciated currencies now prevailing abroad, must be excluded from our markets.

Congress will realize that this exclusion must be brought about at once by increased tariff duties, supplemented by such special forms of taxation as will meet every case as it arises and make our tariff policy instantly effective.

The American home market must no longer be exposed to SCAVENGER COMPETITION!

The Politicians Who Seek to Change Our Educational System Would Make Matters Worse

Professional politicians have long had a covetous eye on the Pittsburgh public school system. Think of the jobs and fat contracts that could be controlled with domination of a system whose budget for 1933 calls for the expenditure of $13,735,110.

The drive to get control of the schools started two years ago with the Rooney bill to make places on the school board elective offices—that is, to throw the school directorships, now filled by appointment of the courts, into the maelstrom of factional politics. That plan failed.

Senator James J. Coyne renewed the campaign with his fault-finding investigation of the cost of running the schools. He has received aid and comfort from taxpayers and taxpayers' organizations that think the school tax rate is too high. This has culminated in a proposal at Harrisburg to strip the Board of Education of its taxing power and let City Council fix the school tax rate.

Look out! Disgruntled citizens who think to bring school expenses down by turning the schools over to the City Council or to the professional politicians are making a serious mistake. They will find themselves far worse off than before if Coyne, Rooney and their political associates get control.

Sunday Movies Needed

Gov. Pinchot Should Read What the Rev. Mr. Bielenberg Says About the Blue Law.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, it is reported, will sign a bill modifying the Blue Law to permit Sunday baseball and other outdoor athletic sports even if admission is charged, provided there is no commercialization of Sunday through open theaters and indoor amusements.

The Governor does not go far enough. He is inconsistent in making fish of professional baseball and fiesh of Sunday movies. One is no more harmful than the other. As a matter of fact there is not a bit of harm in either, but a great deal of good in both.

If there is any difference between them, the movies have more to commend them, because they can be enjoyed throughout the year regardless of the weather, whereas Sunday baseball game cannot be played during the winter or when it rains.

Gov. Pinchot would do well to read the remarks of the Rev. H. Bielenberg, pastor of a Lutheran Church in Oil City, before the Oil City Council. He spoke in behalf of theater owners who were pleading for the right to give Sunday performances.

"You can't cram Christianity down a man's throat or legislate him into heaven," said this broad-minded pastor.

Faithful Old Employes

Age Brings Steadiness, a Quality Not Always to Be Found in Younger Workers

An incident related in a report of the service being rendered by the Pennsylvania state employment offices is gratifying as showing appreciation of the good service that may ... and often is rendered by old persons.

It is mentioned that among the 6,020 persons for whom jobs were found during the last 11 months were many who would not have been placed if it had not been for the energy and "salesmanship" of the employment offices superintendents.

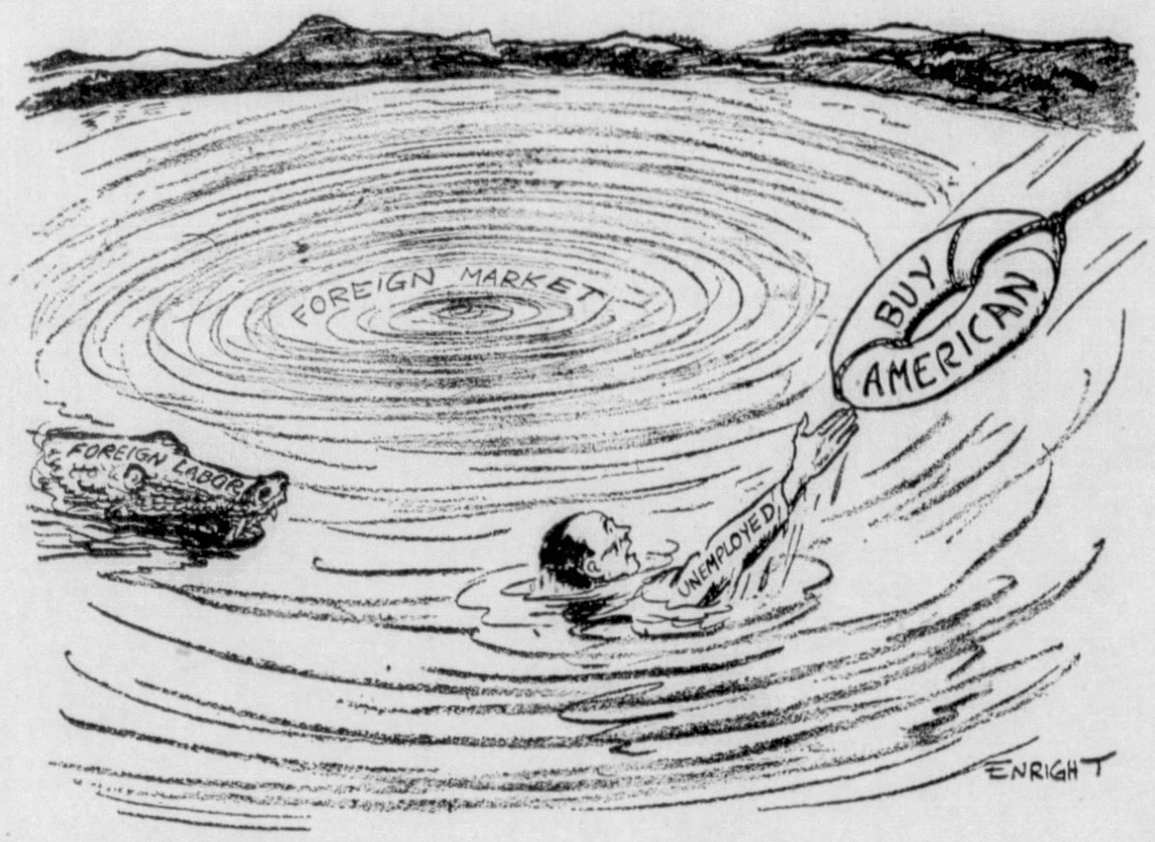
Among the seekers of jobs was an Erie man who had been discharged after 30 years of service with one concern. The state employment office at Erie recommended him to an automobile concern which needed a night watchman. The company at first refused to have him because of his age. Then the employment office superintendent called on the company and pointed out how long the man had been employed by his former employers, how loyal and dependable he was reported to be, and how regularly he came to the employment office.

The automobile company was impressed and gave the man a job, which he continues to fill to the satisfaction of his employers.

As Senator James J. Davis said, in an appeal for the employment of older men, age gives them steadiness and a sense of responsibility that are not always to be found in the young.

Dangerous Waters

(Copyright, 1933.)



Above we see the son of toil
Ensnared by foreign guile,
In dire distress he hopes to foil
The hungry crocodile
That plans to take him for a ride

Why idly stand upon the strand
And watch his struggles grim?
The time has come to lend a hand
And heave a line to him—
The time to BUY AMERICAN
And save the jobless workingman.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I'm sorry for a lot of people these days.

I'm sorry for old people—driven from their last shelter, forced to face a terror with which they cannot cope.

I'm sorry for little children—exposed in their pitiful helplessness suffering an agony they do not deserve and cannot understand.

I'm sorry for workingmen and women—for husbands and wives—caught in the cruel trap of our industrial smash-up.

But most of all I'm sorry for young people—the young people of 18 and 20 who have just left childhood, who should now be entering into the first glowing adventures of manhood and womanhood.

Everywhere I meet them, those young people. Traveling across the country I have seen them wandering in wolfish packs, drifting, homeless and idle, away from the shelter of civilization, into jungle lawlessness.

Going up and down the streets I pass them lounging at corners, congregating around pool rooms, the dream dying out of their eyes, [illegible] into their lips. And ... I find them—restless, ... brooding bitterly because there is no place for them, and everyone seems against them.

Everywhere I see them — the Cheated Generation. And whenever I see them, I am stirred by pity and lashed by shame.

We are responsible for them, as our parents were responsible for us.

It was up to us to give them an orderly world in which to live.

It was up to us to hand on decent standards of living — standards of honesty, sobriety and fair play.

It was up to us to prepare the way so they could work; so they could build homes and careers for themselves; so they could carry on the race.

It was up to us to do all these things. But, instead—what have we done?

WE, THE OLDER GENERATION, HAVE SPENT 50 YEARS PLAYING AROUND AND PAMPERING OUR OWN GREEDY SELVES.

We have worked hard; yes. But we have not thought hard. We have refused to consider where all our machines were driving us; what our war extravagance would impose upon us; what must come from inflated sales, uncontrolled production, concentration of wealth. We have not reckoned up the cost of our silliness, our selfishness, our stupidity, our laziness, our inhumanity.

And now the day of reckoning is at hand. And these youngsters must pay the bill—the bill WE ran up!

And if it were only a question of paying it in dollars and cents, that would be unfair enough. But they must pay it in something infinitely more precious than money—in collateral which can never be redeemed.

They must pay OUR bill with blighted dreams and broken hearts; with foiled ambition and frustrated romance; with twisted minds and starved bodies and warped souls.

WE'RE to blame. We allowed this world to drift into the mess it is in. We engaged in that war. We permitted that cancerous development of capitalism. We legalized the devilish stupidity of the Eighteenth Amendment. We built the machine Frankenstein. And THEY must pay—because WE ran amuck.

I am sorry for young people. I am furious at older people when I hear them criticize young people; when I hear them say that they are "lazy, immoral, hard-boiled, extravagant, lacking in decent standards."

I want to cry, "Lay off that youngster!" It's not his fault. What kind of a world have we given him, you and I? What have OUR morals amounted to? Where has OUR work led us? What has become of OUR standards?

We had a break when we were children. Our fathers saw to that. But what sort of a break have we given these boys and girls? The toughest break youngsters were ever handed! Then cut out your sneers and your sermons. What are they worth? Nothing—and the kid knows it. He knows just where we get off, you and I. And he doesn't want our advice. Friendliness; that's what he needs. Love and understanding and service—and fair play. Give him that, if you can.

I'm sorry for young people. That's what I want to say when someone criticizes them. We've cheated them—you and I.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

My Dwelling Place

You may have seen
The prosy place,
Quite poor and mean
And lacking grace,
Where, day on day,
My life is spent;
Too dull, too gray
To bring content.
You may have sighed
That I should be Always denied
Each luxury.
For none has known
The turrets high,
Of massive stone,
That touch the sky;
The winding stair
By which I rise
To purer air
And wider skies;
The stately halls
I love so well,
The castle walls
Wherein I dwell!

Isn't It So?

Folks who love labor enjoy life.

The shoe dealer always sells his goods at bottom prices.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Harlem is greeting the depression with a gallant hi-de-ho. No strip of Manhattan has been so badly squeezed in the economic twist, yet there is more surface gayety than in any other area. Unemployed fill the sidewalks but there's little despair.

On Lenox this evening, a communist gospeler was greeted with boos. There is song from upstair windows and the tap of dancing feet in halls. Instead of jealousy for its most fortunate—such as Bill Robinson, Adelaide Hall and Ethel Watters of the stage—there is acclaim.

If a family's debts become too pressing, presto, a "rent party!" Patrons contribute a little change, bring in a fiddler and speed the dawn with flying feet. Bon-tons—Pullman porters who reside in the luxury of Striver's Row and Sugar Hill—have been as badly hit as the rest.

Harlem's hope of sudden riches is expressed in enthusiasms for the number games. Everybody takes a chance. Sometimes for only a few pennies and rarely for more than a dollar. If they win—hot-ziggedy! But if they don't tomorrow is another day.

Fanny Hurst's duplex apartment in the artistic colony of West 57th street is one of the popular shrines of a tea-drinking literati. On those auspicious occasions when Miss Hurst sounds the tocsin, the fortunate are certain to see the reigning figures of all branches of the art, both the native and visiting foreign. The high-ceiling living room, filled with a combination of Russian and Italian treasures—ikons, dim-lit altars, mosaics, tapestries, offers a subdued background for gowns of flaming red in which Miss Hurst is always sheathed to receive her guests.

Miss Hurst's workshop is a north-lighted room ideally outfitted for the pursuit of the literary ignis fatuus. Especially so for the animal lovers, for at her feet are stretched two dignified and silken Pekes, on a divan a blooded snow-white and blue-eyed cat and, to the left of her typewriter, a spun-silver cage containing a two-pound monkey from far away Brazil.

* * *

On second thought, I fear I'd forego a monkey in such proximity. The one I so briefly owned stopped suddenly several times a day in his antics to chirp a piping threnody which always struck me as a despairing lament over captivity. Not even the lonely coyote sounds such longing.

It is probable New York has had its last rodeo. If exhibitions were merely fancy riding it is not likely protests would avail. But even cowboys admit bucking bronchos are usually tweaked into bucking by somewhat painful cinch straps. Loosen these straps and the snortingest bronk becomes docile. Often, too, at the rodeo a strangling, bawling little calf in its sudden fall, when roped, suffers a broken leg and sometimes a neck. Steers have had horns broken and there are other phases to stir animal lovers to action. Chicago has an anti-rodeo league and one is now being formed in the metropolis.

Henry L. Mencken is deservedly bespoke as a grammarian and literary purist. But I notice such purists are often hoist by their own petard. The bad boy of Baltimore recently wrote of "mental telepathy." I may be wrong and this chair is too comfortable to leave for a dictionary. Yet I have a hunch telepathy refers solely to thought transference. And placing "mental" before it is what the Greek professors or someone called tautology. It's like Roy Howard's cubhood headline "Petite Little Dancer."

Morris Gest, fuzzy Fedora, bow tie and all, is in circulation again, following an illness and the bereavement of his wife, Reina. She is the daughter of David Belasco. Gest is last of the theatrical blunderbusses, daring, spectacular and often effective. His touch is needed.

Experienced dancers are frequent patrons of the flood of tap dance studios. Queenie Smith and Marilyn Miller go to them to limber up. Also Jack Haley, Benny Rubin and others.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

The Big Handicap

If the Gods should offer the average girl just one wish in all the world, she would probably wish for a retrousse nose—a cute little turned-up bit of a baby nose! At least she would if she were WISE.

* * *

Did you ever stop to think what a girl with that kind of a nose can get away with?

* * *

A woman's fate, figuratively speaking, hangs on her profile—and the girl with a "classic nose" starts life with a terrible handicap. Mine's "classic"—and I know what I am talking about!

The dear little thing of 40 summers, with a turned-up nose, can wear school girl bobs or curls; garments from the Misses Department; a saucy beret or a hat that ends where it started, and anybody will say "How cute!" But if any other woman did that sort of thing, the angels, themselves, would be moved to tears—or laughter. She can float around in a half piece bathing suit, but the "classic-nosed" girl must go in for conservative lines, medium lengths, and stately effects.

* * *

The retrousse-nosed woman can skip into a room—but the rest of us must "glide" in. She can babble the stupidest inanities, and pass for "clever"—but WE must say something brilliant or scintillating, in order to get any man to listen to us. She can laugh at a man's silliest jokes and giggle at his puns—but we must merely smile and look "intelligent." She can chatter baby talk to every man she meets—but if a "classic-nosed" woman merely gazes up at a man and tried to "coo," all the rest of the women hastily snatch him away and whisper "Vamp!" In short, the only thing that a girl with anything but a tip-tilted nose, CAN do, is to be "dignified" and "ladylike!"

* * *

Oh well, those "classic beauties," that the poets rave about, and the sculptors have immortalized, MAY have been ravishing. But they missed half the joy in life!

If Venus really resembled her statues, it's no wonder that she never got anything but a blacksmith for a husband. And no matter what History says, I'll be willing to wager the last drop of my Christmas perfume, that Helen of Troy and Delilah and Cleopatra were born with half-portion noses.

* * *

Because, every woman spends her whole life living up—or down—to her nose. And it's SO much easier to live down to a "snub," than to live up to a "Greek!"

But then, did you ever know a woman who was perfectly satisfied with her NOSE?
